20 lowing:

21 “§ 44942. Performance goals and objectives

22 “(a) SHORT TERM TRANSITION.—

23 “(1) IN GENERAL.—Within 180 days after the
24 date of enactment of the Aviation and Transpor-
25 tation Security Act, the Under Secretary for Trans-

1 portation Security may, in consultation with
2 Congress—

3 “(A) establish acceptable levels of perform-
4 ance for aviation security, including screening
5 operations and access control, and

6 “(B) provide Congress with an action plan,
7 containing measurable goals and milestones,
8 that outlines how those levels of performance
9 will be achieved.

10 “(2) BASICS OF ACTION PLAN.—The action
11 plan shall clarify the responsibilities of the Trans-
12 portation Security Administration, the Federal Avia-
13 tion Administration and any other agency or organi-
14 zation that may have a role in ensuring the safety
15 and security of the civil air transportation system.

18 “(A) PERFORMANCE PLAN.—

19 “(i) Each year, consistent with the re-
20 quirements of the Government Perform-
21 ance and Results Act of 1993 (GPRA), the
22 Secretary and the Under Secretary for
23 Transportation Security shall agree on a
24 performance plan for the succeeding 5
25 years that establishes measurable goals

1 and objectives for aviation security. The
2 plan shall identify action steps necessary to
3 achieve such goals.

I26

4 “(ii) In addition to meeting the require-
5 ments of GPRA, the performance plan should
6 clarify the responsibilities of the Secretary, the
7 Under Secretary for Transportation Security
8 and any other agency or organization that may
9 have a role in ensuring the safety and security
10 of the civil air transportation system.

I24

11 “(B) PERFORMANCE REPORT.—(i) Each
12 year, consistent with the requirements of
13 GPRA, the Under Secretary for Transportation
14 Security shall prepare and submit to Congress
15 an annual report including an evaluation of the 16 extent goals and objectives were met. The re-
17 port shall include the results achieved during 18 the year relative to the goals established in the
19 performance plan.

20 “§ 44943. Performance management system

21 “(a) ESTABLISHING A FAIR AND EQUITABLE SYS-

25 the organization’s effectiveness by providing for the estab-

1 lishment of goals and objectives for managers, employees,
2 and organizational performance consistent with the per-
3 formance plan.

4 "(b) ESTABLISHING MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTABILITY
5 FOR MEETING PERFORMANCE GOALS.—

6 "(1) Each year, the Secretary and Under Sec-
7 retary for Transportation Security shall enter into
8 an annual performance agreement that shall set
9 forth organizational and individual performance
10 goals for the Under Secretary.

11 "(2) Each year, the Under Secretary for ~~Transportation Security~~
12 ~~and each senior manager who reports to~~
13 ~~the Under Secretary for Transportation Security~~ shall
14 enter into an annual performance agreement that sets
15 forth organization and individual goals for those man-
16 agers. All other employees hired under the authority of 17 the Under Secretary for ~~Transportation Security~~ shall
18 enter into an annual performance agreement that sets
19 forth organization and individual goals for those employ-
20 ees.

21 "(c) PERFORMANCE-BASED SERVICE CON-
22 TRACTING.—To the extent contracts, if any, are used to
23 implement the Aviation Security Act, the Under Secretary
24 for Transportation Security shall, to the extent practical,
25 maximize the use of performance-based service contracts.

1 These contracts should be consistent with guidelines pub-
2 lished by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy.”.

3 SEC. 129. VOLUNTARY PROVISION OF EMERGENCY SERV-
4 ICES DURING COMMERCIAL FLIGHTS.

5 (a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter II of chapter 449 of
6 title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the
7 end the following new section:

8 “§ 44944. Voluntary provision of emergency services

9 “(a) PROGRAM FOR PROVISION OF VOLUNTARY
10 SERVICES.—

11 “(1) PROGRAM.—The Under Secretary of
12 Transportation for Transportation Security shall
13 carry out a program to permit qualified law enforce-
14 ment officers, firefighters, and emergency medical
15 technicians to provide emergency services on com-
16 mercial air flights during emergencies.

17 “(2) REQUIREMENTS.—The Under Secretary
18 shall establish such requirements for qualifications
19 of providers of voluntary services under the program
20 under paragraph (1), including training require-
21 ments, as the Under Secretary considers appro-
22 priate.

23 “(3) CONFIDENTIALITY OF REGISTRY.—If as
24 part of the program under paragraph (1) the Under
25 Secretary requires or permits registration of law en-

1 enforcement officers, firefighters, or emergency med-
2 ical technicians who are willing to provide emergency
3 services on commercial flights during emergencies,
4 the Under Secretary shall take appropriate actions
5 to ensure that the registry is available only to appro-
6 priate airline personnel and otherwise remains con-
7 fidential.

8 “(4) CONSULTATION.—The Under Secretary
9 shall consult with appropriate representatives of the 10 commercial airline industry, and organizations rep-
11 resenting community-based law enforcement, fire-
12 fighters, and emergency medical technicians, in car-
13 rying out the program under paragraph (1), includ-
14 ing the actions taken under paragraph (3).

15 “(b) EXEMPTION FROM LIABILITY.—An individual
16 shall not be liable for damages in any action brought in
17 a Federal or State court that arises from an act or omis-
18 sion of the individual in providing or attempting to provide
19 assistance in the case of an in-flight emergency in an air-
20 craft of an air carrier if the individual meets such quali-
21 fications as the Under Secretary shall prescribe for pur-
22 poses of this section.

23 “(c) EXCEPTION.—The exemption under subsection
24 (b) shall not apply in any case in which an individual pro-
25 vides, or attempts to provide, assistance described in that

~~98~~

1 paragraph in a manner that constitutes gross negligence
2 or willful misconduct.”.

3 (b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections
4 at the beginning of such chapter is amended by adding
5 at the end the following new item:

“44944. Voluntary provision of emergency services”.

6 (c) CONSTRUCTION REGARDING POSSESSION OF
7 FIREARMS.—Nothing in this section may be construed to
8 require any modification of regulations of the Department
9 of Transportation governing the possession of firearms
10 while in aircraft or air transportation facilities or to au-
11 thorize the possession of a firearm in an aircraft or any
12 such facility not authorized under those regulations.

132) 13 SEC. 13. GENERAL AVIATION AND AIR CHARTERS.

14 (a) AIR CHARTER PROGRAM.—Within 90 days after
15 the date of enactment of this Act, the Under Secretary
16 of Transportation for Transportation Security shall imple-
17 ment an aviation security program for charter air carriers
18 (as defined in section 40102(a)(13) of title 49, United 19 States Code) with a maximum ~~certified~~ takeoff weight of 20 12,500 pounds or more.

4 Section 44903 of title 49, United States Code, is
5 amended by adding at the end the following:

6 “(h) AUTHORITY TO ARM FLIGHT DECK CREW WITH
7 LESS-THAN-LETHAL WEAPONS.—

8 “(1) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary, after re-
9 ceiving the recommendations of the National Insti-
10 tute of Justice, determines, with the approval of the 11 Attorney General and the Secretary of State, that it
12 is appropriate and necessary and would effectively
13 serve the public interest in avoiding air piracy, the
14 Secretary may authorize members of the flight deck
15 crew on any aircraft providing air transportation or
16 intrastate air transportation to carry a less-than-le-
17 thal weapon while the aircraft is engaged in pro-
18 viding such transportation.

19 “(2) USAGE.—If the Secretary grants authority
20 under paragraph (1) for flight deck crew members
21 to carry a less-than-lethal weapon while engaged in
22 providing air transportation or intrastate air trans-
23 portation, the Secretary shall—

Insert to p. 99

- 1 (2) an air carrier that transports mail under a
- 2 contract with the United States Postal Service
- 3 should transport any animal that the Postal Service
- 4 allows to be shipped through the mail.

1 ment, the Under Secretary for Transportation Secu-
2 rity shall—

3 “(A) review the effectiveness of biometrics
4 systems currently in use at several United
5 States airports, including San Francisco Inter-
6 national;

7 “(B) review the effectiveness of increased
8 surveillance at access points;

9 “(C) review the effectiveness of card- or
10 keypad-based access systems;

11 “(D) review the effectiveness of airport
12 emergency exit systems and determine whether
13 those that lead to secure areas of the airport
14 should be monitored or how breaches can be
15 swiftly responded to; and

16 “(E) specifically target the elimination of
17 the “piggy-backing” phenomenon, where an-
18 other person follows an authorized person
19 through the access point.

20 The 6-month assessment shall include a 12-month
21 deployment strategy for currently available tech-
22 nology at all category X airports, as defined in the 23 Federal Aviation Administration approved air carrier
24 security programs required under part 108 of title
25 14, Code of Federal Regulations. Not later than 18

1 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the
2 Secretary of Transportation shall conduct a review
3 of reductions in unauthorized access at these air-
4 ports.

5 “(2) COMPUTER-ASSISTED PASSENGER
6 PRESCREENING SYSTEM.—

7 “(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of
8 Transportation shall ensure that the Computer-
9 Assisted Passenger Prescreening System, or
10 any successor system—

11 “(i) is used to evaluate all passengers
12 before they board an aircraft; and

13 “(ii) includes procedures to ensure
14 that individuals selected by the system and 15 their carry-on and checked baggage are
16 adequately screened.

17 “(B) MODIFICATIONS.—The Secretary of
18 Transportation may modify any requirement
19 under the Computer-Assisted Passenger
20 Prescreening System for flights that originate
21 and terminate within the same State, if the
22 Secretary determines that—

23 “(i) the State has extraordinary air
24 transportation needs or concerns due to its

1 isolation and dependence on air transpor-
2 tation; and

3 "(ii) the routine characteristics of
4 passengers, given the nature of the market,
5 regularly triggers primary selectee status.

137 } 6 SEC. —. RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT OF AVIATION
7 SECURITY TECHNOLOGY.

8 (a) FUNDING.—To augment the programs authorized
9 in section 44912(a)(1) of title 49, United States Code,
10 there is authorized to be appropriated an additional
11 $50,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2002 through 2006
12 and such sums as are necessary for each fiscal year there-
13 after to the Transportation Security Administration, for
14 research, development, testing, and evaluation of the fol-
15 lowing technologies which may enhance aviation security
16 in the future. Grants to industry, academia, and Govern-
17 ment entities to carry out the provisions of this section
18 shall be available for fiscal years 2002 and 2003 for—

19 (1) the acceleration of research, development,
20 testing, and evaluation of explosives detection tech-
21 nology for checked baggage, specifically, technology
22 that is—

23 (A) more cost-effective for deployment for
24 explosives detection in checked baggage at
25 small- to medium-sized airports, and is cur-

1 rently under development as part of the Argus
2 research program at the Transportation Secu-
3 rity Administration;

4 (B) faster, to facilitate screening of all
5 checked baggage at larger airports; or

6 (C) more accurate, to reduce the number
7 of false positives requiring additional security
8 measures;

9 (2) acceleration of research, development, test-
10 ing, and evaluation of new screening technology for 11 carry-on items to provide more effective means of 12 detecting and identifying weapons, explosives, and
13 components of weapons of mass destruction, includ-
14 ing advanced x-ray technology;

15 (3) acceleration of research, development, test-
16 ing, and evaluation of threat screening technology
17 for other categories of items being loaded onto air-
18 craft, including cargo, catering, and duty-free items;

19 (4) acceleration of research, development, test-
20 ing, and evaluation of threats carried on persons
21 boarding aircraft or entering secure areas, including
22 detection of weapons, explosives, and components of
23 weapons of mass destruction;

24 (5) acceleration of research, development, test-
25 ing and evaluation of integrated systems of airport

ST

1 security enhancement, including quantitative meth-
2 ods of assessing security factors at airports selected
3 for testing such systems;

4 (6) expansion of the existing program of re-
5 search, development, testing, and evaluation of im-
6 proved methods of education, training, and testing
7 of key airport security personnel; and

8 (7) acceleration of research, development, test-
9 ing, and evaluation of aircraft hardening materials,
10 and techniques to reduce the vulnerability of aircraft
11 to terrorist attack.

12 (b) GRANTS.—Grants awarded under this subtitle
13 shall identify potential outcomes of the research, and pro-
14 pose a method for quantitatively assessing effective in-15 creases in security upon completion of the research pro-
16 gram. At the conclusion of each grant, the grant recipient
17 shall submit a final report to the Transportation Security
18 Administration that shall include sufficient information to 19 permit the Under Secretary to prepare a cost-benefit anal-
20 ysis of potential improvements to airport security based 21 upon deployment of the proposed technology. The Under 22 Secretary shall begin awarding grants under this subtitle
23 within 90 days of the date of enactment of this Act.

24 (c) BUDGET SUBMISSION.—A budget submission and 25 detailed strategy for deploying the identified security up-

of Transportat
Security

1 grades recommended upon completion of the grants
2 awarded under subsection (b), shall be submitted to Con-
3 gress as part of the Department of Transportation's an-
4 nual budget submission.

5 (d) DEFENSE RESEARCH.—There is authorized to be 6 appropriated $20,000,000 to the Transportation Security
7 Administration to issue research grants in conjunction 8 with the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency.
9 Grants may be awarded under this section for—

10 (1) research and development of longer-term
11 improvements to airport security, including advanced
12 weapons detection;

13 (2) secure networking and sharing of threat in-
14 formation between Federal agencies, law enforce-
15 ment entities, and other appropriate parties;

16 (3) advances in biometrics for identification and 17 threat assessment; or

18 (4) other technologies for preventing acts of ter-
19 rorism in aviation.

2 such crew member be trained in the proper use
3 of the weapon; and

4 “(B) prescribe guidelines setting forth the 5 circumstances under which such weapons may 6 be used.”.

127 } 7 SEC. 123. MAIL AND FREIGHT WAIVERS.

8 (a) IN GENERAL.—During a national emergency af-
9 fecting air transportation or intrastate air transportation,
10 the Secretary of Transportation, after consultation with
11 the Transportation Security Oversight Board, may grant
12 a complete or partial waiver of any restrictions on the car-
13 riage by aircraft of freight, mail, emergency medical sup-
14 plies, personnel, or patients on aircraft, imposed by the 15 Department of Transportation (or other Federal agency
16 or department) that would permit such carriage of freight,
17 mail, emergency medical supplies, personnel, or patients
18 on flights, to, from, or within a State if the Secretary de-
19 termines that—

20 (1) extraordinary air transportation needs or
21 concerns exist; and —

22 (2) the waiver is in the public interest, taking
23 into consideration the isolation of and dependence on
24 air transportation of the State.

1 (b) RECORDS OF EMPLOYMENT OF PILOT APPLI-
2 CANTS.—Part A of subtitle VII is amended—

3 (1) by moving subsections (f), (g), and (h) of 4 section 44936 from section 44936, inserting them at 5 the end of section 44703, and redesignating them as

17 SEC. 141. SAVINGS PROVISION.

18 (a) TRANSFER OF ASSETS AND PERSONNEL.—Ex-
19 cept as otherwise provided in this Act, those personnel,
20 property, and records employed, used, held, available, or
21 to be made available in connection with a function trans-
22 ferred to the Transportation Security Administration by
23 this Act shall be transferred to the Transportation Secu-
24 rity Administration for use in connection with the func-
25 tions transferred. Unexpended balances of appropriations.

1 allocations, and other funds made available to the Federal
2 Aviation Administration to carry out such functions shall
3 also be transferred to the Transportation Security Admin-
4 istration for use in connection with the functions trans-
5 ferred.

6 (b) LEGAL DOCUMENTS.—All orders, determinations,
7 rules, regulations, permits, grants, loans, contracts, settle-
8 ments, agreements, certificates, licenses, and privileges—

9 (1) that have been issued, made, granted, or al-
10 lowed to become effective by the Federal Aviation
11 Administration, any officer or employee thereof, or
12 any other Government official, or by a court of com-
13 petent jurisdiction, in the performance of any func-
14 tion that is transferred by this Act; and

15 (2) that are in effect on the effective date of 16 such transfer (or become effective after such date
17 pursuant to their terms as in effect on such effective
18 date), shall continue in effect according to their
19 terms until modified, terminated, superseded, set
20 aside, or revoked in accordance with law by the 21 Under Secretary of Transportation for Security, any
22 other authorized official, a court of competent juris-
23 diction, or operation of law.

24 (c) PROCEEDINGS.—

1 (1) IN GENERAL.—The provisions of this Act
2 shall not affect any proceedings or any application
3 for any license pending before the Federal Aviation
4 Administration at the time this Act takes effect, in-
5 sofar as those functions are transferred by this Act;
6 but such proceedings and applications, to the extent
7 that they relate to functions so transferred, shall be
8 continued. Orders shall be issued in such pro-
9 ceedings, appeals shall be taken therefrom, and pay-
10 ments shall be made pursuant to such orders, as if 11 this Act had not been enacted; and orders issued in 12 any such proceedings shall continue in effect until
13 modified, terminated, superseded, or revoked by a
14 duly authorized official, by a court of competent ju-
15 risdiction, or by operation of law.

16 (2) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in
17 this subsection shall be deemed to prohibit the dis-
18 continuance or modification of any proceeding de-
19 scribed in paragraph (1) under the same terms and
20 conditions and to the same extent that such pro-
21 ceeding could have been discontinued or modified if
22 this Act had not been enacted.

23 (3) ORDERLY TRANSFER.—The Secretary of
24 Transportation is authorized to provide for the or-

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20541

1 derly transfer of pending proceedings from the Fed-
2 eral Aviation Administration.

3 (d) SUITS.—

4 (1) IN GENERAL.—This Act shall not affect
5 suits commenced before the date of the enactment of
6 this Act, except as provided in paragraphs (2) and
7 (3). In all such suits, proceeding shall be had, ap-
8 peals taken, and judgments rendered in the same
9 manner and with the same effect as if this Act had
10 not been enacted.

11 (2) SUITS BY OR AGAINST FAA.—Any suit by or
12 against the Federal Aviation Administration begun
13 before the date of the enactment of this Act shall be
14 continued, insofar as it involves a function retained
15 and transferred under this Act, with the Transpor-
16 tation Security Administration (to the extent the
17 suit involves functions transferred to the Transpor-
18 tation Security Administration under this Act) sub-
19 stituted for the Federal Aviation Administration.

20 (3) REMANDED CASES.—If the court in a suit
21 described in paragraph (1) remands a case to the
22 Transportation Security Administration, subsequent
23 proceedings related to such case shall proceed in ac-
24 cordance with applicable law and regulations as in
25 effect at the time of such subsequent proceedings.

1 (e) CONTINUANCE OF ACTIONS AGAINST OFFI-
2 CERS.—No suit, action, or other proceeding commenced
3 by or against any officer in his official capacity as an offi-
4 cer of the Federal Aviation Administration shall abate by
5 reason of the enactment of this Act. No cause of action
6 by or against the Federal Aviation Administration, or by
7 or against any officer thereof in his official capacity, shall
8 abate by reason of the enactment of this Act.

9 (f) EXERCISE OF AUTHORITIES.—Except as other-
10 wise provided by law, an officer or employee of the Trans-
11 portation Security Administration may, for purposes of 12 performing a function transferred by this Act or the
13 amendments made by this Act, exercise all authorities
14 under any other provision of law that were available with 15 respect to the performance of that function to the official
16 responsible for the performance of the function imme-
17 diately before the effective date of the transfer of the func-
18 tion under this Act.

19 (g) ACT DEFINED.—In this section, the term “Act”
20 includes the amendments made by this Act.

21 SEC. 142. BUDGET SUBMISSIONS.

22 The President’s budget submission for fiscal year
23 2003 and each fiscal year thereafter shall reflect the estab-
24 lishment of the Transportation Security Administration.

1 SEC. 143. LAND ACQUISITION COSTS.

2 In the case of a grant for land acquisition issued to
3 an airport under chapter 471 of title 49, United States
4 Code, prior to January 1, 1995, the Secretary of Trans-
5 portation may waive the provisions of section 47108 of
6 such title and provide an upward adjustment in the max-
7 imum obligation of the United States under that chapter
8 to assist the airport in funding land acquisition costs (and 9 associated eligible costs) that increased as a result of a
10 judicial order.

11 SEC. 144. LIMITATION ON LIABILITY FOR ACTS TO THWART
12 CRIMINAL VIOLENCE OR AIRCRAFT PIRACY.

13 Section 44903 is amended by adding at the end the
14 following:

15 "(h) LIMITATION ON LIABILITY FOR ACTS TO
16 THWART CRIMINAL VIOLENCE OR AIRCRAFT PIRACY.—
17 An individual shall not be liable for damages in any action
18 brought in a Federal or State court arising out of the acts
19 of the individual in attempting to thwart an act of criminal
20 violence or piracy on an aircraft if that individual reason-
21 ably believed that such an act of criminal violence or pi-
22 racy was occurring or was about to occur."

23 SEC. 145. AIR CARRIERS REQUIRED TO HONOR TICKETS
24 FOR SUSPENDED SERVICE.

25 (a) IN GENERAL.—Each air carrier that provides
26 scheduled air transportation on a route shall provide, to

1 the extent practicable, air transportation to passengers
2 ticketed for air transportation on that route by any other
3 air carrier that suspends, interrupts, or discontinues air
4 passenger service on the route by reason of insolvency or
5 bankruptcy of the other air carrier.

6 (b) PASSENGER OBLIGATION.—An air carrier is not
7 required to provide air transportation under subsection (a)
8 to a passenger unless that passenger makes alternative ar-
9 rangements with the air carrier for such transportation
10 within 60 days after the date on which that passenger's
11 air transportation was suspended, interrupted, or discon-
12 tinued (without regard to the originally scheduled travel
13 date on the ticket).

14 (c) SUNSET.—This section does not apply to air
15 transportation the suspension, interruption, or discontinu-
16 ance of which occurs more than 18 months after the date
17 of enactment of this Act.

18 SEC. 146. AIRCRAFT OPERATIONS IN ENHANCED CLASS B
19 AIRSPACE.

20 Upon request of an operator of an aircraft affected
21 by the restrictions imposed under Notice to Airmen FDC
22 1/0618 issued by the Federal Aviation Administration, or 23 any other notice issued after September 11, 2001, and
24 prior to the date of enactment of this Act that restricts
25 the ability of United States registered aircraft to conduct

1 operations under part 91 of title 14, Code of Federal Reg-
2 ulations, in enhanced class B airspace (as defined by such
3 Notice), such restrictions shall cease to be in effect for
4 the affected class of operator beginning on the 30th day
5 following the request, unless the Secretary of Transpor-
6 tation publishes a notice in the Federal Register before
7 such 30th day reimposing the restriction and explaining
8 the reasons for the restriction.

9 SEC. 147. AVIATION WAR RISK INSURANCE.

10 Section 44306(b) of title 49, United States Code, is 11 amended by striking "60 days" each place it appears and
12 inserting "1 year".

13 TITLE II—LIABILITY LIMITATION

14 SEC. 201. AIR TRANSPORTATION SAFETY AND SYSTEM STA-
15 BILIZATION ACT AMENDMENTS.

16 (a) RECOVERY OF COLLATERAL SOURCE OBLIGA-
17 TIONS OF TERRORISTS.—Section 405(c)(3)(B)(i) of the 18 Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act
19 (49 U.S.C. 40101 note) is amended by striking "obliga-
20 tions." and inserting "obligations, or to a civil action
21 against any person who is a knowing participant in any
22 conspiracy to hijack any aircraft or commit any terrorist
23 act.".

1 (b) EXTENSION OF LIABILITY RELIEF TO AIRCRAFT
2 MANUFACTURERS AND OTHERS.—Section 408 of that Act
3 is amended—

4 (1) by striking “air carrier” in the section
5 heading;

6 (2) by striking subsection (a) and inserting the
7 following:

8 “(a) IN GENERAL.—

9 “(1) LIABILITY LIMITED TO INSURANCE COV-
10 ERAGE.—Notwithstanding any other provision of
11 law, liability for all claims, whether for compen-
12 satory or punitive damages or for contribution or in-
13 demnity, arising from the terrorist-related aircraft
14 crashes of September 11, 2001, against an air car-
15 rier, aircraft manufacturer, airport sponsor, or per-
16 son with a property interest in the World Trade
17 Center, on September 11, 2001, whether fee simple,
18 leasehold or easement, direct or indirect, or their di-
19 rectors, officers, employees, or agents, shall not be 20 in an amount greater than the limits of liability in-
21 surance coverage maintained by that air carrier, air-
22 craft manufacturer, airport sponsor, or person.

23 “(2) WILLFUL DEFAULTS ON REBUILDING OB-
24 LIGATION.—Paragraph (1) does not apply to any
25 such person with a property interest in the World

1 Trade Center if the Attorney General determines.
2 after notice and an opportunity for a hearing on the
3 record, that the person has defaulted willfully on a
4 contractual obligation to rebuild, or assist in the re-
5 building of, the World Trade Center.

6 “(3) LIMITATIONS ON LIABILITY FOR NEW
7 YORK CITY.—Liability for all claims, whether for
8 compensatory or punitive damages or for contribu-
9 tion or indemnity arising from the terrorist-related
10 aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001, against the
11 City of New York shall not exceed the greater of the 12 city’s insurance coverage or $350,000,000. If a
13 claimant who is eligible to seek compensation under
14 section 405 of this Act, submits a claim under sec-
15 tion 405, the claimant waives the right to file a civil 16 action (or to be a party to an action) in any Federal 17 or State court for damages sustained as a result of
18 the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September
19 11, 2001, including any such action against the City
20 of New York. The preceding sentence does not apply
21 to a civil action to recover collateral source obliga-
22 tions.”; and

23 (3) by adding at the end of subsection (c) the 24 following: “Subsections (a) and (b) do not apply to
25 civil actions to recover collateral source obligations.

1 Nothing in this section shall in any way limit any li-
2 ability of any person who is engaged in the business
3 of providing air transportation security and who is
4 not an airline or airport sponsor or director, officer,
5 or employee of an airline or airport sponsor.”.

6 (c) LIMITATION OF UNITED STATES SUBROGATION
7 RIGHT.—Section 409 of that Act is amended by striking
8 “title.” and inserting “title, subject to the limitations de-
9 scribed in section 408.”.

10 (d) DEFINITIONS.—Section 402 of that Act is 11 amended—

12 (1) by adding at the end of paragraph (1) the 13 following: “The term ‘air carrier’ does not include a
14 person, other than an air carrier, engaged in the 15 business of providing air transportation security.”.

16 (2) by redesignating paragraphs (3) through
17 (8) as paragraphs (5) through (10), respectively;
18 and

19 (3) by inserting after paragraph (2) the fol-
20 lowing:

21 “(3) AIRCRAFT MANUFACTURER.—The term
22 ‘aircraft manufacturer’ means any entity that manu-
23 factured the aircraft or any parts or components of 24 the aircraft involved in the terrorist related aircraft

1 crashes of September 11, 2001, including employees
2 and agents of that entity.

3 “(4) AIRPORT SPONSOR.—The term ‘airport
4 sponsor’ means the owner or operator of an airport
5 (as defined in section 40102 of title 49, United 6 States Code).”.

1 parking lot, or vendor of on-airfield direct services under
2 this section for any cost for which the airport operator,
3 on-airport parking lot, or vendor of on-airfield direct serv-
4 ices does not demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Sec-
5 retary, using sworn financial statements or other appro-
6 priate data, that—

7 (1) the cost is eligible for reimbursement under
8 subsection (a); and

9 (2) the cost was incurred by the airport oper-
10 ator, on-airport parking lot, or vendor of on-airfield
11 direct services.

12 The Inspector General of the Department of Transpor-
13 tation and the Comptroller General of the United States
14 may audit such statements and may request any other in-
15 formation ~~that~~ necessary to conduct such an audit.

16 (c) CLAIM PROCEDURE.—Within 30 days after the
17 date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary, after con-
18 sultation with airport operators, on-airport parking lots,
19 and vendors of on-airfield direct services, shall publish in 20 the Federal Register the procedures for filing claims for 21 reimbursement under this section of eligible costs incurred
22 by airport operators.

1 (c) DEADLINE FOR DEPLOYMENT OF FEDERAL
2 SCREENERS.—

3 (1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after
4 the date of enactment of this Act, the Under Sec-
5 retary of Transportation for Security shall deploy at 6 all airports in the United States where screening is 7 required under section 44901 of title 49, United
8 States Code, a sufficient number of Federal screen-
9 ers, Federal Security Managers, Federal security
10 personnel, and Federal law enforcement officers to 11 conduct the screening of all passengers and property
12 under section 44901 of such title at such airports.

13 (2) CERTIFICATION TO CONGRESS.—Not later
14 than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act,
15 the Under Secretary shall transmit to Congress a 16 certification that the requirement of paragraph (1)
17 has been met.

1 Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transpor-
2 tation of the Senate and to the Committee on Trans-
3 portation and Infrastructure of the House of Rep-
4 resentatives on the deployment of the systems re-
5 quired by section 44901(c) of title 49, United States
6 Code. The Under Secretary shall include in the 7 report—

8 (A) an installation schedule;

9 (B) the dates of installation of each sys-
10 tem; and

11 (C) the date on which each system in-
12 stalled is operational.

13 (2) SCREENING OF SMALL AIRCRAFT.—Within 14 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the 15 Under Secretary of Transportation for Security shall 16 transmit a report to the Committee on Commerce,
17 Science, and Transportation of the Senate and Com-
18 mittee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the 19 House of Representatives on the screening require-
20 ments applicable to passengers boarding, and prop-
21 erty being carried aboard, aircraft with 60 seats or 22 less used in scheduled passenger service with rec-
23 ommendations for any necessary changes in those 24 requirements.

111) 1 SEC. 109. TRAINING AND EMPLOYMENT OF SECURITY

2 SCREENING PERSONNEL.

3 (a) IN GENERAL.—Section 44935 of title 49, United
4 States Code, is amended—

5 (1) by redesignating subsection (f) as sub-
6 section (i); and

7 (2) by striking subsection (e) and inserting the
8 following:

9 “(e) SECURITY SCREENERS.—

10 “(1) TRAINING PROGRAM.—The Under Sec-
11 retary of Transportation for Security shall establish 12 a program for the hiring and training of security
13 screening personnel.

14 “(2) HIRING.—

15 “(A) QUALIFICATIONS.—Within 30 days
16 after the date of enactment of the Aviation and
17 Transportation Security Act, the Under Sec-
18 retary shall establish qualification standards for 19 individuals to be hired by the United States as 20 security screening personnel. Notwithstanding
21 any provision of law, those standards shall re-
22 quire, at a minimum, an individual—

23 “(i) to have a satisfactory or better
24 score on a Federal security screening per-
25 sonnel selection examination;

1 “(ii) to be a citizen of the United
2 States;

3 “(iii) to meet, at a minimum, the re-
4 quirements set forth in subsection (f);

5 “(iv) to meet such other qualifications
6 as the Under Secretary may establish; and

7 “(v) to have the ability to demonstrate
8 daily a fitness for duty without any impair-
9 ment due to illegal drugs, sleep depriva-
10 tion, medication, or alcohol.

11 “(B) BACKGROUND CHECKS.—The Under
12 Secretary shall require that an individual to be 13 hired as a security screener undergo an employ-
14 ment investigation (including a criminal history
15 record check) under section 44936(a)(1).

16 “(C) DISQUALIFICATION OF INDIVIDUALS
17 WHO PRESENT NATIONAL SECURITY RISKS.—
18 The Under Secretary, in consultation with the 19 heads of other appropriate Federal agencies,
20 shall establish procedures, in addition to any 21 background check conducted under section
22 44936, to ensure that no individual who pre-
23 sents a threat to national security is employed
24 as a security screener.

1 “(3) EXAMINATION; REVIEW OF EXISTING
2 RULES.—The Under Secretary shall develop a secu-
3 rity screening personnel examination for use in de-
4 termining the qualification of individuals seeking 5 employment as security screening personnel. The 6 Under Secretary shall also review, and revise as nec-
7 essary, any standard, rule, or regulation governing
8 the employment of individuals as security screening
9 personnel.

10 “(f) EMPLOYMENT STANDARDS FOR SCREENING
11 PERSONNEL.—

12 “(1) SCREENER REQUIREMENTS.—Notwith-
13 standing any provision of law, an individual may not 14 be deployed as a security screener unless that indi-
15 vidual meets the following requirements:

16 “(A) The individual shall possess a high
17 school diploma, a general equivalency diploma,
18 or experience that the Under Secretary has de-
19 termined to be sufficient for the individual to 20 perform the duties of the position.

21 “(B) The individual shall possess basic ap-
22 titudes and physical abilities, including color
23 perception, visual and aural acuity, physical co-
24 ordination, and motor skills, to the following
25 standards:

1 “(i) Screeners operating screening
2 equipment shall be able to distinguish on
3 the screening equipment monitor the ap-
4 propriate imaging standard specified by 5 the Under Secretary. Wherever the screen-
6 ing equipment system displays colors, the 7 operator shall be able to perceive each
8 color.

9 “(ii) Screeners operating any screen-
10 ing equipment shall be able to distinguish
11 each color displayed on every type of 12 screening equipment and explain what each
13 color signifies.

14 “(iii) Screeners shall be able to hear
15 and respond to the spoken voice and to au-
16 dible alarms generated by screening equip-
17 ment in an active checkpoint environment.

18 “(iv) Screeners performing physical 19 searches or other related operations shall 20 be able to efficiently and thoroughly ma-
21 nipulate and handle such baggage, con-
22 tainers, and other objects subject to secu-
23 rity processing.

24 “(v) Screeners who perform pat-downs
25 or hand-held metal detector searches of in-

1 individuals shall have sufficient dexterity and
2 capability to thoroughly conduct those pro-
3 cedures over a individual's entire body.

4 “(C) The individual shall be able to read,
5 speak, and write English well enough to—

6 “(i) carry out written and oral in-
7 structions regarding the proper perform-
8 ance of screening duties;

9 “(ii) read English language identifica-
10 tion media, credentials, airline tickets, and 11 labels on items normally encountered in 12 the screening process;

13 “(iii) provide direction to and under-
14 stand and answer questions from English-
15 speaking individuals undergoing screening;
16 and

17 “(iv) write incident reports and state-
18 ments and log entries into security records
19 in the English language.

20 “(D) The individual shall have satisfac-
21 torily completed all initial, recurrent, and ap-
22 propriate specialized training required by the 23 security program, except as provided in para-
24 graph (3).

1 “(2) VETERANS PREFERENCE.—The Under
2 Secretary shall provide a preference for the hiring of 3 an individual as a security screener if the individual
4 is a member or former member of the armed forces
5 and if the individual is entitled, under statute, to re-
6 tired, retirement, or retainer pay on account of serv-
7 ice as a member of the armed forces.

8 “(3) EXCEPTIONS.—An individual who has not
9 completed the training required by this section may 10 be deployed during the on-the-job portion of training
11 to perform functions if that individual—

12 “(A) is closely supervised; and 13 “(B) does not make independent judg-

14 ments as to whether individuals or property
15 may enter a sterile area or aircraft without fur-
16 ther inspection.

17 “(4) REMEDIAL TRAINING.—No individual em-
18 ployed as a security screener may perform a screen-
19 ing function after that individual has failed an oper-
20 ational test related to that function until that indi-
21 vidual has successfully completed the remedial train-
22 ing specified in the security program.

23 “(5) ANNUAL PROFICIENCY REVIEW.—The
24 Under Secretary shall provide that an annual eval-
25 uation of each individual assigned screening duties is

1 conducted and documented. An individual employed
2 as a security screener may not continue to be em-
3 ployed in that capacity unless the evaluation dem-
4 onstrates that the individual—

5 “(A) continues to meet all qualifications
6 and standards required to perform a screening
7 function;

8 “(B) has a satisfactory record of perform-
9 ance and attention to duty based on the stand-
10 ards and requirements in the security program;
11 and

12 “(C) demonstrates the current knowledge
13 and skills necessary to courteously, vigilantly,
14 and effectively perform screening functions.

15 “(6) OPERATIONAL TESTING.—In addition to 16 the annual proficiency review conducted under para-
17 graph (5), the Under Secretary shall provide for the 18 operational testing of such personnel.

19 “(g) TRAINING.—

20 “(1) USE OF OTHER AGENCIES.—The Under 21 Secretary may enter into a memorandum of under-
22 standing or other arrangement with any other Fed-
23 eral agency or department with appropriate law en-
24 forcement responsibilities, to provide personnel, re-

1 sources, or other forms of assistance in the training
2 of security screening personnel.

3 “(2) TRAINING PLAN.—Within 60 days after
4 the date of enactment of the Aviation and Transpor-
5 tation Security Act, the Under Secretary shall de-
6 velop a plan for the training of security screening
7 personnel. The plan shall require, at a minimum,
8 that a security screener—

9 “(A) has completed 40 hours of classroom
10 instruction or successfully completed a program
11 that the Under Secretary determines will train
12 individuals to a level of proficiency equivalent to 13 the level that would be achieved by such class-
14 room instruction;

15 “(B) has completed 60 hours of on-the-job
16 instruction; and

17 “(C) has successfully completed an on-the-18 job training examination prescribed by the 19 Under Secretary.

20 “(3) EQUIPMENT-SPECIFIC TRAINING.—An in-
21 dividual employed as a security screener may not use
22 any security screening device or equipment in the 23 scope of that individual’s employment unless the in-
24 dividual has been trained on that device or equip-

23 2002 if the fee or grant is to be used to improve se-
24 curity at a covered airport.”.

1 ment and has successfully completed a test on the
2 use of the device or equipment.

3 “(h) TECHNOLOGICAL TRAINING.—

4 “(1) IN GENERAL.—The Under Secretary shall
5 require training to ensure that screeners are pro-
6 ficient in using the most up-to-date new technology
7 and to ensure their proficiency in recognizing new 8 threats and weapons.

9 “(2) PERIODIC ASSESSMENTS.—The Under
10 Secretary shall make periodic assessments to deter-
11 mine if there are dual use items and inform security
12 screening personnel of the existence of such items.

13 “(3) CURRENT LISTS OF DUAL USE ITEMS.—
14 Current lists of dual use items shall be part of the 15 ongoing training for screeners.

16 “(4) DUAL USE DEFINED.—For purposes of 17 this subsection, the term ‘dual use’ item means an 18 item that may seem harmless but that may be used
19 as a weapon.

20 “(i) LIMITATION ON RIGHT TO STRIKE.—An indi-
21 vidual that screens passengers or property, or both, at an 22 airport under this section may not participate in a strike,
23 or assert the right to strike, against the person (including 24 a governmental entity) employing such individual to per-
25 form such screening.

1 “(j) UNIFORMS.—The Under Secretary shall require
2 any individual who screens passengers and property pur-
3 suant to section 44901 to be attired while on duty in a
4 uniform approved by the Under Secretary.”.

5 (b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section
6 44936(a)(1) of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

7 (1) in subparagraph (A) by inserting “as a se-
8 curity screener under section 44935(e) or a posi-
9 tion” after “a position”; and

10 (2) in subparagraph (E) by striking clause (iv).

11 (c) TRANSITION.—The Under Secretary of Trans-
12 portation for Security shall complete the full implementa-
13 tion of section 44935 (e), (f), (g), and (h) of title 49,
14 United States Code, as amended by subsection (a), as soon
15 as is practicable. The Under Secretary may make or con-
16 tinue such arrangements for the training of security
17 screeners under that section as the ~~Attorney General~~ de-18 termines necessary pending full implementation of that 19 section as so amended.

20 (d) SCREENER PERSONNEL.—Notwithstanding any
21 other provision of law, the Under Secretary of Transpor-
22 tation for Security may employ, appoint, discipline, termi-
23 nate, and fix the compensation, terms, and conditions of 24 employment of Federal service for such a number of indi-
25 viduals as the Under Secretary determines to be necessary

5 AND DEVELOPMENT.—

6 (1) ADDITIONAL PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS.—

7 Subsection (a) of section 44912 of title 49, United
8 States Code, is amended—

9 (A) by redesignating paragraph (4) as 10 paragraph (5); and

11 (B) by inserting after paragraph (3) the 12 following new paragraph (4):

13 “(4)(A) In carrying out the program established
14 under this subsection, the Administrator shall designate
15 an individual to be responsible for engineering, research,
16 and development with respect to security technology under 17 the program.

18 “(B) The individual designated under subparagraph
19 (A) shall use appropriate systems engineering and risk
20 management models in making decisions regarding the al-
21 location of funds for engineering, research, and develop-
22 ment with respect to security technology under the pro-
23 gram.

24 “(C) The individual designated under subparagraph
25 (A) shall, on an annual basis, submit to the Research, En-

1 gineering and Development Advisory Committee a report
2 on activities under this paragraph during the preceding
3 year. Each report shall include, for the year covered by 4 such report, information on—

5 ~~“(i) progress made in engineering, research,~~
6 and development with respect to security technology;

7 ~~“(ii) the allocation of funds for engineering,~~
8 research, and development with respect to security

8 ~~“(3) SCIENTIFIC ADVISORY PANEL.—Subsection~~
9 (c) of that section is amended to read as follows:

10 ~~“(c) SCIENTIFIC ADVISORY PANEL.—(1) The Ad-~~
11 ministrator shall establish a scientific advisory panel, as 12 a subcommittee of the Research, Engineering, and Devel-
13 opment Advisory Committee, to review, comment on, ad-
14 vise the progress of, and recommend modifications in, the 15 program established under subsection (a) of this section,
16 including the need for long-range research programs to de-
17 tect and prevent catastrophic damage to commercial air-
18 craft, commercial aviation facilities, commercial aviation
19 personnel and passengers, and other components of the 20 commercial aviation system by the next generation of ter-
21 rorist weapons.

22 ~~“(2)(A) The advisory panel shall consist of individ-~~
23 uals who have scientific and technical expertise in—

24 ~~“(i) the development and testing of effective~~
25 explosive detection systems;

9 Section 44909 is amended by adding at the end the
10 following:

11 “(c) FLIGHTS IN FOREIGN AIR TRANSPORTATION TO 12 THE UNITED STATES.—

13 “(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 60 days
14 after the date of enactment of the Aviation and 15 Transportation Security Act, each air carrier and 16 foreign air carrier operating a passenger flight in 17 foreign air transportation to the United States shall 18 provide to the Commissioner of Customs by elec-
19 tronic transmission a passenger and crew manifest
20 containing the information specified in paragraph
21 (2). Carriers may use the advanced passenged infor-
22 mation system established under section 431 of the 23 Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1431) to provide the 24 information required by the preceding sentence.

1 “(2) INFORMATION.—A passenger and crew
2 manifest for a flight required under paragraph (1)
3 shall contain the following information:

4 “(A) The full name of each passenger and 5 crew member.

6 “(B) The date of birth and citizenship of 7 each passenger and crew member.

8 “(C) The sex of each passenger and crew
9 member.

10 “(D) The passport number and country of 11 issuance of each passenger and crew member if 12 required for travel.

13 “(E) The United States visa number or 14 resident alien card number of each passenger
15 and crew member, as applicable.

16 “(F) Such other information as the Under 17 Secretary, in consultation with the Commis-
18 sioner of Customs, determines is reasonably
19 necessary to ensure aviation safety.

20 “(3) PASSENGER NAME RECORDS.—The car-
21 riers shall make passenger name record information
22 available to the Customs Service upon request.

23 “(4) TRANSMISSION OF MANIFEST.—Subject to 24 paragraph (5), a passenger and crew manifest re-
25 quired for a flight under paragraph (1) shall be

1 transmitted to the Customs Service in advance of 2 the aircraft landing in the United States in such
3 manner, time, and form as the Customs Service pre-
4 scribes.

5 “(5) TRANSMISSION OF MANIFESTS TO OTHER
6 FEDERAL AGENCIES.—Upon request, information
7 provided to the Under Secretary or the Customs
8 Service under this subsection may be shared with

11 118) SEC. 148. AIR TRANSPORTATION ARRANGEMENTS IN CER-
12 TAIN STATES.

13 (a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any provision of 14 section 41309(a) of title 49, United States Code, to the 15 contrary, air carriers providing air transportation on 16 flights which both originate and terminate at points within 17 the same State may file an agreement, request, modifica-
18 tion, or cancellation of an agreement within the scope of 19 that section with the Secretary of Transportation upon a
20 declaration by the Governor of the State that such agree-
21 ment, request, modification, or cancellation is necessary
22 to ensure the continuing availability of such air transpor-
23 tation within that State.

24 (b) APPROVAL OF SECRETARY.—The Secretary may 25 approve any such agreement, request, modification, or

1 cancellation and grant an exemption under section
2 41308(c) of title 49, United States Code, to the extent
3 necessary to effectuate such agreement, request, modifica-
4 tion, or cancellation, without regard to the provisions of 5 section 41309(b) or (c) of that title.

6 (c) PUBLIC INTEREST REQUIREMENT.—The Sec-
7 retary may approve such an agreement, request, modifica-
8 tion, or cancellation if the Secretary determines that—

9 (1) the State to which it relates has extraor-
10 dinary air transportation needs and concerns; and 11 (2) approval is in the public interest.

12 (d) TERMINATION.—An approval under subsection
13 (b) and an exemption under section 41308(c) of title 49,
14 United States Code, granted under subsection (b) shall 15 terminate on the earlier of the 2 following dates:

16 (1) A date established by the Secretary in the 17 Secretary's discretion.

18 (2) October 1, 2002.

19 (e) EXTENSION.—Notwithstanding subsection (d), if 20 the Secretary determines that it is in the public interest,
21 the Secretary may extend the termination date under sub-
22 section (d)(2) until a date no later than October 1, 2003.

23 (f) REPORTS.—If the Secretary approves any such 24 agreement, request, modification, or cancellation under 25 this section and grants an exemption, the Secretary shall

1 transmit a report to Committee on Commerce, Science,
2 and Transportation of the Senate and the Committee on
3 Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Rep-
4 resentatives within 6 months describing what actions have 5 been taken by the air carriers to which the exemption was 6 granted. The Secretary shall also notify those committees
7 if the Secretary extends the termination date under sub-
8 section (e).

9 SEC. 117. AIRLINE COMPUTER RESERVATION SYSTEMS.

10 In order to ensure that all airline computer reserva-
11 tion systems maintained by United States air carriers are 12 secure from unauthorized access by persons seeking infor-
13 mation on reservations, passenger manifests, or other non-14 public information, the Secretary of Transportation shall 15 require all such air carriers to utilize to the maximum ex-
16 tent practicable the best technology available to secure
17 their computer reservation system against such unauthor-
18 ized access.

2 (a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter II of chapter 449 is
3 amended by adding at the end the following:

4 “§ 44940. Security service fee

5 “(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—

6 “(1) PASSENGER FEES.—The Under Secretary
7 of Transportation for Security shall impose a uni-
8 form fee, on passengers of air carriers and foreign 9 air carriers in air transportation and intrastate air
10 transportation originating at airports in the United 11 States, to pay for the following costs of providing 12 civil aviation security services:

13 “(A) Salary, benefits, overtime, retirement
14 and other costs of screening personnel, their su-
15 pervisors and managers, and Federal law en-
16 forcement personnel deployed at airport security
17 screening locations under section 44901.

18 “(B) The costs of training personnel de-
19 scribed in subparagraph (A), and the acquisi-
20 tion, operation, and maintenance of equipment
21 used by such personnel.

22 “(C) The costs of performing background
23 investigations of personnel described in sub-
24 paragraphs (A), (D), (F), and (G).

1 “(D) The costs of the Federal air marshals
2 program.

3 “(E) The costs of performing civil aviation
4 security research and development under this 5 title.

6 “(F) The costs of Federal Security Man-
7 agers under section 44903.

8 “(G) The costs of deploying Federal law
9 enforcement personnel pursuant to section
10 44903(h).

11 The amount of such costs shall be determined by the 12 Under Secretary and shall not be subject to judicial 13 review ~~and section 44903.~~

14 “(2) AIR CARRIER FEES.—

15 “(A) AUTHORITY.—In addition to the fee
16 imposed pursuant to paragraph (1), and only to 17 the extent that the Under Secretary estimates
18 that such fee will be insufficient to pay for the 19 costs of providing civil aviation security services
20 described in paragraph (1), the Under Sec-
21 retary may impose a fee on air carriers and for-
22 eign air carriers engaged in air transportation
23 and intrastate air transportation to pay for the 24 difference between any such costs and the 25 amount collected from such fee, as estimated by

1 the Under Secretary at the beginning of each
2 fiscal year. The estimates of the Under Sec-
3 retary under this subparagraph are not subject
4 to judicial review.

5 “(B) LIMITATIONS.—

6 “(i) OVERALL LIMIT.—The amounts
7 of fees collected under this paragraph for 8 each fiscal year may not exceed, in the ag-
9 gregate, the amounts paid in calendar year
10 2000 by carriers described in subpara-
11 graph (A) for screening passengers and 12 property, as determined by the Under Sec-
13 retary.

14 “(ii) PER-CARRIER LIMIT.—The 15 amount of fees collected under this para-
16 graph from an air carrier described in sub-
17 paragraph (A) for each of fiscal years
18 2002, 2003, and 2004 may not exceed the 19 amount paid in calendar year 2000 by that 20 carrier for screening passengers and prop-
21 erty, as determined by the Under Sec-
22 retary.

23 “(iii) ADJUSTMENT OF PER-CARRIER
24 LIMIT.—For fiscal year 2005 and subse-
25 quent fiscal years, the per-carrier limitation under clause (ii) may be determined by the Under Secretary on the basis of market share or any other appropriate measure in lieu of actual screening costs in calendar year 2000.

“(iv) FINALITY OF DETERMINATIONS.—Determinations of the Under Secretary under this subparagraph are not subject to judicial review.

“(c) SPECIAL RULE FOR FISCAL YEAR 2002.—The amount of fees collected under this paragraph from any carrier for fiscal year 2002 may not exceed the amounts paid by that carrier for screening passengers and property for a period of time in calendar year 2000 proportionate to the period of time in fiscal year 2002 during which fees are collected under this paragraph.

“(b) SCHEDULE OF FEES.—In imposing fees under subsection (a), the Under Secretary shall ensure that the fees are reasonably related to the Transportation Security Administration’s costs of providing services rendered.

“(c) LIMITATION ON FEE.—Fees imposed under subsection (a)(1) may not exceed $2.50 per enplanement in air transportation or intrastate air transportation that

1 originates at an airport in the United States, except that
2 the total amount of such fees may not exceed $5.00 per 3 one-way trip.

4 "(d) IMPOSITION OF FEE.—

5 "(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section
6 9701 of title 31 and the procedural requirements of 7 section 553 of title 5, the Under Secretary shall im-
8 pose the fee under subsection (a)(1), and may im-
9 pose a fee under subsection (a)(2), through the pub-
10 lication of notice of such fee in the Federal Register
11 and begin collection of the fee within 60 days of the 12 date of enactment of this Act, or as soon as possible
13 thereafter.

14 "(2) SPECIAL RULES PASSENGER FEES.—A fee
15 imposed under subsection (a)(1) through the proce-
16 dures under subsection (d) shall apply only to tickets
17 sold after the date on which such fee is imposed. If 18 a fee imposed under subsection (a)(1) through the 19 procedures under subsection (d) on transportation of 20 a passenger of a carrier described in subsection
21 (a)(1) is not collected from the passenger, the 22 amount of the fee shall be paid by the carrier.

23 "(3) SUBSEQUENT MODIFICATION OF FEE.—

24 After imposing a fee in accordance with paragraph 25 (1), the Under Secretary may modify, from time to

1 (b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT TO AIRPORT AND 2 AIRWAY TRUST FUND.—Section 9502(d)(1)(A) of the In-
3 ternal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to airport and air-
4 way program) is amended by inserting “or the ~~Airport and~~ (Aviation
5 Transportation Security ~~Federalization~~ Act” after “21st
6 Century”.

124) 7 SEC. 114. TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS.

8 (a) REPORT DEADLINE.—Section 106(a) of the Air
9 Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act (Pub-
10 lic Law 107-42) is amended by striking “February 1, 11 2001” and inserting “February 1, 2002”.

12 (b) INSURANCE AND REINSURANCE OF AIRCRAFT.—
13 Section 44306(c) (as redesignated by section 201(d) of 14 such Act) is amended by inserting “in the interest of air
15 commerce or national security or” before “to carry out
16 foreign policy”.

17 (c) FEDERAL CREDIT INSTRUMENTS.—Section
18 102(c)(2)(A) of such Act is amended by striking “rep-
19 resentatives” and inserting “representations”.

20 (d) MAXIMUM AMOUNT OF COMPENSATION PAYABLE 21 PER AIR CARRIER.—Section 103 of such Act is amended
22 by adding at the end the following:

23 “(d) COMPENSATION FOR CERTAIN AIR CARRIERS.—

24 “(1) SET-ASIDE.—The President may set aside
25 a portion of the amount of compensation payable to

1 time through publication of notice in the Federal
2 Register, the imposition or collection of such fee, or 3 both.

4 "(4) LIMITATION ON COLLECTION.—No fee
5 may be collected under this section except to the ex-
6 tent that the expenditure of the fee to pay the costs
7 of activities and services for which the fee is imposed
8 is provided for in advance in an appropriations Act.

9 "(e) ADMINISTRATION OF FEES.—

10 "(1) FEES PAYABLE TO UNDER SECRETARY.—
11 All fees imposed and amounts collected under this 12 section are payable to the Under Secretary.

13 "(2) FEES COLLECTED BY AIR CARRIER.—A fee
14 imposed under subsection (a)(1) shall be collected by 15 the air carrier or foreign air carrier that sells a tick-
16 et for transportation described in subsection (a)(1).

17 "(3) DUE DATE FOR REMITTANCE.—A fee col-
18 lected under this section shall be remitted on the 19 last day of each calendar month by the carrier col-
20 lecting the fee. The amount to be remitted shall be 21 for the calendar month preceding the calendar
22 month in which the remittance is made.

23 "(4) INFORMATION.—The Under Secretary may 24 require the provision of such information as the 25 Under Secretary decides is necessary to verify that

1 fees have been collected and remitted at the proper
2 times and in the proper amounts.

3 "(5) FEE NOT SUBJECT TO TAX.—For purposes
4 of section 4261 of the Internal Revenue Code of 5 1986 (26 U.S.C. 4261), a fee imposed under this 6 section shall not be considered to be part of the 7 amount paid for taxable transportation.

8 "(6) COST OF COLLECTING FEE.—No portion
9 of fee collected under this section may be retained
10 by the air carrier or foreign air carrier for the costs
11 of collecting, handling, or remitting the fee except 12 for interest accruing to the carrier after collection
13 and before remittance.

14 "(f) RECEIPTS CREDITED AS OFFSETTING COLLEC-
15 TIONS.—Notwithstanding section 3302 of title 31, any fee
16 collected under this section—

17 "(1) shall be credited as offsetting collections to 18 the account that finances the activities and services
19 for which the fee is imposed;

20 "(2) shall be available for expenditure only to 21 pay the costs of activities and services for which the 22 fee is imposed; and

23 "(3) shall remain available until expended.

1 “(g) REFUNDS.—The Under Secretary may refund
2 any fee paid by mistake or any amount paid in excess of 3 that required.

4 “(h) EXEMPTIONS.—The Under Secretary may ex-
5 empt from the passenger fee imposed under subsection
6 (a)(1) any passenger enplaning at an airport in the United
7 States that does not receive screening services under sec-
8 tion 44901 for that segment of the trip for which the pas-
9 senger does not receive screening.”.

10 “(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The analysis for 11 such chapter is amended by adding at the end the fol-
12 lowing:

“44940. Security service fee.”

1 ["§ 48114. User fee for security services charge

2 ["(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transpor-

4 ices does not demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Sec-
5 retary, using sworn financial statements or other appro-
6 priate data, that—

7 (1) the cost is eligible for reimbursement under
8 subsection (a); and

9 (2) the cost was incurred by the airport oper-
10 ator, on-airport parking lot, or vendor of on-airfield
11 direct services.

12 The Inspector General of the Department of Transpor-
13 tation and the Comptroller General of the United States
14 may audit such statements and may request any other in-
15 formation ~~that~~ necessary to conduct such an audit.

16 (c) CLAIM PROCEDURE.—Within 30 days after the
17 date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary, after con-
18 sultation with airport operators, on-airport parking lots,
19 and vendors of on-airfield direct services, shall publish in

133 17 SEC. 44942. RESULTS-BASED MANAGEMENT.

18 Subchapter II of chapter 449 of title 49, United 19 States Code, is amended by adding at the end the fol-
20 lowing:

21 “§ 44942. Performance goals and objectives

22 “(a) SHORT TERM TRANSITION.—

23 “(1) IN GENERAL.—Within 180 days after the
24 date of enactment of the Aviation and Transpor-
25 tation Security Act, the Under Secretary for Trans-

1 portation Security may, in consultation with
2 Congress—

3 “(A) establish acceptable levels of perform-
4 ance for aviation security, including screening
5 operations and access control, and

6 “(B) provide Congress with an action plan,
7 containing measurable goals and milestones,
8 that outlines how those levels of performance
9 will be achieved.

10 “(2) BASICS OF ACTION PLAN.—The action
11 plan shall clarify the responsibilities of the Trans-
12 portation Security Administration, the Federal Avia-
13 tion Administration and any other agency or organi-
14 zation that may have a role in ensuring the safety
15 and security of the civil air transportation system.

16 “(b) LONG-TERM RESULTS-BASED MANAGEMENT.—

17 “(1) PERFORMANCE PLAN AND REPORT.—

18 “(A) PERFORMANCE PLAN.—

19 “(i) Each year, consistent with the re-
20 quirements of the Government Perform-
21 ance and Results Act of 1993 (GPRA), the
22 Secretary and the Under Secretary for
23 Transportation Security shall agree on a
24 performance plan for the succeeding 5
25 years that establishes measurable goals

1 and objectives for aviation security. The
2 plan shall identify action steps necessary to
3 achieve such goals.

I26

4 “(ii) In addition to meeting the require-
5 ments of GPRA, the performance plan should
6 clarify the responsibilities of the Secretary, the
7 Under Secretary for Transportation Security
8 and any other agency or organization that may
9 have a role in ensuring the safety and security
10 of the civil air transportation system.

I24

11 “(B) PERFORMANCE REPORT.—(i) Each
12 year, consistent with the requirements of
13 GPRA, the Under Secretary for Transportation
14 Security shall prepare and submit to Congress
15 an annual report including an evaluation of the 16 extent goals and objectives were met. The re-
17 port shall include the results achieved during 18 the year relative to the goals established in the
19 performance plan.

20 “§ 44943. Performance management system

21 “(a) ESTABLISHING A FAIR AND EQUITABLE SYS-
22 TEM FOR MEASURING STAFF PERFORMANCE.—The
23 Under Secretary for Transportation Security shall estab-
24 lish a performance management system which strengthens
25 the organization’s effectiveness by providing for the estab-

1 lishment of goals and objectives for managers, employees,
2 and organizational performance consistent with the per-
3 formance plan.

4 “(b) ESTABLISHING MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTABILITY
5 FOR MEETING PERFORMANCE GOALS.—

6 “(1) Each year, the Secretary and Under Sec-
7 retary for Transportation Security shall enter into
8 an annual performance agreement that shall set
9 forth organizational and individual performance
10 goals for the Under Secretary.

11 “(2) Each year, the Under Secretary for ~~Transportation Security~~
12 ~~tation Security~~ and each senior manager who reports to 13 the Under Secretary for ~~Transportation Security~~ shall
14 enter into an annual performance agreement that sets
15 forth organization and individual goals for those man-
16 agers. All other employees hired under the authority of 17 the Under Secretary for ~~Transportation Security~~ shall
18 enter into an annual performance agreement that sets
19 forth organization and individual goals for those employ-
20 ees.

21 “(c) PERFORMANCE-BASED SERVICE CON-
22 TRACTING.—To the extent contracts, if any, are used to
23 implement the Aviation Security Act, the Under Secretary
24 for Transportation Security shall, to the extent practical,
25 maximize the use of performance-based service contracts.

1 These contracts should be consistent with guidelines pub-
2 lished by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy.”.

3 SEC. 129. VOLUNTARY PROVISION OF EMERGENCY SERV-
4 ICES DURING COMMERCIAL FLIGHTS.

5 (a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter II of chapter 449 of
6 title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the
7 end the following new section:

8 “§ 44944. Voluntary provision of emergency services

9 “(a) PROGRAM FOR PROVISION OF VOLUNTARY
10 SERVICES.—

11 “(1) PROGRAM.—The Under Secretary of
12 Transportation for Transportation Security shall
13 carry out a program to permit qualified law enforce-
14 ment officers, firefighters, and emergency medical
15 technicians to provide emergency services on com-
16 mercial air flights during emergencies.

17 “(2) REQUIREMENTS.—The Under Secretary
18 shall establish such requirements for qualifications
19 of providers of voluntary services under the program
20 under paragraph (1), including training require-
21 ments, as the Under Secretary considers appro-
22 priate.

23 “(3) CONFIDENTIALITY OF REGISTRY.—If as
24 part of the program under paragraph (1) the Under
25 Secretary requires or permits registration of law en-

1 enforcement officers, firefighters, or emergency med-
2 ical technicians who are willing to provide emergency
3 services on commercial flights during emergencies,
4 the Under Secretary shall take appropriate actions
5 to ensure that the registry is available only to appro-
6 priate airline personnel and otherwise remains con-
7 fidential.

8 “(4) CONSULTATION.—The Under Secretary
9 shall consult with appropriate representatives of the
10 commercial airline industry, and organizations rep-
11 resenting community-based law enforcement, fire-
12 fighters, and emergency medical technicians, in car-
13 rying out the program under paragraph (1), includ-
14 ing the actions taken under paragraph (3).

15 “(b) EXEMPTION FROM LIABILITY.—An individual
16 shall not be liable for damages in any action brought in
17 a Federal or State court that arises from an act or omis-
18 sion of the individual in providing or attempting to provide
19 assistance in the case of an in-flight emergency in an air-
20 craft of an air carrier if the individual meets such quali-
21 fications as the Under Secretary shall prescribe for pur-
22 poses of this section.

23 “(c) EXCEPTION.—The exemption under subsection
24 (b) shall not apply in any case in which an individual pro-
25 vides, or attempts to provide, assistance described in that

~~98~~

1 paragraph in a manner that constitutes gross negligence
2 or willful misconduct.”.

3 (b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections
4 at the beginning of such chapter is amended by adding
5 at the end the following new item:

“44944. Voluntary provision of emergency services”.

6 (c) CONSTRUCTION REGARDING POSSESSION OF
7 FIREARMS.—Nothing in this section may be construed to
8 require any modification of regulations of the Department
9 of Transportation governing the possession of firearms
10 while in aircraft or air transportation facilities or to au-
11 thorize the possession of a firearm in an aircraft or any
12 such facility not authorized under those regulations.

132) 13 SEC. 13. GENERAL AVIATION AND AIR CHARTERS.

14 (a) AIR CHARTER PROGRAM.—Within 90 days after
15 the date of enactment of this Act, the Under Secretary
16 of Transportation for Transportation Security shall imple-
17 ment an aviation security program for charter air carriers
18 (as defined in section 40102(a)(13) of title 49, United 19 States Code) with a maximum ~~certified~~ takeoff weight of 20 12,500 pounds or more.

21 (b) GENERAL AVIATION PROGRAM.—Within 30 days
22 after the date of enactment of this Act, the Under Sec-
23 retary of Transportation for Transportation Security shall 24 transmit a report on airspace and other security measures
25 that can be deployed, as necessary, to improve security

11 SEC. 123. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON CERTAIN AVIATION
12 MATTERS.

13 (a) FLIGHT SERVICE STATION EMPLOYEES.—It is 14 the sense of Congress that the Administrator of the Fed-
15 eral Aviation Administration should continue negotiating 16 in good faith with flight service station employees of the 17 Administration with a goal of reaching agreement on a
18 contract as soon as possible.

19 (b) WAR RISK INSURANCE.—It is the sense of Con-
20 gress that the Secretary of Transportation should imple-
21 ment section 202 of the Air Transportation Safety and 22 System Stabilization Act (Public Law 107-42) so as to 23 make war risk insurance directly available to vendors,
24 agents, and subcontractors of air carriers for all of their 25 domestic operations.

1 SEC. 186. SENSE OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

2 It is the sense of the House of Representatives that

3 the Under Secretary of Transportation for Security should

4 develop security procedures to allow passengers trans-

5 porting a musical instrument on a flight of an air carrier

6 to transport the instrument in the passenger cabin of the 7 aircraft, notwithstanding any size or other restriction on

8 carry-on baggage but subject to such other reasonable se-

9 curity procedures, terms, and conditions as may be estab-

10 lished by the Under Secretary or the air carrier, including

11 imposing additional charges by the air carrier, and

12 SEC. —. SHORT-TERM ASSESSMENT AND DEPLOYMENT

13 OF EMERGING SECURITY TECHNOLOGIES

14 AND PROCEDURES.

15 Section 44903 of title 49, United States Code, is

16 amended by adding at the end the following:

17 “(i) SHORT-TERM ASSESSMENT AND DEPLOYMENT

18 OF EMERGING SECURITY TECHNOLOGIES AND PROCE-

19 DURES.—

20 “(1) IN GENERAL.—The Under Secretary for

21 Transportation Security shall recommend to airport

22 operators, within 6 months after the date of enact-

23 ment of the Aviation and Transportation Security

24 Act, commercially available measures or procedures

25 to prevent access to secure airport areas by unau-

26 thorized persons. As part of the 6-month assess-

1 report its findings and recommendations to the Secretary
2 of Transportation within 90 days after the date of enact-
3 ment of this Act.

4 Section 44903 of title 49, United States Code, is
5 amended by adding at the end the following:

6 “(h) AUTHORITY TO ARM FLIGHT DECK CREW WITH
7 LESS-THAN-LETHAL WEAPONS.—

8 “(1) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary, after re-
9 ceiving the recommendations of the National Insti-
10 tute of Justice, determines, with the approval of the 11 Attorney General and the Secretary of State, that it
12 is appropriate and necessary and would effectively
13 serve the public interest in avoiding air piracy, the
14 Secretary may authorize members of the flight deck
15 crew on any aircraft providing air transportation or
16 intrastate air transportation to carry a less-than-le-
17 thal weapon while the aircraft is engaged in pro-
18 viding such transportation.

19 “(2) USAGE.—If the Secretary grants authority
20 under paragraph (1) for flight deck crew members
21 to carry a less-than-lethal weapon while engaged in
22 providing air transportation or intrastate air trans-
23 portation, the Secretary shall—

3 “(A) review the effectiveness of biometrics
4 systems currently in use at several United
5 States airports, including San Francisco Inter-
6 national;

7 “(B) review the effectiveness of increased
8 surveillance at access points;

9 “(C) review the effectiveness of card- or
10 keypad-based access systems;

11 “(D) review the effectiveness of airport
12 emergency exit systems and determine whether
13 those that lead to secure areas of the airport
14 should be monitored or how breaches can be
15 swiftly responded to; and

16 “(E) specifically target the elimination of
17 the “piggy-backing” phenomenon, where an-
18 other person follows an authorized person
19 through the access point.

20 The 6-month assessment shall include a 12-month
21 deployment strategy for currently available tech-
22 nology at all category X airports, as defined in the 23 Federal Aviation Administration approved air carrier
24 security programs required under part 108 of title
25 14, Code of Federal Regulations. Not later than 18

1 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the
2 Secretary of Transportation shall conduct a review
3 of reductions in unauthorized access at these air-
4 ports.

5 “(2) COMPUTER-ASSISTED PASSENGER
6 PRESCREENING SYSTEM.—

7 “(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of
8 Transportation shall ensure that the Computer-
9 Assisted Passenger Prescreening System, or
10 any successor system—

11 “(i) is used to evaluate all passengers
12 before they board an aircraft; and

13 “(ii) includes procedures to ensure
14 that individuals selected by the system and
15 their carry-on and checked baggage are
16 adequately screened.

17 “(B) MODIFICATIONS.—The Secretary of
18 Transportation may modify any requirement
19 under the Computer-Assisted Passenger
20 Prescreening System for flights that originate
21 and terminate within the same State, if the
22 Secretary determines that—

23 “(i) the State has extraordinary air
24 transportation needs or concerns due to its

1 isolation and dependence on air transpor-
2 tation; and

3 "(ii) the routine characteristics of
4 passengers, given the nature of the market,
5 regularly triggers primary selectee status.

137 } 6 SEC. —. RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT OF AVIATION
7 SECURITY TECHNOLOGY.

8 (a) FUNDING.—To augment the programs authorized
9 in section 44912(a)(1) of title 49, United States Code,
10 there is authorized to be appropriated an additional
11 $50,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2002 through 2006
12 and such sums as are necessary for each fiscal year there-
13 after to the Transportation Security Administration, for
14 research, development, testing, and evaluation of the fol-
15 lowing technologies which may enhance aviation security
16 in the future. Grants to industry, academia, and Govern-
17 ment entities to carry out the provisions of this section
18 shall be available for fiscal years 2002 and 2003 for—

19 (1) the acceleration of research, development,
20 testing, and evaluation of explosives detection tech-
21 nology for checked baggage, specifically, technology
22 that is—

23 (A) more cost-effective for deployment for
24 explosives detection in checked baggage at
25 small- to medium-sized airports, and is cur-

1 rently under development as part of the Argus
2 research program at the Transportation Secu-
3 rity Administration;

4 (B) faster, to facilitate screening of all
5 checked baggage at larger airports; or

6 (C) more accurate, to reduce the number
7 of false positives requiring additional security
8 measures;

9 (2) acceleration of research, development, test-
10 ing, and evaluation of new screening technology for 11 carry-on items to provide more effective means of 12 detecting and identifying weapons, explosives, and
13 components of weapons of mass destruction, includ-
14 ing advanced x-ray technology;

15 (3) acceleration of research, development, test-
16 ing, and evaluation of threat screening technology
17 for other categories of items being loaded onto air-
18 craft, including cargo, catering, and duty-free items;

19 (4) acceleration of research, development, test-
20 ing, and evaluation of threats carried on persons
21 boarding aircraft or entering secure areas, including
22 detection of weapons, explosives, and components of
23 weapons of mass destruction;

127 } 7 SEC. 123. MAIL AND FREIGHT WAIVERS.

8 (a) IN GENERAL.—During a national emergency af-
9 fecting air transportation or intrastate air transportation,
10 the Secretary of Transportation, after consultation with
11 the Transportation Security Oversight Board, may grant
12 a complete or partial waiver of any restrictions on the car-
13 riage by aircraft of freight, mail, emergency medical sup-
14 plies, personnel, or patients on aircraft, imposed by the
15 Department of Transportation (or other Federal agency
16 or department) that would permit such carriage of freight,
17 mail, emergency medical supplies, personnel, or patients
18 on flights, to, from, or within a State if the Secretary de-
19 termines that—

20 (1) extraordinary air transportation needs or
21 concerns exist; and —

22 (2) the waiver is in the public interest, taking
23 into consideration the isolation of and dependence on
24 air transportation of the State.

17 SEC. 141. SAVINGS PROVISION.

18 (a) TRANSFER OF ASSETS AND PERSONNEL.—Ex-
19 cept as otherwise provided in this Act, those personnel,
20 property, and records employed, used, held, available, or
21 to be made available in connection with a function trans-
22 ferred to the Transportation Security Administration by
23 this Act shall be transferred to the Transportation Secu-
24 rity Administration for use in connection with the func-
25 tions transferred. Unexpended balances of appropriations.

1 allocations, and other funds made available to the Federal
2 Aviation Administration to carry out such functions shall
3 also be transferred to the Transportation Security Admin-
4 istration for use in connection with the functions trans-
5 ferred.

6 (b) LEGAL DOCUMENTS.—All orders, determinations,
7 rules, regulations, permits, grants, loans, contracts, settle-
8 ments, agreements, certificates, licenses, and privileges—

9 (1) that have been issued, made, granted, or al-
10 lowed to become effective by the Federal Aviation
11 Administration, any officer or employee thereof, or
12 any other Government official, or by a court of com-
13 petent jurisdiction, in the performance of any func-
14 tion that is transferred by this Act; and

15 (2) that are in effect on the effective date of 16 such transfer (or become effective after such date
17 pursuant to their terms as in effect on such effective
18 date), shall continue in effect according to their
19 terms until modified, terminated, superseded, set
20 aside, or revoked in accordance with law by the 21 Under Secretary of Transportation for Security, any
22 other authorized official, a court of competent juris-
23 diction, or operation of law.

24 (c) PROCEEDINGS.—

1 (1) IN GENERAL.—The provisions of this Act
2 shall not affect any proceedings or any application
3 for any license pending before the Federal Aviation
4 Administration at the time this Act takes effect, in-
5 sofar as those functions are transferred by this Act;
6 but such proceedings and applications, to the extent
7 that they relate to functions so transferred, shall be
8 continued. Orders shall be issued in such pro-
9 ceedings, appeals shall be taken therefrom, and pay-
10 ments shall be made pursuant to such orders, as if 11 this Act had not been enacted; and orders issued in 12 any such proceedings shall continue in effect until
13 modified, terminated, superseded, or revoked by a
14 duly authorized official, by a court of competent ju-
15 risdiction, or by operation of law.

16 (2) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in
17 this subsection shall be deemed to prohibit the dis-
18 continuance or modification of any proceeding de-
19 scribed in paragraph (1) under the same terms and
20 conditions and to the same extent that such pro-
21 ceeding could have been discontinued or modified if
22 this Act had not been enacted.

23 (3) ORDERLY TRANSFER.—The Secretary of
24 Transportation is authorized to provide for the or-

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20541

1 derly transfer of pending proceedings from the Fed-
2 eral Aviation Administration.

3 (d) SUITS.—

4 (1) IN GENERAL.—This Act shall not affect
5 suits commenced before the date of the enactment of
6 this Act, except as provided in paragraphs (2) and
7 (3). In all such suits, proceeding shall be had, ap-
8 peals taken, and judgments rendered in the same
9 manner and with the same effect as if this Act had
10 not been enacted.

11 (2) SUITS BY OR AGAINST FAA.—Any suit by or
12 against the Federal Aviation Administration begun
13 before the date of the enactment of this Act shall be
14 continued, insofar as it involves a function retained
15 and transferred under this Act, with the Transpor-
16 tation Security Administration (to the extent the
17 suit involves functions transferred to the Transpor-
18 tation Security Administration under this Act) sub-
19 stituted for the Federal Aviation Administration.

20 (3) REMANDED CASES.—If the court in a suit
21 described in paragraph (1) remands a case to the
22 Transportation Security Administration, subsequent
23 proceedings related to such case shall proceed in ac-
24 cordance with applicable law and regulations as in
25 effect at the time of such subsequent proceedings.

1 (e) CONTINUANCE OF ACTIONS AGAINST OFFI-
2 CERS.—No suit, action, or other proceeding commenced
3 by or against any officer in his official capacity as an offi-
4 cer of the Federal Aviation Administration shall abate by
5 reason of the enactment of this Act. No cause of action
6 by or against the Federal Aviation Administration, or by
7 or against any officer thereof in his official capacity, shall
8 abate by reason of the enactment of this Act.

9 (f) EXERCISE OF AUTHORITIES.—Except as other-
10 wise provided by law, an officer or employee of the Trans-
11 portation Security Administration may, for purposes of
12 performing a function transferred by this Act or the
13 amendments made by this Act, exercise all authorities
14 under any other provision of law that were available with
15 respect to the performance of that function to the official
16 responsible for the performance of the function imme-
17 diately before the effective date of the transfer of the func-
18 tion under this Act.

19 (g) ACT DEFINED.—In this section, the term “Act”
20 includes the amendments made by this Act.

21 SEC. 142. BUDGET SUBMISSIONS.

22 The President’s budget submission for fiscal year
23 2003 and each fiscal year thereafter shall reflect the estab-
24 lishment of the Transportation Security Administration.

1 SEC. 143. LAND ACQUISITION COSTS.

2 In the case of a grant for land acquisition issued to
3 an airport under chapter 471 of title 49, United States
4 Code, prior to January 1, 1995, the Secretary of Trans-
5 portation may waive the provisions of section 47108 of
6 such title and provide an upward adjustment in the max-
7 imum obligation of the United States under that chapter
8 to assist the airport in funding land acquisition costs (and 9 associated eligible costs) that increased as a result of a
10 judicial order.

11 SEC. 144. LIMITATION ON LIABILITY FOR ACTS TO THWART
12 CRIMINAL VIOLENCE OR AIRCRAFT PIRACY.

13 Section 44903 is amended by adding at the end the
14 following:

15 "(h) LIMITATION ON LIABILITY FOR ACTS TO
16 THWART CRIMINAL VIOLENCE OR AIRCRAFT PIRACY.—
17 An individual shall not be liable for damages in any action
18 brought in a Federal or State court arising out of the acts
19 of the individual in attempting to thwart an act of criminal
20 violence or piracy on an aircraft if that individual reason-
21 ably believed that such an act of criminal violence or pi-
22 racy was occurring or was about to occur."

23 SEC. 145. AIR CARRIERS REQUIRED TO HONOR TICKETS
24 FOR SUSPENDED SERVICE.

25 (a) IN GENERAL.—Each air carrier that provides
26 scheduled air transportation on a route shall provide, to

1 the extent practicable, air transportation to passengers
2 ticketed for air transportation on that route by any other
3 air carrier that suspends, interrupts, or discontinues air
4 passenger service on the route by reason of insolvency or
5 bankruptcy of the other air carrier.

6 (b) PASSENGER OBLIGATION.—An air carrier is not
7 required to provide air transportation under subsection (a)
8 to a passenger unless that passenger makes alternative ar-
9 rangements with the air carrier for such transportation
10 within 60 days after the date on which that passenger's
11 air transportation was suspended, interrupted, or discon-
12 tinued (without regard to the originally scheduled travel
13 date on the ticket).

14 (c) SUNSET.—This section does not apply to air
15 transportation the suspension, interruption, or discontinu-
16 ance of which occurs more than 18 months after the date
17 of enactment of this Act.

19 AIRSPACE.

20 Upon request of an operator of an aircraft affected
21 by the restrictions imposed under Notice to Airmen FDC
22 1/0618 issued by the Federal Aviation Administration, or
23 any other notice issued after September 11, 2001, and
24 prior to the date of enactment of this Act that restricts
25 the ability of United States registered aircraft to conduct

1 operations under part 91 of title 14, Code of Federal Reg-
2 ulations, in enhanced class B airspace (as defined by such
3 Notice), such restrictions shall cease to be in effect for
4 the affected class of operator beginning on the 30th day
5 following the request, unless the Secretary of Transpor-
6 tation publishes a notice in the Federal Register before
7 such 30th day reimposing the restriction and explaining
8 the reasons for the restriction.

9 SEC. 147. AVIATION WAR RISK INSURANCE.

10 Section 44306(b) of title 49, United States Code, is 11 amended by striking "60 days" each place it appears and
12 inserting "1 year".

13 TITLE II—LIABILITY LIMITATION

14 SEC. 201. AIR TRANSPORTATION SAFETY AND SYSTEM STA-
15 BILIZATION ACT AMENDMENTS.

17 TIONS OF TERRORISTS.—Section 405(c)(3)(B)(i) of the
18 Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act
19 (49 U.S.C. 40101 note) is amended by striking "obliga-
20 tions." and inserting "obligations, or to a civil action
21 against any person who is a knowing participant in any
22 conspiracy to hijack any aircraft or commit any terrorist
23 act.".

1 (b) EXTENSION OF LIABILITY RELIEF TO AIRCRAFT
2 MANUFACTURERS AND OTHERS.—Section 408 of that Act
3 is amended—

4 (1) by striking “air carrier” in the section
5 heading;

6 (2) by striking subsection (a) and inserting the
7 following:

8 “(a) IN GENERAL.—

9 “(1) LIABILITY LIMITED TO INSURANCE COV-
10 ERAGE.—Notwithstanding any other provision of
11 law, liability for all claims, whether for compen-
12 satory or punitive damages or for contribution or in-
13 demnity, arising from the terrorist-related aircraft
14 crashes of September 11, 2001, against an air car-
15 rier, aircraft manufacturer, airport sponsor, or per-
16 son with a property interest in the World Trade
17 Center, on September 11, 2001, whether fee simple,
18 leasehold or easement, direct or indirect, or their di-
19 rectors, officers, employees, or agents, shall not be
20 in an amount greater than the limits of liability in-
21 surance coverage maintained by that air carrier, air-
22 craft manufacturer, airport sponsor, or person.

23 “(2) WILLFUL DEFAULTS ON REBUILDING OB-
24 LIGATION.—Paragraph (1) does not apply to any
25 such person with a property interest in the World

1 Trade Center if the Attorney General determines.
2 after notice and an opportunity for a hearing on the
3 record, that the person has defaulted willfully on a
4 contractual obligation to rebuild, or assist in the re-
5 building of, the World Trade Center.

6 “(3) LIMITATIONS ON LIABILITY FOR NEW
7 YORK CITY.—Liability for all claims, whether for
8 compensatory or punitive damages or for contribu-
9 tion or indemnity arising from the terrorist-related
10 aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001, against the
11 City of New York shall not exceed the greater of the 12 city’s insurance coverage or $350,000,000. If a
13 claimant who is eligible to seek compensation under
14 section 405 of this Act, submits a claim under sec-
15 tion 405, the claimant waives the right to file a civil 16 action (or to be a party to an action) in any Federal
17 or State court for damages sustained as a result of
18 the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September
19 11, 2001, including any such action against the City
20 of New York. The preceding sentence does not apply
21 to a civil action to recover collateral source obliga-
22 tions.”; and

23 (3) by adding at the end of subsection (c) the 24 following: “Subsections (a) and (b) do not apply to
25 civil actions to recover collateral source obligations.

1 Nothing in this section shall in any way limit any li-
2 ability of any person who is engaged in the business
3 of providing air transportation security and who is
4 not an airline or airport sponsor or director, officer,
5 or employee of an airline or airport sponsor.”.

6 (c) LIMITATION OF UNITED STATES SUBROGATION
7 RIGHT.—Section 409 of that Act is amended by striking
8 “title.” and inserting “title, subject to the limitations de-
9 scribed in section 408.”.

10 (d) DEFINITIONS.—Section 402 of that Act is
11 amended—

12 (1) by adding at the end of paragraph (1) the
13 following: “The term ‘air carrier’ does not include a
14 person, other than an air carrier, engaged in the 15 business of providing air transportation security.”.

16 (2) by redesignating paragraphs (3) through
17 (8) as paragraphs (5) through (10), respectively;
18 and

19 (3) by inserting after paragraph (2) the fol-
20 lowing:

21 “(3) AIRCRAFT MANUFACTURER.—The term
22 ‘aircraft manufacturer’ means any entity that manu-
23 factured the aircraft or any parts or components of 24 the aircraft involved in the terrorist related aircraft

1 crashes of September 11, 2001, including employees
2 and agents of that entity.

3 “(4) AIRPORT SPONSOR.—The term ‘airport
4 sponsor’ means the owner or operator of an airport
5 (as defined in section 40102 of title 49, United
6 States Code).”.

I was speaking with Carol Harvey who is putting on the schedule c conference on Monday. She said you were speaking at 4pm, right after Elaine Kaplan at 3:30. Just so you know, Elaine Kaplan is the head of the Office of Special Counsel who, among other things, is responsible for Hatch Act enforcement. I thought you'd want to know. If you have time, you might consider attending her session. She's a pretty good speaker, and you may find the content helpful.

I have signed off on the travel. If the travel is not being accepted by a WH employee from a political entity required to report the contribution of the travel expense under Federal election law, the travel expense or reimbursement will be required to be reported on Ken's annual public financial disclosure report filed in May 2002. In short, Ken has to report it unless a political entity (the RNC) is required to report it.

Terrorism Insurance: A Key to Economic Recovery

“Without full cooperation between our government and America’s private industries in support of insurance activities, there could be major disruption in the marketplace and harm to our economy.” -- Leslie Baker, Chairman of Wachovia Bank

The tragic events of September 11 enacted an economic as well as a human toll. The attacks directly impacted industries such as airlines and hotels, but also have reverberated throughout many other sectors of the economy. Because our military strength and our economic strength are inseparable, our nation must work with resolve to restore economic growth. The current lack of insurance for terrorist acts poses an unnecessary and avoidable barrier to economic recovery.

Lack of Insurance

The terrorist attacks proved that the probability of catastrophic property and casualty losses was much higher than anticipated. Due to the current inability to evaluate the probability of more events or to handle numerous large events in a short time, the reinsurance industry has been reluctant to cover terrorist events. According to Marc Morial, Mayor of New Orleans, “Reinsurers already are saying they will exclude ‘acts of terrorism’ from coverage on a going-forward basis.” Keith Buckley, an insurance analyst with Fitch Ratings Company, states that it is “the universally stated plan of reinsurance companies to add specific terrorism exclusions to reinsurance coverage.” Without reinsurance, primary insurers are forced to either exclude terrorism coverage, charge very high premiums, or withdraw from the market entirely:

- On October 31, AIG decided to drop coverage of Brookfield properties, which includes 8 million square feet of office space in lower Manhattan. Brookfield secured a new policy with FM Global Insurance, but the insurance specifically excludes events related to terrorism.
- At Chicago’s O’Hare airport, premiums have risen from $125,000 a year to $7 million a year.
- New York’s JFK international terminal cannot secure the $1 billion in insurance coverage it needs. Developer Dave Sigman has considered shutting the terminal down.
- Seventeen of the twenty-five property insurers that trade with Marsh, Inc. have enacted terrorism exclusions.

Although most state insurance commissioners are unlikely to approve terrorism exclusions to existing policies, insurance companies are free to completely drop coverage of potential targets. In addition, some states allow insurers to adopt exclusions to new policies without approval. Alternatively, insurers may move policies to non-admitted, or so-called “excess and surplus” carriers, which are non-licensed insurers whose policies are not subject to regulatory scrutiny and thus offer less protection to policyholders. Many insurance companies are likely to exercise this flexibility to protect their financial integrity. On October 23, Standard and Poor’s warned that insurer ratings could fall if underwriters opted to continue offering terrorism coverage without support from reinsurers or the federal government.

Impact on Construction and Real Estate

Lenders require businesses to insure any property they use to secure loans. Without terrorism coverage, banks may not lend to new construction projects and many existing commercial properties may not be able to change hands. According to Thomas Donohue, President of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, “Bank loans for major construction project undertakings such as new power plants, pipelines, and commercial office space would sharply decrease without coverage.”

Without adequate insurance, it will be difficult to develop, operate, acquire, refinance, or sell property. Thomas J. O’Brien, Senior Vice President of Finance for LCOR Incorporated, argues that the disruption could be widespread: “It will not only affect the real estate owners and lenders but also their tenants who lease facilities, their employees and customers as well as anyone who rents an apartment.”

Impact on Banking

The terms of most loans require adequate insurance, and without insurance borrowers may find themselves in technical default on their loan. As a result, lenders could be in a position of accelerating payments under the terms of the loan or calling in the loan in its entirety. If banks do not call the loans, they may be forced to reduce the amount of available credit as they build reserves to protect against a terrorist attack.

Thomas J. O’Brien of LCOR argues that a significant amount of real estate-backed debt runs the risk of being in non-monetary default without the availability of terrorism coverage. According to O’Brien, “This lack of coverage raises profound liquidity concerns not only on existing loans and the institutions that hold them but on the ability of borrowers to secure any type of financing going forward.”

Impacted Sectors

The potential disruption will fall primarily on areas of dense economic activity, such as skyscrapers and industrial factories. But it is likely that stadiums, trains, and many other areas will be impacted as well. According to Thomas Donohoe, “without adequate coverage, trucking firms, railroads, airlines, and ships may be unable to transport many types of cargo or may limit their destinations.”

Impact on the Overall Economy

The absence of insurance coverage for terrorism risks will likely reduce the willingness of lenders to provide financing for existing commercial structures and deter the construction of new projects. The result could look like a “credit crunch.” The Council of Economic Advisers estimates an overall reduction in 2002 GDP of 0.3 percentage point if the problem is not solved. This reduced growth rate of GDP is equal to 0.8 percentage point in the first quarter of 2002, 0.7 percentage point in the second quarter of 2002, and diminishes thereafter. The decline is caused by a reduction in asset values that reduces the consumption purchases of the household sector.

In addition, lower valuations reduce the incentive to invest in new structures. The overall liquidity effects also reduce the path for investment in non-residential structures.

Given the underlying weakness of the U.S. economy, it is not prudent to add more uncertainty by allowing insurance markets to fail. According to Steve Dreyer, Managing Director at Standard and Poor's Insurance Rating Service, "Absence of coverage could have a chilling effect on the economy if businesses from airlines to sports teams, to shopping centers curtail or even shut down activity, and if banks prove unwilling to make loans to companies without terrorism coverage." To prevent this disruption, the federal government must take action to provide a temporary backstop until the private sector develops the ability and capacity to insure against terrorist acts.

Talking Points on Terrorism Insurance

- The tragic events of September 11 had a considerable impact on our economy. We must act just as aggressively at home as we are abroad to prevent the U.S. economy from becoming a victim.
- At a time of economic weakness, we simply cannot afford to risk allowing more disruptions to the economy.
- Adequate insurance coverage is an essential component of a growing economy. Without insurance, you cannot get loans or sell existing property.
- The reinsurance industry is refusing to provide coverage against terrorist attacks, so the federal government must temporarily provide a backstop.
- This is not about helping insurance companies; it is about preventing a potential credit crunch and exacerbating an economic downturn.
- The federal government must also provide reasonable legal procedures.
- These procedures must: 1) ensure that victims can quickly recover real losses; 2) protect the taxpayers from spurious claims; 3) prevent unnecessary bankruptcies; and 4) reduce the likelihood that a terrorist attack will significantly burden the economy.
- Unfortunately, our current legal system cannot handle mass tort events.
- The end of the year is fast approaching, so the Congress must act quickly to prevent an unnecessary drag on our economic recovery.

Kristen,

Is the plan still to hold this letter for the time being? Would it make sense for DOJ to send it to OMB in the meantime?

Great-- thank you. Brett and I will review and get back to you. We'll probably want to hold the letter until immediately after Thanksgiving -- roll it out with some other materials on liability.

Hi Kristen,

We're finishing up our internal vetting and development of this letter, but, I think you wanted to review it before we send to OMB formally.

We'll await your comments.

Thanks,
Carl

The Honorable Michael G. Oxley
Chairman
Committee on Financial Services
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Mr. Chairman:

This responds to your request for the views of the Department of Justice on Section 15 ("Litigation Management") of H.R. 3210, the "Terrorism Risk Protection Act." (November 13, 2001 Draft). The Department of Justice supports Section 15 of this legislation.

Section 15 would authorize consolidated and coordinated proceedings in federal court for claims related to acts of terrorism. In such instances, substantive state law to be applied would be determined, jurisdiction would be assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation to an appropriate district court or courts, and damages would be regulated. Damage regulation provisions include elimination of punitive damages, several, proportional liability for non-economic damages, damage reduction for other compensation received, and limiting attorneys fees to 20 percent of the amount to be paid as a result of a settlement or judgment.

We support each of the provisions and wish to provide additional comments on the damage limitations -- particularly on punitive damages, non-economic damages and attorney fees -- to underscore our support for the provisions. We also offer two technical suggestions relating to the triggering determination for applicability of Section 15 and the substance of law to be applied.

Punitive Damages. Under Section 15(4)(A) punitive damages are barred, along with interest prior to judgment. It is appropriate and necessary to bar punitive damages in recognition of the fact that a terrorist would, by hypothesis, be far more responsible than any other party for damages caused from a terrorist attack. Ordinary tort liability theories would pale in comparison to terrorist action. As punitive damages awards for injuries caused by terrorist acts might well not be insurable to a considerable extent, and since punitive damages are damages that are related to culpability, rather than compensation, they should have no place in litigation relating to terrorist acts -- except against the terrorists. Moreover, where a terrorist act results in widespread harm on a scale akin to a traditional mass tort, only a limited pool of resources will be available to plaintiffs to prove liability. It would be inequitable to allow one plaintiff or a class of plaintiff to receive an excess amount of these limited resources, including a punitive component unrelated to the plaintiff's injuries, that could limit or preclude recovery by other plaintiffs. Further, a defendant in a mass tort action arising from terrorist attack who engaged in the kind of wrongdoing that is traditionally addressed through punitive damages will very likely be subject to state and federal criminal and administrative sanctions.

Non-Economic Damages. Non-economic damages are limited to the "direct proportion" of the responsibility of the defendant for the harm. This limitation is intended merely to recognize the evident fact that the full responsibility for injuries that terrorists cause should not be shifted entirely to non-terrorists who may bear only partial responsibility. Rather than shift the entire responsibility to the non-terrorist defendant who may bear only a part, possibly a very small part, of the responsibility for causing the harm, such a defendant would be liable only to the extent it breached a duty owed to the plaintiff. The proposed language is modest in that it does not eliminate non-economic damages; nor does it impose proportional fault for economic damages. In order to ensure that injured persons recover their economic losses, Section 15(4)(B)(I) limits several liability rule to non-economic damages, thereby insuring that economic damages can be recovered from a defendant who is at fault to any extent, however minor or fractional compared to terrorist fault. Moreover, limitations on joint and several liability are not uncommon; a majority of states have enacted some form of proportional liability, and some states have adopted this approach even for economic damages – a more restrictive formula than is contemplated by the proposed legislation.

Attorneys Fees. Attorneys fees are limited to twenty percent of the settlements or judgments in proceedings covered under Section 15. The twenty percent limitation is the same as the limitation on the amount of attorney fees recoverable for administrative settlements under the Federal Tort Claims Act. 28 U.S.C. § 2678. In light of the large number of plaintiffs in cases under Section 15 -- Section 15 is triggered only if terrorism may result in litigation exceeding 100 plaintiffs -- contingency of recovery is diminished and the attorney's risk/reward ratio tips more highly in favor of reward than would be true of much personal injury litigation not involving multiple plaintiffs. Moreover, the consolidated proceedings Section 15 authorizes would permit efficient, non-duplicative development of the plaintiffs' cases, reducing the need for particularly high contingency fees. Since no cap on total fees is included in the attorney fee provision, substantial fees could still be received, providing a strong incentive for high quality counsel to accept cases and claims on behalf of prospective plaintiffs. Finally, in our view it would be preferable to delete the reference to "court approved" settlements in this Section, to avoid any ambiguity as to application of the provision when a settlement does not require court approval.

Technical Suggestions. Section 15(1) and (3) trigger utilization of section 15 upon a determination by the Attorney General "that one or more acts of terrorism may result in litigation in which the number of plaintiffs exceeds 100." It may be desirable to cause this determination to be made by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation. The Judicial panel on Multidistrict Litigation already determines whether there is sufficient commonality to the facts in multiple case federal litigation to trigger consolidation. 28 U.S.C. § 1407. While the determination that would be made under Section 15 is more substantive (i.e., that one or more acts of terrorism occurred, and that the acts of terrorism may result in litigation involving more than one hundred plaintiffs), a judicial ruling may fairly be viewed as an appropriate mechanism for making this determination. The Judicial Panel's determination could be made after adversarial proceedings. Historically, the Judicial Panel has been able to act promptly when faced with multiple suits arising in different forums and also has been able to anticipate future litigation in making its rulings regarding consolidation and coordination of proceedings. Utilizing the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation, in lieu of the Attorney General, would eliminate the seeming incongruity of having an Executive Branch officer determine the Judicial Branch's jurisdiction.

Section 15(2), pertaining to choice of law, provides that the substantive law for decision shall be derived from the law, including the choice of law principles, of "the State in which such act of terrorism occurred" Since the state in which an act of terrorism might occur may be subject to debate, it may be more appropriate to specify that the substantive law of the state "in which such act of terrorism had its predominant effect," rather than in which the act "occurred," is the trigger for use of state substantive law. This would avoid unnecessary litigation over where an act of terrorism "occurred," particularly when multiple acts of terrorism might cause one set of effects.

Thank you for the opportunity to express our views on this matter. If we may be of additional assistance, we trust that you will not hesitate to call upon us. The Office of Management and Budget has advised that there is no objection from the standpoint of the Administration's program to the presentation of this report.

Sincerely,

Daniel J. Bryant
Assistant Attorney General

I have a request from the Real Estate Roundtable to send them an electronic version of all of the handouts from last Friday's meeting, including the talking points on the liability issues. Can the keeper of these documents send me the most recent versions? I'd like to get them copies as early today as possible, as they are trying to get one or more of their members to place some op-eds in support of quick action.

Thanks,
Jeff Brown

Subject: terrorism insurance: request for electronic handouts from Friday's meeting

I have a request from the Real Estate Roundtable to send them an electronic version of all of the handouts from last Friday's meeting, including the talking points on the liability issues. Can the keeper of these documents send me the most recent versions? I'd like to get them copies as early today as possible, as they are trying to get one or more of their members to place some op-eds in support of quick action.

Thanks,
Jeff Brown

Terrorism Insurance: A Key to Economic Recovery

“Without full cooperation between our government and America’s private industries in support of insurance activities, there could be major disruption in the marketplace and harm to our economy.” -- Leslie Baker, Chairman of Wachovia Bank

The tragic events of September 11 enacted an economic as well as a human toll. The attacks directly impacted industries such as airlines and hotels, but also have reverberated throughout many other sectors of the economy. Because our military strength and our economic strength are inseparable, our nation must work with resolve to restore economic growth. The current lack of insurance for terrorist acts poses an unnecessary and avoidable barrier to economic recovery.

Lack of Insurance

The terrorist attacks proved that the probability of catastrophic property and casualty losses was much higher than anticipated. Due to the current inability to evaluate the probability of more events or to handle numerous large events in a short time, the reinsurance industry has been reluctant to cover terrorist events. According to Marc Morial, Mayor of New Orleans, “Reinsurers already are saying they will exclude ‘acts of terrorism’ from coverage on a going-forward basis.” Keith Buckley, an insurance analyst with Fitch Ratings Company, states that it is “the universally stated plan of reinsurance companies to add specific terrorism exclusions to reinsurance coverage.” Without reinsurance, primary insurers are forced to either exclude terrorism coverage, charge very high premiums, or withdraw from the market entirely:

- On October 31, AIG decided to drop coverage of Brookfield properties, which includes 8 million square feet of office space in lower Manhattan. Brookfield secured a new policy with FM Global Insurance, but the insurance specifically excludes events related to terrorism.
- At Chicago’s O’Hare airport, premiums have risen from $125,000 a year to $7 million a year.
- New York’s JFK international terminal cannot secure the $1 billion in insurance coverage it needs. Developer Dave Sigman has considered shutting the terminal down.
- Seventeen of the twenty-five property insurers that trade with Marsh, Inc. have enacted terrorism exclusions.

Although most state insurance commissioners are unlikely to approve terrorism exclusions to existing policies, insurance companies are free to completely drop coverage of potential targets. In addition, some states allow insurers to adopt exclusions to new policies without approval. Alternatively, insurers may move policies to non-admitted, or so-called “excess and surplus” carriers, which are non-licensed insurers whose policies are not subject to regulatory scrutiny and thus offer less protection to policyholders. Many insurance companies are likely to exercise this flexibility to protect their financial integrity. On October 23, Standard and Poor’s warned that insurer ratings could fall if underwriters opted to continue offering terrorism coverage without support from reinsurers or the federal government.

Impact on Construction and Real Estate

Lenders require businesses to insure any property they use to secure loans. Without terrorism coverage, banks may not lend to new construction projects and many existing commercial properties may not be able to change hands. According to Thomas Donohue, President of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, “Bank loans for major construction project undertakings such as new power plants, pipelines, and commercial office space would sharply decrease without coverage.”

Without adequate insurance, it will be difficult to develop, operate, acquire, refinance, or sell property. Thomas J. O’Brien, Senior Vice President of Finance for LCOR Incorporated, argues that the disruption could be widespread: “It will not only affect the real estate owners and lenders but also their tenants who lease facilities, their employees and customers as well as anyone who rents an apartment.”

Impact on Banking

The terms of most loans require adequate insurance, and without insurance borrowers may find themselves in technical default on their loan. As a result, lenders could be in a position of accelerating payments under the terms of the loan or calling in the loan in its entirety. If banks do not call the loans, they may be forced to reduce the amount of available credit as they build reserves to protect against a terrorist attack.

Thomas J. O’Brien of LCOR argues that a significant amount of real estate-backed debt runs the risk of being in non-monetary default without the availability of terrorism coverage. According to O’Brien, “This lack of coverage raises profound liquidity concerns not only on existing loans and the institutions that hold them but on the ability of borrowers to secure any type of financing going forward.”

Impacted Sectors

The potential disruption will fall primarily on areas of dense economic activity, such as skyscrapers and industrial factories. But it is likely that stadiums, trains, and many other areas will be impacted as well. According to Thomas Donohoe, “without adequate coverage, trucking firms, railroads, airlines, and ships may be unable to transport many types of cargo or may limit their destinations.”

Impact on the Overall Economy

The absence of insurance coverage for terrorism risks will likely reduce the willingness of lenders to provide financing for existing commercial structures and deter the construction of new projects. The result could look like a “credit crunch.” The Council of Economic Advisers estimates an overall reduction in 2002 GDP of 0.3 percentage point if the problem is not solved. This reduced growth rate of GDP is equal to 0.8 percentage point in the first quarter of 2002, 0.7 percentage point in the second quarter of 2002, and diminishes thereafter. The decline is caused by a reduction in asset values that reduces the consumption purchases of the household sector.

In addition, lower valuations reduce the incentive to invest in new structures. The overall liquidity effects also reduce the path for investment in non-residential structures.

Given the underlying weakness of the U.S. economy, it is not prudent to add more uncertainty by allowing insurance markets to fail. According to Steve Dreyer, Managing Director at Standard and Poor's Insurance Rating Service, "Absence of coverage could have a chilling effect on the economy if businesses from airlines to sports teams, to shopping centers curtail or even shut down activity, and if banks prove unwilling to make loans to companies without terrorism coverage." To prevent this disruption, the federal government must take action to provide a temporary backstop until the private sector develops the ability and capacity to insure against terrorist acts.

Talking Points on Terrorism Insurance

- The tragic events of September 11 had a considerable impact on our economy. We must act just as aggressively at home as we are abroad to prevent the U.S. economy from becoming a victim.
- At a time of economic weakness, we simply cannot afford to risk allowing more disruptions to the economy.
- Adequate insurance coverage is an essential component of a growing economy. Without insurance, you cannot get loans or sell existing property.
- The reinsurance industry is refusing to provide coverage against terrorist attacks, so the federal government must temporarily provide a backstop.
- This is not about helping insurance companies; it is about preventing a potential credit crunch and exacerbating an economic downturn.
- The federal government must also provide reasonable legal procedures.
- These procedures must: 1) ensure that victims can quickly recover real losses; 2) protect the taxpayers from spurious claims; 3) prevent unnecessary bankruptcies; and 4) reduce the likelihood that a terrorist attack will significantly burden the economy.
- Unfortunately, our current legal system cannot handle mass tort events.
- The end of the year is fast approaching, so the Congress must act quickly to prevent an unnecessary drag on our economic recovery.

Brett,

OSI is working on a document that will quote various media sources. This document is not intended for electronic distribution in any form, so Alicia Peterson Clark and I would like to make sure the following are permissible since most of what we've discussed in the past involved electronically distributed information:

- excerpting articles in part
- excerpting articles in part, writing a brief introduction or headline describing the article
- reprinting an entire article
- reprinting an entire article, writing a brief introduction or headline describing the article
- writing a summary of an article or news item using some excerpts from that article
- reprinting or excerpting "best seller" lists

The document is tentatively described as "a snapshot of trend lines in American demographics and pop culture." The document is intended only for internal White House distribution in hardcopy form. We plan to distribute this type of document on a, as yet determined, regular basis.

Thanks in advance for your help. I'll be out of town tomorrow through Sunday, so please include Alicia in your response.

Charles Morgan, the Chairman of the ABA Business Law Section and General Counsel of BellSouth, has worked up a letter that will be signed by a large number of G.C.s of major corporations commenting on the slow pace of judicial confirmations and urging Leahy to do better. The letter does not focus on particular nominees and was expressly designed to be elevated in tone, but the point is unmistakable -- corporate America's lawyers will be going on the record to complain about the rate of vacancies. Stay tuned for the final letter.

Morgan has a fabulous set of contacts in the corporate counsel world and he is willing to use them to help us in any way he can. We should keep that in mind as we go forward -- it holds out the possibility of letters from individual G.C.s to their home-state Senators regarding particular nominees.

Terror-Insurance Market in Limbo (WPost)
Inaction in Congress Leaves Firms Unable to Find or Renew Policies
By Jackie Spinner

The Washington Post, November 21, 2001

A Long Island shopping center was notified by one of its lenders that it must get war insurance coverage or risk losing a loan. A Canadian office developer renewed its insurance policies earlier this month without terrorism coverage for skyscrapers in New York, Boston and Minneapolis. A small construction contractor in Maryland just found out that his annual insurance premium may triple to $150,000.

Two months after Congress began debating a system for backing up insurance companies in the event of another terrorist attack, the market is in turmoil, creating widespread problems for virtually every business or institution whose insurance policy is up for renewal.

Commercial premiums are increasing, and in many cases business customers are paying more for far less coverage as the terms and conditions of their policies are changed. Insurance companies have begun filing petitions with state regulators seeking to exclude terrorism from commercial and personal policies after the first of the year. And banks are reexamining their lending policies in major U.S. cities.

"It's a very bad situation," said Ira Shapiro, a real estate risk-management consultant based in New York. "It's a horror because insurance companies just don't know what to do." The problems have intensified in the past two weeks as the Dec. 31 deadline for renewing the majority of commercial policies draws closer and the promise of help from the federal government gets bogged down in a political swamp.

Although House leaders have pledged to address terrorism-insurance legislation after the Thanksgiving holiday, the Senate remains deadlocked over competing proposals.

"The whole point of these bills is not to give assistance to the industry but to guarantee that there will be coverage for terrorism," said David L. Keating, senior counsel for the National Taxpayers Union, which has been participating in the debate. "We differ on how they are designing these systems."

It's estimated the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11 will cost insurers $30

billion to $50 billion. Nonetheless, the industry is expected to be able to cover the losses -- in some cases through premium increases that had already started to appear after a decade of depressed prices.

"In just the last 30 days, I've had agreements with insurance companies that have changed," said Andrew G. Cassidy, a partner at Rockville insurance brokerage Early, Cassidy & Schilling Inc., which represents the Maryland contractor whose premiums may triple. "Pricing is going up, and that's a problem. But the bigger problem is the change in terms and conditions."

Reinsurance companies, which insure insurance companies, have already indicated their unwillingness to provide terrorism insurance without a federal "backstop" that would put up taxpayer funds through loans or direct assistance to help pay claims resulting from another terrorist attack.

Primary insurers -- household names such as Hartford, Chubb and Travelers -- buy reinsurance to help cover the policies they write for property damage, worker's compensation and general liability.

They are reluctant to cover terrorism without reinsurance.

While they wait for the government to act, the insurers are alerting their customers that primary coverage may be limited if reinsurance for terrorism disappears after Jan. 1.

And that has left commercial policyholders and their insurance agents in limbo, waiting to see if they can get coverage and unsure of how much it will cost if they can get it.

Banks and financial institutions are in the same predicament, waiting to see if the coverage will be available before they agree to finance new real estate projects and business ventures.

"The people inside our industry know there's a real problem brewing but it hasn't really hit the bricks," Cassidy said.

Toronto-based developer Brookfield Properties Corp., which owned four New York skyscrapers damaged during the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center, has collected $50 million in insurance payments to help reconstruct the buildings.

Like most U.S. commercial policyholders, Brookfield was covered for terrorism on Sept. 11.

But when the firm went to renew its insurance policy on Nov. 1, the company could not find a single firm willing to offer terrorism coverage for property damage at any of its buildings in the United States or Canada, according to Steven Douglas, chief financial officer for Brookfield.

Shapiro, the real estate consultant, said one of his clients, a shopping-center owner he declined to name, recently received a notice from one of its lenders asking for certification that the shopping center was covered for war risk -- a type of coverage that has typically not been available for commercial real estate for decades.

Even if he can persuade the lender to require terrorism coverage instead, Shapiro said he is not sure the shopping center would be able to get that, either. If he couldn't, the center could default on the loan.

"This lender issue is going to be a giant issue," he said. "It's a very bad situation."

John T. Stuart, senior executive vice president of Guaranty Bank in Dallas, which has financed development in downtown Washington and Tysons Corner, said investors and lenders do not want to be on the hook any more than the insurance companies want to be.

"If there's an exclusion for acts of terrorism in your insurance, then that becomes an additional risk that each bank will have to consider depending on size of the project and where it's located," he said.

Stuart said Guaranty is reviewing its lending policies for high-profile construction projects in major cities if terrorism insurance is unavailable.

"We have to have some confidence that if anything would happen again that there are deep pockets to pay for it," he said.

Insurance agents said they are caught in the middle, scrambling to find coverage for clients whose policies are within days or weeks of expiring.

"I've got customers trying to renew their insurance for December 1, December 15 and January 1, and insurance carriers are not able to set terms yet," said Mike Robertson, director of risk management for Armfield, Harrison & Thomas Inc., an insurance firm based in Leesburg.

When he has been able to renew a policy, the premiums have generally gone up, Robertson said, reflecting a trend for commercial policies that started long before Sept. 11.

Commercial insurance rates had been rising between 10 percent and 30 percent earlier this year after a 10-year lull.

"There's probably some feeling that insurance companies are using the events of September 11 to justify horrific rate increases," he said. "I don't think this is the case. I haven't seen that kind of price-gouging going on."

As a follow-up to our meeting last week on terrorism insurance, attached is a copy of an ad that will run in this Monday's edition of Roll Call. I hope the ad is helpful (along with our grass roots outreach efforts) in persuading Congress to enact a meaningful bill before it adjourns. Thanks again for your hard work on this core issue, and I hope you have a good Thanksgiving holiday.

INSURANCE – THE LUBRICANT THAT KEEPS AMERICA’S ECONOMIC ENGINE RUNNING SMOOTHLY.

CONGRESS MUST ACT NOW TO MAINTAIN THE AVAILABILITY OF TERRORISM INSURANCE COVERAGE.

Unless Congress acts before it adjourns, the nation's economy will likely face severe disruption because of the disappearance of affordable, comprehensive terrorism insurance for businesses and commercial and residential properties. We urge the House to quickly pass H.R.3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act, and urge the Senate to approve comparable legislation. We suggest that all Members of Congress consider the following in crafting any legislative package:

- The insurance program must be of sufficient duration to provide stability to the real estate and financial markets.
- The insurance plan must contain a system to ensure that all businesses and commercial properties are covered, including those in high-risk, high-visibility locations.
- As in the recent airport security legislation, Congress should consider appropriate litigation safeguards to benefit the victims of a terrorist attack.

Without Federal action, the essential lubricant for our economic engine will be dry and the ability to finance, construct, buy or sell properties across the nation may be at risk.

Terror-Insurance Market in Limbo (WPost)

Inaction in Congress Leaves Firms Unable to Find or Renew Policies

By Jackie Spinner

The Washington Post, November 21, 2001

A Long Island shopping center was notified by one of its lenders that it must get war insurance coverage or risk losing a loan. A Canadian office developer renewed its insurance policies earlier this month without terrorism coverage for skyscrapers in New York, Boston and Minneapolis. A small construction contractor in Maryland just found out that his annual insurance premium may triple to $150,000.

Two months after Congress began debating a system for backing up insurance companies in the event of another terrorist attack, the market is in turmoil, creating widespread problems for virtually every business or institution whose insurance policy is up for renewal.

Commercial premiums are increasing, and in many cases business customers are paying more for far less coverage as the terms and conditions of their policies are changed. Insurance companies have begun filing petitions with state regulators seeking to exclude terrorism from commercial and personal policies after the first of the year. And banks are reexamining their lending policies in major U.S. cities.

"It's a very bad situation," said Ira Shapiro, a real estate risk-management consultant based in New York. "It's a horror because insurance companies just don't know what to do." The problems have intensified in the past two weeks as the Dec. 31 deadline for renewing the majority of commercial policies draws closer and the promise of help from the federal government gets bogged down in a political swamp.

Although House leaders have pledged to address terrorism-insurance legislation after the Thanksgiving holiday, the Senate remains deadlocked over competing proposals.

"The whole point of these bills is not to give assistance to the industry but to guarantee that there will be coverage for terrorism," said David L. Keating, senior counsel for the National Taxpayers Union, which has been participating in the debate. "We differ on how they are designing these systems."

It's estimated the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11 will cost insurers $30 billion to $50 billion. Nonetheless, the industry is expected to be able to cover the losses -- in some cases through premium increases that had already started to appear after a decade of depressed prices.

"In just the last 30 days, I've had agreements with insurance companies that have changed," said Andrew G. Cassidy, a partner at Rockville insurance brokerage Early, Cassidy & Schilling Inc., which represents the Maryland contractor whose premiums may triple. "Pricing is going up, and that's a problem. But the bigger problem is the change in terms and conditions."

Reinsurance companies, which insure insurance companies, have already indicated their unwillingness to provide terrorism insurance without a federal "backstop" that would put up taxpayer funds through loans or direct assistance to help pay claims resulting from another terrorist attack.

Primary insurers -- household names such as Hartford, Chubb and Travelers -- buy reinsurance to help cover the policies they write for property damage, worker's compensation and general liability.

They are reluctant to cover terrorism without reinsurance.

While they wait for the government to act, the insurers are alerting their customers that primary coverage may be limited if reinsurance for terrorism disappears after Jan. 1.

And that has left commercial policyholders and their insurance agents in limbo, waiting to see if they can get coverage and unsure of how much it will cost if they can get it.

Banks and financial institutions are in the same predicament, waiting to see if the coverage will be available before they agree to finance new real estate projects and business ventures.

"The people inside our industry know there's a real problem brewing but it hasn't really hit the bricks," Cassidy said.

Toronto-based developer Brookfield Properties Corp., which owned four New York skyscrapers damaged during the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center, has collected $50 million in insurance payments to help reconstruct the buildings.

Like most U.S. commercial policyholders, Brookfield was covered for terrorism on Sept. 11.

But when the firm went to renew its insurance policy on Nov. 1, the company could not find a single firm willing to offer terrorism coverage for property damage at any of its buildings in the United States or Canada, according to Steven Douglas, chief financial officer for Brookfield.

Shapiro, the real estate consultant, said one of his clients, a shopping-center owner he declined to name, recently received a notice from one of its lenders asking for certification that the shopping center was covered for war risk -- a type of coverage that has typically not been available for commercial real estate for decades.

Even if he can persuade the lender to require terrorism coverage instead, Shapiro said he is not sure the shopping center would be able to get that, either. If he couldn't, the center could default on the loan.

"This lender issue is going to be a giant issue," he said. "It's a very bad situation."

John T. Stuart, senior executive vice president of Guaranty Bank in Dallas, which has financed development in downtown Washington and Tysons Corner, said investors and lenders do not want to be on the hook any more than the insurance companies want to be.

"If there's an exclusion for acts of terrorism in your insurance, then that becomes an additional risk that each bank will have to consider depending on size of the project and where it's located," he said.

Stuart said Guaranty is reviewing its lending policies for high-profile construction projects in major cities if terrorism insurance is unavailable.

"We have to have some confidence that if anything would happen again that there are deep pockets to pay for it," he said.

Insurance agents said they are caught in the middle, scrambling to find coverage for clients whose policies are within days or weeks of expiring.

"I've got customers trying to renew their insurance for December 1, December 15 and January 1, and insurance carriers are not able to set terms yet," said Mike Robertson, director of risk management for Armfield, Harrison & Thomas Inc., an insurance firm based in Leesburg.

When he has been able to renew a policy, the premiums have generally gone up, Robertson said, reflecting a trend for commercial policies that started long before Sept. 11.

Commercial insurance rates had been rising between 10 percent and 30 percent earlier this year after a 10-year lull.

"There's probably some feeling that insurance companies are using the events of September 11 to justify horrific rate increases," he said. "I don't think this is the case. I haven't seen that kind of price-gouging going on."

"The whole point of these bills is not to give assistance to the industry but to guarantee that there will be coverage for terrorism," said David L. Keating, senior counsel for the National Taxpayers Union, which has been participating in the debate. "We differ on how they are designing these systems."

It's estimated the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11 will cost insurers $30

billion to $50 billion. Nonetheless, the industry is expected to be able to cover the losses -- in some cases through premium increases that had already started to appear after a decade of depressed prices.

"In just the last 30 days, I've had agreements with insurance companies that have changed," said Andrew G. Cassidy, a partner at Rockville insurance brokerage Early, Cassidy & Schilling Inc., which represents the Maryland contractor whose premiums may triple. "Pricing is going up, and that's a problem. But the bigger problem is the change in terms and conditions."

Reinsurance companies, which insure insurance companies, have already indicated their unwillingness to provide terrorism insurance without a federal "backstop" that would put up taxpayer funds through loans or direct assistance to help pay claims resulting from another terrorist attack.

Primary insurers -- household names such as Hartford, Chubb and Travelers -- buy reinsurance to help cover the policies they write for property damage, worker's compensation and general liability.

They are reluctant to cover terrorism without reinsurance.

While they wait for the government to act, the insurers are alerting their customers that primary coverage may be limited if reinsurance for terrorism disappears after Jan. 1.

And that has left commercial policyholders and their insurance agents in limbo, waiting to see if they can get coverage and unsure of how much it will cost if they can get it.

Banks and financial institutions are in the same predicament, waiting to see if the coverage will be available before they agree to finance new real estate projects and business ventures.

"The people inside our industry know there's a real problem brewing but it hasn't really hit the bricks," Cassidy said.

Toronto-based developer Brookfield Properties Corp., which owned four New York skyscrapers damaged during the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center, has collected $50 million in insurance payments to help reconstruct the buildings.

Like most U.S. commercial policyholders, Brookfield was covered for terrorism on Sept. 11.

But when the firm went to renew its insurance policy on Nov. 1, the company could not find a single firm willing to offer terrorism coverage for property damage at any of its buildings in the United States or Canada, according to Steven Douglas, chief financial officer for Brookfield.

Shapiro, the real estate consultant, said one of his clients, a shopping-center owner he declined to name, recently received a notice from one of its lenders asking for certification that the shopping center was covered for war risk -- a type of coverage that has typically not been available for commercial real estate for decades.

Even if he can persuade the lender to require terrorism coverage instead, Shapiro said he is not sure the shopping center would be able to get that, either. If he couldn't, the center could default on the loan.

"This lender issue is going to be a giant issue," he said. "It's a very bad situation."

John T. Stuart, senior executive vice president of Guaranty Bank in Dallas, which has financed development in downtown Washington and Tysons Corner, said investors and lenders do not want to be on the hook any more than the insurance companies want to be.

"If there's an exclusion for acts of terrorism in your insurance, then that becomes an additional risk that each bank will have to consider depending on size of the project and where it's located," he said.

Stuart said Guaranty is reviewing its lending policies for high-profile construction projects in major cities if terrorism insurance is unavailable.

"We have to have some confidence that if anything would happen again that there are deep pockets to pay for it," he said.

Insurance agents said they are caught in the middle, scrambling to find coverage for clients whose policies are within days or weeks of expiring.

"I've got customers trying to renew their insurance for December 1, December 15 and January 1, and insurance carriers are not able to set terms yet," said Mike Robertson, director of risk management for Armfield, Harrison & Thomas Inc., an insurance firm based in Leesburg.

When he has been able to renew a policy, the premiums have generally gone up, Robertson said, reflecting a trend for commercial policies that started long before Sept. 11.

Commercial insurance rates had been rising between 10 percent and 30 percent earlier this year after a 10-year lull.

"There's probably some feeling that insurance companies are using the events of September 11 to justify horrific rate increases," he said. "I don't think this is the case. I haven't seen that kind of price-gouging going on."

result was that I'm holding the draft leg, and will rework it a little before putting it in clearance. And even then, it will not have a number attached.

As a follow-up to our meeting last week on terrorism insurance, attached is a copy of an ad that will run in this Monday's edition of Roll Call. I hope the ad is helpful (along with our grass roots outreach efforts) in persuading Congress to enact a meaningful bill before it adjourns. Thanks again for your hard work on this core issue, and I hope you have a good Thanksgiving holiday.

INSURANCE – THE LUBRICANT THAT KEEPS AMERICA’S ECONOMIC ENGINE RUNNING SMOOTHLY.

CONGRESS MUST ACT NOW TO MAINTAIN THE AVAILABILITY OF TERRORISM INSURANCE COVERAGE.

Unless Congress acts before it adjourns, the nation’s economy will likely face severe disruption because of the disappearance of affordable, comprehensive terrorism insurance for businesses and commercial and residential properties. We urge the House to quickly pass H.R.3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act, and urge the Senate to approve comparable legislation. We suggest that all Members of Congress consider the following in crafting any legislative package:

- The insurance program must be of sufficient duration to provide stability to the real estate and financial markets.
- The insurance plan must contain a system to ensure that all businesses and commercial properties are covered, including those in high-risk, high-visibility locations.
- As in the recent airport security legislation, Congress should consider appropriate litigation safeguards to benefit the victims of a terrorist attack.

Without Federal action, the essential lubricant for our economic engine will be dry and the ability to finance, construct, buy or sell properties across the nation may be at risk.

As a follow-up to our meeting last week on terrorism insurance, attached is a copy of an ad that will run in this Monday's edition of Roll Call. I hope the ad is helpful (along with our grass roots outreach efforts) in persuading Congress to enact a meaningful bill before it adjourns. Thanks again for your hard work on this core issue, and I hope you have a good Thanksgiving holiday.

CONGRESS MUST ACT NOW TO MAINTAIN THE AVAILABILITY OF TERRORISM INSURANCE COVERAGE.

Unless Congress acts before it adjourns, the nation's economy will likely face severe disruption because of the disappearance of affordable, comprehensive terrorism insurance for businesses and commercial and residential properties. We urge the House to quickly pass H.R.3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act, and urge the Senate to approve comparable legislation. We suggest that all Members of Congress consider the following in crafting any legislative package:

- The insurance program must be of sufficient duration to provide stability to the real estate and financial markets.
- The insurance plan must contain a system to ensure that all businesses and commercial properties are covered, including those in high-risk, high-visibility locations.
- As in the recent airport security legislation, Congress should consider appropriate litigation safeguards to benefit the victims of a terrorist attack.

Without Federal action, the essential lubricant for our economic engine will be dry and the ability to finance, construct, buy or sell properties across the nation may be at risk.

AGENCY FOIA REQUESTS

LABOR

Amy L. Stanton, Keokee, Virginia, is seeking:

information regarding Jim Walter Resources, Inc. No. 5 Mine, Federal ID #05=01322.

Specifically, she requested mine fan charts, other charts of monitoring devices that monitor the mine atmosphere, citations, and orders of withdrawal for the past 24 months. Ms. Stanton also asked for certified copies of mine ventilation plans, mine roof control plans, and emergency plans for the mine when a fire or explosion occurs. This request is currently being processed by the Mine Safety and Health Administration. Date request received: October 30, 2001.

Chuck Stewart, General Manager, Purchasing and Materials Control, Jim Walter Resources, Inc., Brookwood, Alabama, is seeking:

a copy of the results for the rock dust survey that MSHA conducted at Jim Walter Resources, Inc. (J.W.R.) No. 5 Mine during the week ending September 23, 2001.

The Mine Safety and Health Administration responded to this request on October 31, 2001. Date request received: October 23, 2001.

EPA

During the week of November 13-19, 2001, the Agency received a total of 254 FOIA requests. Of that total, 56 were received in Headquarters. Significant FOIA requests include: (1) Troy Seidle of the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA) is requesting copies of all Agency records associated with the nomination and selection of individuals to serve on EPA's Endocrine Disruptor Methods Validation Subcommittee; (2) Patton Boggs, LLP, is requesting copies of all documents and records concerning the process that has resulted in the draft EPA health risk assessment for trichloroethylene; (3) the Natural Resources Defense Council is requesting documents, scientific studies, data evaluation records, etc. pertaining to malathion submitted to the Agency under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) 6(a)(2) or by Cheminova; (4) McDermott, Will & Emery is requesting a copy of the minutes and related materials provided to and by EPA in connection with the "Smart" meeting on chloropropham to initiate the process for developing a Tolerance Reassessment Eligibility Decision; and (5) Tarasi, Tarasi & Fishman, P.C., is requesting certified copies of all violations by the Dow Chemical Company, or its successor, DowElanco Inc., under FIFRA with regard to violations for labeling and testing requirements for its products, Dursban L.O. and chlorpyrifos.

HHS

Judicial Watch contacted the NIH seeking documents regarding an October 23, 2001, meeting between Dr. Anthony Fauci, Director of the NIH National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, and DHHS Secretary Thompson in which the anthrax crisis was discussed.

Dialyzer Deaths: The Wall Street Journal has requested FDA documents, including adverse event reports since July 2000 and correspondence, related to the dialyzer deaths associated with Baxter Healthcare International's dialyzers.

DOT

Judicial Watch. All records that refer or relate to the following: (1) the decision not to impose a nation-wide ground stop on all aircraft immediately after the crash of the American Airlines Flight 587 in New York City on November 12; (2) information on mechanical failures of the Airbus A300 type aircraft and whether such information contributed to the decision not to impose a nation-wide ground stop on all aircraft following the crash of Flight 587; and (3) the decision to have the NTSB lead the investigation into the Flight 587. (Note: this FOIA inquiry was also sent to FAA, NTSB, FBI, DOJ, DOD and FEMA).

DOJ

The Electronic Privacy Information Center has requested all records pertaining to President Bush's recent letter to Belgian Prime Minister Guy Verhofstadt regarding European Union Directive 97/66 (regarding the protection of privacy in the telecommunications sector).

Christopher Farrell, of Judicial Watch, Inc., has requested all records pertaining to the decision not to impose a nationwide ground stop on all aircraft immediately after the crash of Flight 587 and the decision to have the NTSB lead the investigation into the crash.

Christopher Farrell, of Judicial Watch, Inc., has also requested all records pertaining to the decision by AG Ashcroft and FBI Director Mueller to increase the role of the FBI in anti-terrorist efforts and the decision to include Hamas and Hezbollah organizations in the EO prohibiting transactions by persons and organizations that support terrorism.

LABOR

information regarding Jim Walter Resources, Inc. No. 5 Mine, Federal ID #05=01322.

Specifically, she requested mine fan charts, other charts of monitoring devices that monitor the mine atmosphere, citations, and orders of withdrawal for the past 24 months. Ms. Stanton also asked for certified copies of mine ventilation plans, mine roof control plans, and emergency plans for the mine when a fire or explosion occurs. This request is currently being processed by the Mine Safety and Health Administration. Date request received: October 30, 2001.

a copy of the results for the rock dust survey that MSHA conducted at Jim Walter Resources, Inc. (J.W.R.) No. 5 Mine during the week ending September 23, 2001.

The Mine Safety and Health Administration responded to this request on October 31, 2001. Date request received: October 23, 2001.

EPA

During the week of November 13-19, 2001, the Agency received a total of 254 FOIA requests. Of that total, 56 were received in Headquarters. Significant FOIA requests include: (1) Troy Seidle of the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA) is requesting copies of all Agency records associated with the nomination and selection of individuals to serve on EPA's Endocrine Disruptor Methods Validation Subcommittee; (2) Patton Boggs, LLP, is requesting copies of all documents and records concerning the process that has resulted in the draft EPA health risk assessment for trichloroethylene; (3) the Natural Resources Defense Council is requesting documents, scientific studies, data evaluation records, etc. pertaining to malathion submitted to the Agency under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) 6(a)(2) or by Cheminova; (4) McDermott, Will & Emery is requesting a copy of the minutes and related materials provided to and by EPA in connection with the "Smart" meeting on chloropropham to initiate the process for developing a Tolerance Reassessment Eligibility Decision; and (5) Tarasi, Tarasi & Fishman, P.C., is requesting certified copies of all violations by the Dow Chemical Company, or its successor, DowElanco Inc., under FIFRA with regard to violations for labeling and testing requirements for its products, Dursban L.O. and chlorpyrifos.

HHS

Judicial Watch contacted the NIH seeking documents regarding an October 23, 2001, meeting between Dr. Anthony Fauci, Director of the NIH National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, and DHHS Secretary Thompson in which the anthrax crisis was discussed.

Dialyzer Deaths: The Wall Street Journal has requested FDA documents, including adverse event reports since July 2000 and correspondence, related to the dialyzer deaths associated with Baxter Healthcare International's dialyzers.

DOT

Judicial Watch. All records that refer or relate to the following: (1) the decision not to impose a nation-wide ground stop on all aircraft immediately after the crash of the American Airlines Flight 587 in New York City on November 12; (2) information on mechanical failures of the Airbus A300 type aircraft and whether such information contributed to the decision not to impose a nation-wide ground stop on all aircraft following the crash of Flight 587; and (3) the decision to have the NTSB lead the investigation into the Flight 587. (Note: this FOIA inquiry was also sent to FAA, NTSB, FBI, DOJ, DOD and FEMA).

DOJ

The Electronic Privacy Information Center has requested all records pertaining to President Bush's recent letter to Belgian Prime Minister Guy Verhofstadt regarding European Union Directive 97/66 (regarding the protection of privacy in the telecommunications sector).

Christopher Farrell, of Judicial Watch, Inc., has requested all records pertaining to the decision not to impose a nationwide ground stop on all aircraft immediately after the crash of Flight 587 and the decision to have the NTSB lead the investigation into the crash.

Christopher Farrell, of Judicial Watch, Inc., has also requested all records pertaining to the decision by AG Ashcroft and FBI Director Mueller to increase the role of the FBI in anti-terrorist efforts and the decision to include Hamas and Hezbollah organizations in the EO prohibiting transactions by persons and organizations that support terrorism.

There is no agreed date for responding to the questions. As you will recall, Horn asked for responses by Nov. 20, and Ose by Nov. 30. We (through Faith Burton of OLA) have made clear that we do not view these deadlines as reasonable and that we will respond in due course.

Brett:

I attach a set of draft answers to the questions from Horn and Ose. The questions that don't have answers are the ones that we thought it best for you to take a first crack at. Please review when you can.

So that I can keep track of what's in the draft, please provide your draft answers in a separate document and please fax any comments to the existing draft. Thanks.

Insurers facing disaster (Chi SunTimes) or For Trial Lawyers, Politics as Usual (WP)

November 22, 2001

BY ROBERT NOVAK

A desperately needed bill to protect the nation's insurance industry and the greater economy after Sept. 11 remains in dire peril, thanks to the financial pressure group that exerts the most influence over the Democratic Party: the plaintiff trial lawyers of America.

Nothing better demonstrates that the war against terrorism sometimes conceals, but surely does not repeal, politics as usual. A bill to keep insurance going in the face of future terrorist threats is more vital to the economy than the now enacted airline security act or the embattled economic stimulus bill (as was suggested by Robert

Rubin, the Democratic former secretary of the Treasury, in meetings with lawmakers). The threat to insurance by the terrorists is a greater menace than the savings and loan crisis a decade ago.

Actually, the relief bill is no more a subsidy for insurance companies' magnates than the misnamed savings and loan bailout was special interest legislation. Nothing happens in the American economy without insurance. There is widespread agreement that economic revival is impossible unless a way is found to protect insurance coverage.

Yet, this most important anti-terrorist legislation is in limbo. The insurance bill faces serious obstacles to passage before final adjournment of Congress next month, threatening havoc for the real estate and construction industries, which have been saving the American economy.

The problem is the need for a provision limiting punitive damages in cases of terrorism, insisted upon by Republicans and the Bush administration and concurred with by a few influential Democrats. However, the argument that federal protection for insurance should not enrich trial lawyers energized their lobby and all its awesome power.

Because House Republicans who generally run with the trial lawyers are not the type who can easily defy their party, limitation on liability is likely to pass the House. But at best, that leaves a rancorous Senate-House conference.

Plaintiff lawyers burst upon the national scene some 30 years ago, spawning tort legislation in an attempt to limit a torrent of lawsuits and damage verdicts. Out of self-protection, the American Trial Lawyers Association created a new and potent lobby that eclipsed even organized labor as the most powerful friend of the Democratic Party.

This is not strictly a partisan struggle. Super-investor Warren Buffett, neither a Republican nor a conservative, wrote in the Washington Post Monday that the new terrorism insurance law "'should sharply limit private lawsuits seeking to place blame on some party involved.'" Sen. Christopher Dodd, who has often supported tort reform as a Democrat from insurance-rich Connecticut, drafted a cap on punitive damages from terrorism. He was aided by Sen. Paul Sarbanes, the liberal Democratic Banking Committee chairman (along with Sarbanes' Republican predecessor at Banking, Sen. Phil Gramm).

That was before the trial lawyers came down hard. Their champion, combative

Sen. Ernest (Fritz) Hollings, went into action. With the help of Senate Majority
Leader Tom Daschle, the bill was stalled.

An insurance bill reaches the House floor next week, and an anti-punitive damages amendment comes up for a vote. House Majority Leader Dick Armey is determined. ''We are going to put it in,'' Armey told me.
''We're not going to let this

There is no agreed date for responding to the questions. As you will recall, Horn asked for responses by Nov. 20, and Ose by Nov. 30. We (through Faith Burton of OLA) have made clear that we do not view these deadlines as reasonable and that we will respond in due course.

Brett:

I attach a set of draft answers to the questions from Horn and Ose. The questions that don't have answers are the ones that we thought it best for you to take a first crack at. Please review when you can.

So that I can keep track of what's in the draft, please provide your draft answers in a separate document and please fax any comments to the existing draft. Thanks.

Insurers facing disaster (Chi SunTimes) or For Trial Lawyers, Politics as Usual (WP)

November 22, 2001

BY ROBERT NOVAK

A desperately needed bill to protect the nation's insurance industry and the greater economy after Sept. 11 remains in dire peril, thanks to the financial pressure group that exerts the most influence over the Democratic Party: the plaintiff trial lawyers of America.

Nothing better demonstrates that the war against terrorism sometimes conceals, but surely does not repeal, politics as usual. A bill to keep insurance going in the face of future terrorist threats is more vital to the economy than the now enacted airline security act or the embattled economic stimulus bill (as was suggested by Robert

Rubin, the Democratic former secretary of the Treasury, in meetings with lawmakers). The threat to insurance by the terrorists is a greater menace than the savings and loan crisis a decade ago.

Actually, the relief bill is no more a subsidy for insurance companies' magnates than the misnamed savings and loan bailout was special interest legislation. Nothing happens in the American economy without insurance. There is widespread agreement that economic revival is impossible unless a way is found to protect insurance coverage.

Yet, this most important anti-terrorist legislation is in limbo. The insurance bill faces serious obstacles to passage before final adjournment of Congress next month, threatening havoc for the real estate and construction industries, which have been saving the American economy.

The problem is the need for a provision limiting punitive damages in cases of terrorism, insisted upon by Republicans and the Bush administration and concurred with by a few influential Democrats. However, the argument that federal protection for insurance should not enrich trial lawyers energized their lobby and all its awesome power.

Because House Republicans who generally run with the trial lawyers are not the type who can easily defy their party, limitation on liability is likely to pass the House. But at best, that leaves a rancorous Senate-House conference.

Plaintiff lawyers burst upon the national scene some 30 years ago, spawning tort legislation in an attempt to limit a torrent of lawsuits and damage verdicts. Out of self-protection, the American Trial Lawyers Association created a new and potent lobby that eclipsed even organized labor as the most powerful friend of the Democratic Party.

This is not strictly a partisan struggle. Super-investor Warren Buffett, neither a Republican nor a conservative, wrote in the Washington Post Monday that the new terrorism insurance law "'should sharply limit private lawsuits seeking to place blame on some party involved.'" Sen. Christopher Dodd, who has often supported tort reform as a Democrat from insurance-rich Connecticut, drafted a cap on punitive damages from terrorism. He was aided by Sen. Paul Sarbanes, the liberal Democratic Banking Committee chairman (along with Sarbanes' Republican predecessor at Banking, Sen. Phil Gramm).

That was before the trial lawyers came down hard. Their champion, combative

Sen. Ernest (Fritz) Hollings, went into action. With the help of Senate Majority
Leader Tom Daschle, the bill was stalled.

An insurance bill reaches the House floor next week, and an anti-punitive damages amendment comes up for a vote. House Majority Leader Dick Armey is determined. ''We are going to put it in,'' Armey told me.
''We're not going to let this bill out of the House without it.''

Armey is backed in this position by President Bush, but Bush's post-Sept. 11 remarks have been limited almost exclusively to the war on terrorism. He has not uttered one word publicly on limiting punitive damages.
Republicans in Congress
grumble privately that the president is more interested in maintaining his 90 percent popularity amid cheers from liberal pundits rather than getting involved in the gritty business of governing.

The president's own lieutenants have no doubts about what is at stake here. One of Bush's chief economic advisers privately refers to the insurance measure as ''the'' terrorism bill, dwarfing in importance all others. Then he adds that trial lawyers have prevented its passage so far and make its future questionable. Here is an issue that cries for a president to speak out, but that is difficult while he is seeking support from all the voters.

“We need your help.”

The U.S. Congress is debating legislation to deal with the cost of future terrorist attacks. If Congress doesn't find a solution – and soon – South Dakota businesses could have trouble getting insurance at the end of this year, when current policies expire.

Without insurance, banks won't lend, builders won't build, and cargo won't move. Some companies would just shut down and employees would lose their jobs.

The whole South Dakota economy would feel the impact.

We can't let terrorists wreck our economy. Please tell Senators Daschle and Johnson that we need their leadership to pass a federal terrorism insurance bill. The clock is ticking - so please help us keep our employees working for their families, for South Dakota and for America.

Paid for by the South Dakota Association of Insurance Agents

Terrorism insurance legislation

South Dakota

:30 spot (DRAFT)

LOCAL BUSINESS PERSON VOICEOVER: THIS IS [NAME, BUSINESS]. I NEED YOUR HELP.

CONGRESS IS VOTING ON LEGISLATION TO DEAL WITH THE COST OF FUTURE TERRORIST ATTACKS. IF THIS BILL DOESN'T PASS, BUSINESS
INSURANCE WILL DRY UP AT THE END OF THE YEAR. WITHOUT INSURANCE, BANKS WON'T LEND, CONSTRUCTION WILL STOP, AND CARGO CAN'T MOVE. SOME COMPANIES WOULD SHUT DOWN.

TELL SENATORS DASCHLE AND JOHNSON WE NEED THEIR LEADERSHIP TO PASS A FEDERAL TERRORISM INSURANCE BILL. DON'T LET TERRORISTS
WRECK OUR ECONOMY. HELP ME KEEP MY [NUMBER] EMPLOYEES WORKING FOR YOU, FOR SOUTH DAKOTA, AND FOR AMERICA.

I cant seem to find it on their website, but today's Roll Call's lead editorial criticizes Leahy for slow pace of appellate confirmations. Not that anybody actually cares what Roll Call says, but at least they've noticed the numbers.

Daschle Said To Be Drafting Terrorism Reinsurance Plan
Sources said today that Senate Majority Leader Daschle is drafting a terrorism reinsurance bill of his own and is contemplating introducing it this week. The House is scheduled to vote Wednesday or Thursday on its version of the reinsurance legislation. Although not confirmed by Daschle's office, sources said his staff is drafting what it considers to be compromise legislation, intended to represent a middle ground between competing reinsurance bills written by the Senate Banking and Commerce committees * both of which claim jurisdiction. Those committee products differ sharply, both in terms of their approaches and their expectations of industry repayment. In that respect, sources said they expected Daschle's bill to include a combination of direct aid to the insurance industry, with an initial deductible, and a layer of loans that would require repayment. However, sources said they were uncertain whether Daschle was working directly with the Banking and Commerce chairmen to produce a final bill, or if he was merely trying to push along their discussions, which have yet to yield a consensus. Daschle asked the affected chairmen weeks ago to hold off on introducing individual bills until they could settle on a unified approach. Those talks are continuing, a spokesman for Senate Banking Chairman Sarbanes said today. Although the House bill has received the backing of a portion of the industry, the largest of the insurers appear wedded to the approach proposed by the White House in conjunction with the Senate Banking Committee. That proposal does not include a repayment mechanism. The White House also is adamant that the bill include language limiting punitive damages, and officials have privately expressed concern that the House bill does not go far enough in that area, sources said. While the House bill currently enjoys bipartisan support, the rule issued for the bill, which will help define the parameters of debate on the bill's legal reform language, should prove controversial. Given traditional Democratic resistance to legal reform and an aggressive lobbying campaign by the trial lawyer lobby, sources said they expect Daschle's bill will not include language limiting legal rights. However, a House-Senate conference agreement on reinsurance is apt to include some toned down legal reform language along the lines of what is currently included in the House bill, sources said. The underlying bills are designed to provide federal backing to encourage the insurance industry to continue providing property and casualty terrorism coverage in the wake of huge losses associated with the Sept. 11 attacks. * by Pamela Barnett

Press Guidance – ATTF Interviews

As has been the case throughout this investigation, whenever we identify individuals who may have information helpful to the investigation or to our effort to disrupt potential terrorists activity, we will attempt to interview them. They are not suspects, they are simply people who we want to talk to because they may have helpful information.

The latest effort is a group of individuals who we have determined may have information that could be helpful based on a number of considerations including but not limited to:

- 1) They entered the United States with a passport from a country which intelligence information shows a terrorist might be likely to be from -- this is based on intelligence information about past Al Qaeda operations
- 2) They entered the United States after January 1, 2000
- 3) They are males between the ages of 18 and 33

The list currently contains a little more than 5,000 individuals.

The interviews will be coordinated through the Anti-terrorism Task Forces in each of the U.S. Attorney districts and will include the assistance of local law enforcement officials. Each task force is receiving a list of individuals to interview.

If questioned about why they should agree to be interviewed - is this a dragnet, etc.?

We have allowed these individuals to enter our country to visit, to study, to do business and we expect them to cooperate and help us by providing any information they may have. This is what we would expect of a neighbor who witnessed a crime in his neighborhood. We all have a responsibility to help prevent future acts of terrorism.

What countries are the individuals from?

The list of countries was developed from intelligence information based on the nature of the terror network. We will not be releasing the list of countries.

What questions are you asking them - are you asking them about their religion?

The Deputy Attorney General has issued guidelines to all US Attorneys offices regarding how these interviews should be handled. Individuals will be asked questions that will reasonably assist in the effort to learn more about those who support, commit, or associate with persons who commit terrorism. The interviews are consensual. The guidelines specifically state that no inquiry should be made into an individual's religious beliefs and practices.

Are you targeting Arabs?

No, the list of countries contains countries that are not Arab countries.

The Administration urges prompt House passage of H.R. 3210 as a step toward enactment of legislation to ensure the continued availability of insurance for terrorist-related acts while encouraging the private sector to build new capacity. However, the Administration has reservations about several key provisions of H.R. 3210. In particular, the Administration is concerned that the assessment mechanism could negatively impact important sectors of the economy. We are also concerned with the administrative complexity. The Administration looks forward to continuing to work with Congress to address these and other concerns. In addition, the Administration applauds the House for including reasonable, short-term procedures for terrorist-related litigation. Procedures for consolidation and management of mass tort litigation arising out of a terrorism incident are a necessary part of any meaningful terrorism insurance proposal, and thus a necessary condition for Administration support of any terrorism insurance bill.

FYI: Paul Colborn, Greg Katsas and I are all available at 3:00 today.
Paul Clement is probably at the Court right now, so we may not hear back from him for a while.

Let us know if you want to plan on 3:00, subject to change if Paul Clement can't make it. We can make a conference room available here at OLC if that's convenient.

FYI: Paul Colborn, Greg Katsas and I are all available at 3:00 today.
Paul Clement is probably at the Court right now, so we may not hear back from him for a while.

Let us know if you want to plan on 3:00, subject to change if Paul Clement can't make it. We can make a conference room available here at OLC if that's convenient.

ú Prior to Thanksgiving, Chairman Sarbanes and Senators Gramm, Dodd and Enzi reached agreement on a bill would have provided federal risk sharing for losses over $10 billion. They agreed to two provisions limiting liability in terrorism cases, both of which would have sunsetted with the rest if the bill after two or three years: consolidation of claims in a single federal court and a ban on punitive damages. We expressed strong support for the agreement.

ú At the behest of trial lawyers, Daschle prohibited Sarbanes from introducing the bill. Daschle is now drafting a Democratic proposal.

ú We are continuing to work with Senator Gramm, who may introduce the original agreement. We had hoped that Senator Dodd would be on the Gramm bill, but this now seems unlikely.

ú The House will take up an Oxley-Baker bill on Thursday

ú We are much less supportive of the overall structure of the House bill, which has a complicated payback mechanism, but the bill has strong liability provisions.

ú Larry and Glenn have emphasized that the Administration will insist on some liability limitations because:

ú In many cases, the cause of the rising insurance prices is the risk of open-ended liability. For example, railroads and trucking companies are expecting increases as a result of the fact that hazardous cargo could be used in an attack. These businesses are not paying higher prices as a result of first-party coverage issues; they are paying for the risk of a runaway verdict in state court.

ú For as long as the federal backstop is in place, taxpayer dollars are at risk.

Designing meaningful procedures before any future attacks is necessary to ensure that Congress isn't forced to act quickly after the fact.

Summary

The Terrorism Risk Protection Act is the most pro-taxpayer, pro-consumer proposal to ensure terrorism coverage for consumers, with a significant commercial industry/policyholder stake, and relatively little regulation required (most of which would only kick in if an event occurred). This proposal is relatively low-maintenance for the government and will sunset without a private sector addiction to Federal subsidies.

For commercial insurers, the bill protects individual companies more than any other proposal. For policyholders, since insurers will have an incentive to write terrorism coverage, it greatly increases the affordability and availability of coverage. Taxpayers and the Federal treasury are protected from unlimited financial risk because they are not on the hook for the ultimate costs. Every dollar of Federal assistance will be repaid. If no event occurs, no bureaucracy is created, and the legislation sunsets after a brief period of time.

Key Elements

- Requires all Federal taxpayer costs/assistance to be paid back.
- Models risk-sharing plan on existing State insurance programs.
- Sets trigger at $100 million for small commercial insurers and $1 billion as an industry wide aggregate.
- Provides 90% Federal share with 10% individual company retention.
- Assesses first $20 billion in losses back to commercial insurers over time.
- Recoups subsequent losses through commercial policyholder surcharges.
- Provides the Treasury Secretary limited flexibility in determining assessments and surcharges based on economic conditions and the impact on urban, rural, and small commercial centers.
- Establishes uniform definition of terrorism.
- Authorizes one-year program with optional extension for up to two additional years.
- Includes limited liability reforms to protect taxpayer funds.

Advantages

- No taxpayer bailout — any Federal funds used to boost liquidity are paid back by commercial industry/policyholders (the primary beneficiaries of any proposal) over time.
- Greatly increases capacity of insurers to offer terrorism coverage.
- Companies get first dollar protection. Without this early protection, few companies can afford their individual risk and won't offer significant or affordable coverage.
- Protects small and large policyholders, and small and large insurers, while retaining incentives for risk management and efficient claims processing.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF H.R. 3210 – FLOOR VERSION

Section 1. Short Title and Table of Contents

This section sets forth the short title of the bill, the “Terrorism Risk Protection Act,” and provides a table of contents.

Section 2. Congressional Findings

This section provides Congressional findings about the damage from the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, the resulting market disruption and potential unavailability of future terrorism insurance coverage, and the need for a temporary industry risk sharing program to facilitate transition back to a viable private insurance and reinsurance market.

Section 3. Authority of Secretary of the Treasury

This section provides that the Secretary of the Treasury will be responsible for carrying out the temporary risk sharing program for the commercial property and casualty insurance industry.

Section 4. Submission of Premium Information to Secretary

This section recognizes that insurance premium information is already provided to State insurance commissioners and the NAIC, but allows the Secretary, to the extent that such information is not otherwise available, to require insurers to submit their net U.S. commercial property and casualty insurance premium data to the NAIC or the Secretary.

Section 5. Initial and Subsequent Triggering Determinations

This section directs the Secretary to determine whether insured losses from acts of terrorism over a 12 month period exceed the triggering thresholds. The section provides for an industry-wide trigger and an individual insurer trigger. The Secretary will make a triggering determination for the entire commercial property and casualty insurance industry if industry-wide losses exceed $1 billion. The Secretary will make a company specific triggering determination if industry-wide losses exceed $100 million and the portion of those losses for any one commercial insurer exceed both 10 percent of the company's capital surplus and net premiums. The lower $100 million threshold does not apply to any commercial insurer that was not providing commercial property and casualty coverage prior to September 11, 2001, except for certain terrorism risk pools.

Subsection (b) gives the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General and Secretary of State, sole authority to determine whether a loss was caused by an act of terrorism and whether the terrorist attack occurred during the period of time covered by this legislation. The ability of the Secretary to make such determinations under this subsection is not limited to commercial property and casualty insurance, but rather is intended to apply for all lines of insurance.

Section 6. Federal Cost-Sharing for Commercial Insurers

Once the Secretary makes an industry-wide triggering determination in section 5, then financial cost-sharing is provided to each insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90% of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of the triggering event and $5 million. If the industry-wide triggering determination is not reached, but the Secretary makes a company specific triggering determination, then financial cost-sharing is provided to that insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90 percent of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of such triggering event and 10 percent of the net commercial property and casualty premiums written by such commercial insurer (as a deductible). Federal assistance is capped at $100 billion. A sense of the Congress provides that terrorist events causing in excess of that amount would necessitate further Congressional action. Any Federal assistance provided will be repaid through the assessments and surcharges provided for in section 7 and 8, and may be designated by the President as emergency budget authority and outlays. Federal assistance received by an insurer should not be treated as a loan for balance sheet purposes. Furthermore, Federal assistance will be available for all property and casualty terrorism risk insurance policies in force during the coverage period of this legislation as long as the insurer was providing such coverage(or not excluding terrorism risk coverage) on or before September 11, 2001.

Section 7. Assessments

This section is modeled after the State insurance guarantee funds that exist in almost every State to address the possibility of insurer insolvencies, as well as numerous State catastrophic insurance funds. After the Secretary makes a triggering determination in section 5, every commercial insurer is subject to an assessment based on an insurer's net commercial insurance premiums to repay any Federal cost-sharing assistance provided under section 6. The aggregate amount assessed will be equal to the lesser of $20 billion or the amount of financial assistance paid.

The aggregate assessment amount shall be assessed to commercial insurers through an industry obligation assessment and, if necessary, the remainder through one or more future financing assessments. Industry obligation assessments are imposed immediately following a triggering determination in an amount up to $5 billion, and if the program is extended pursuant to section 20 for a second or third year, up to $10 billion in each additional year. Financing assessments (any losses above the $5 or $10 billion) shall begin 12 months after the last obligation assessment, and shall not exceed 3 percent of an insurer's net commercial premiums for that year. If the amount assessed through financing assessments in any given year is insufficient to cover Federal assistance, then the Secretary will make a new assessment in each following year until the amount is recouped. The Secretary may delay the assessment of an insurer to avoid an insolvency and may adjust or delay assessments generally as provided in section 9.

Section 8. Terrorism Loss Repayment Surcharge

This section applies only to terrorist losses that exceed $20 billion, and is modeled after several State catastrophic insurance programs. To recoup Federal assistance provided in section 6 for amounts above the Federal share of the $20 billion, the Secretary will impose a commercial policyholder surcharge to the extent that economic and market conditions permit. The factors to be weighed in determining the extent of the surcharge are the ultimate costs to taxpayers if a surcharge is not established, the economic conditions in the commercial marketplace, the affordability of commercial insurance for small and medium-sized business, and such other factors the Secretary considers appropriate. The terrorism repayment surcharge will be on all commercial insurance premiums based on a percentage of any coverage amounts but in any given year may not exceed the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium charged for such coverage. For purposes of this section, commercial property and casualty insurance does not include any reinsurance provided to primary insurance companies, so as to avoid a double surcharge.

Section 9. Administration of Assessments and Surcharges

This section provides the Secretary with significant flexibility in establishing the manner and method of carrying out any assessments or surcharges, in particular as necessary to protect the national interest, avoid unreasonable economic disruption and market instability, and avoid undue burdens on small businesses. The Secretary must also take into consideration the economic impact of any of these assessments and surcharges on urban and smaller commercial and rural areas and different lines of insurance. The Secretary may also make special adjustments to provide for commercial insurers and policies that are not based on a calendar year. The Secretary is also given the authority to assess civil monetary penalties for insurers that submit false data, fail to pay assessed amounts, or fail to collect appropriate surcharges.

Section 10. Application to Self-Insurance Arrangements and Offshore Insurers and Reinsurers

In consultation with the NAIC, the Secretary may apply the provisions of this bill to self-insurance arrangements by municipalities and other entities, but only if that determination is made before the occurrence of a triggering event and all of the provisions of this legislation are applied uniformly to such entities. The Committee expects that many types of self-insuring entities may desire or need risk-sharing coverage for terrorism attacks, while for others participation may be inappropriate. The Secretary is given authority to determine which of these entities should be participating, so long as application of the benefits and costs are applied equally. The Secretary must also ensure that the provisions of this bill are applied as appropriate to any offshore or non-admitted entities that provide commercial property and casualty insurance. Both provisions of this section are intended in part to prevent evasion of assessments.

Section 11. Reserve for Terrorism Coverage Under Commercial Lines of Business

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 12. State Preemption

This section preempts certain State laws to ensure uniform compliance with the bill. Subsection (a) preempts State laws that would conflict with the provision of coverage for acts of terror under the definitions of this legislation. Subsection (b) establishes a narrow preemption to allow insurers to adjust premiums only as necessary to recover the amounts of any assessments under section 7. Subsection (c) preempts State pre-filing approval requirements for commercial property and casualty insurance policies covering acts of terrorism due to the insufficient time between enactment of this legislation and January 1, 2002, but expressly preserves the ability of the States to undertake any subsequent review or action on those policies.

Section 13. Consistent State Guidelines for Coverage for Acts of Terrorism

This section establishes the sense of Congress that the NAIC and the Secretary should consult with each other and develop appropriate definitions for acts of terrorism and standards for determining the number of terrorist events or occurrences. Each State and the Secretary should then adopt such definitions and standards. A further sense of the Congress is provided that the NAIC should develop appropriate guidelines governing insurers' terrorism reserves, including any pooling of those reserves. The Secretary is directed to promulgate those guidelines on a nationwide basis if the States have not adopted guidelines in a uniform manner. A sense of the Congress is also provided that the States should establish regulations requiring separate disclosure to consumers of the costs of any terrorism related coverage. If the States have not adequately adopted such disclosures within a reasonable period of time, the Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC and adopt national guidelines requiring such disclosure.

Section 14. Consultation with State Insurance Regulators and the NAIC

The Secretary is directed to consult with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC in carrying out this bill, and may enter into agreements with the States and the NAIC to provide for the distribution of financial assistance, or the collection of any assessments or surcharges. The Secretary, may, in consultation with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC, investigate and audit claims of insured losses by commercial insurers.

Section 15. Sovereign Immunity Protections

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 16. Study of Potential Effects of Terrorism on Life Insurance Industry

This section directs the President to establish a commission to study and report within 120 days after the enactment of the bill on the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the life insurance industry in the U.S. and markets served by such industry. The membership of this commission shall include: the Secretary of the Treasury; the Chairman of the Federal Reserve System; the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security; and four members appointed by the President from the insurance community.

Section 17. Railroad and Trucking Insurance Study

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury to conduct a study to determine the availability of commercially reasonable railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism. The Secretary must submit a report to Congress within 120 days after enactment of this legislation.

Section 18. Study of Reinsurance Pool System for Future Acts of Terrorism

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury, the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, and the Comptroller General to jointly conduct a study on the advisability and effectiveness of establishing a terrorism reinsurance pool system in lieu of the program created by this bill. The study must utilize a variety of informational sources and be jointly submitted to Congress not later than 6 months after enactment.

Section 19. Definitions

This section establishes various definitions. The term "Act of terrorism" is defined as an act that is unlawful, causes harm to persons or property in the United States or to any U.S. air carrier or U.S. flag vessel outside the United States committed by persons who are recognized (prior or subsequently) by the Department of State or the Secretary as a terrorist group, or who conspire with the surrogates of a recognized terrorist group, and has the purpose of destabilizing any country or to influence the United States by coercion. As defined, an act of terrorism is not an act of war. The Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC to further refine this definition. This section further provides that the bill only applies to commercial property and casualty insurance.

Section 20. Extension of Program

This section grants the Secretary authority to extend the coverage period of the bill through the 2004 calendar year, if the extension is necessary to ensure the adequate availability in the United States of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terror. Extensions are to be made on a year-by-year basis and the Secretary is required to report to Congress on the reasons for any extensions beyond the 2002 calendar year.

Section 21. Regulations

This section grants the Secretary authority to issue regulations as necessary to implement this legislation.

Summary

The Terrorism Risk Protection Act is the most pro-taxpayer, pro-consumer proposal to ensure terrorism coverage for consumers, with a significant commercial industry/policyholder stake, and relatively little regulation required (most of which would only kick in if an event occurred). This proposal is relatively low-maintenance for the government and will sunset without a private sector addiction to Federal subsidies.

For commercial insurers, the bill protects individual companies more than any other proposal. For policyholders, since insurers will have an incentive to write terrorism coverage, it greatly increases the affordability and availability of coverage. Taxpayers and the Federal treasury are protected from unlimited financial risk because they are not on the hook for the ultimate costs. Every dollar of Federal assistance will be repaid. If no event occurs, no bureaucracy is created, and the legislation sunsets after a brief period of time.

Key Elements

- Requires all Federal taxpayer costs/assistance to be paid back.
- Models risk-sharing plan on existing State insurance programs.
- Sets trigger at $100 million for small commercial insurers and $1 billion as an industry wide aggregate.
- Provides 90% Federal share with 10% individual company retention.
- Assesses first $20 billion in losses back to commercial insurers over time.
- Recoups subsequent losses through commercial policyholder surcharges.
- Provides the Treasury Secretary limited flexibility in determining assessments and surcharges based on economic conditions and the impact on urban, rural, and small commercial centers.
- Establishes uniform definition of terrorism.
- Authorizes one-year program with optional extension for up to two additional years.
- Includes limited liability reforms to protect taxpayer funds.

Advantages

- No taxpayer bailout — any Federal funds used to boost liquidity are paid back by commercial industry/policyholders (the primary beneficiaries of any proposal) over time.
- Greatly increases capacity of insurers to offer terrorism coverage.
- Companies get first dollar protection. Without this early protection, few companies can afford their individual risk and won't offer significant or affordable coverage.
- Protects small and large policyholders, and small and large insurers, while retaining incentives for risk management and efficient claims processing.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF H.R. 3210 – FLOOR VERSION

Section 1. Short Title and Table of Contents

This section sets forth the short title of the bill, the “Terrorism Risk Protection Act,” and provides a table of contents.

Section 2. Congressional Findings

This section provides Congressional findings about the damage from the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, the resulting market disruption and potential unavailability of future terrorism insurance coverage, and the need for a temporary industry risk sharing program to facilitate transition back to a viable private insurance and reinsurance market.

Section 3. Authority of Secretary of the Treasury

This section provides that the Secretary of the Treasury will be responsible for carrying out the temporary risk sharing program for the commercial property and casualty insurance industry.

Section 4. Submission of Premium Information to Secretary

This section recognizes that insurance premium information is already provided to State insurance commissioners and the NAIC, but allows the Secretary, to the extent that such information is not otherwise available, to require insurers to submit their net U.S. commercial property and casualty insurance premium data to the NAIC or the Secretary.

Section 5. Initial and Subsequent Triggering Determinations

This section directs the Secretary to determine whether insured losses from acts of terrorism over a 12 month period exceed the triggering thresholds. The section provides for an industry-wide trigger and an individual insurer trigger. The Secretary will make a triggering determination for the entire commercial property and casualty insurance industry if industry-wide losses exceed $1 billion. The Secretary will make a company specific triggering determination if industry-wide losses exceed $100 million and the portion of those losses for any one commercial insurer exceed both 10 percent of the company's capital surplus and net premiums. The lower $100 million threshold does not apply to any commercial insurer that was not providing commercial property and casualty coverage prior to September 11, 2001, except for certain terrorism risk pools.

Subsection (b) gives the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General and Secretary of State, sole authority to determine whether a loss was caused by an act of terrorism and whether the terrorist attack occurred during the period of time covered by this legislation. The ability of the Secretary to make such determinations under this subsection is not limited to commercial property and casualty insurance, but rather is intended to apply for all lines of insurance.

Section 6. Federal Cost-Sharing for Commercial Insurers

Once the Secretary makes an industry-wide triggering determination in section 5, then financial cost-sharing is provided to each insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90% of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of the triggering event and $5 million. If the industry-wide triggering determination is not reached, but the Secretary makes a company specific triggering determination, then financial cost-sharing is provided to that insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90 percent of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of such triggering event and 10 percent of the net commercial property and casualty premiums written by such commercial insurer (as a deductible). Federal assistance is capped at $100 billion. A sense of the Congress provides that terrorist events causing in excess of that amount would necessitate further Congressional action. Any Federal assistance provided will be repaid through the assessments and surcharges provided for in section 7 and 8, and may be designated by the President as emergency budget authority and outlays. Federal assistance received by an insurer should not be treated as a loan for balance sheet purposes. Furthermore, Federal assistance will be available for all property and casualty terrorism risk insurance policies in force during the coverage period of this legislation as long as the insurer was providing such coverage(or not excluding terrorism risk coverage) on or before September 11, 2001.

Section 7. Assessments

This section is modeled after the State insurance guarantee funds that exist in almost every State to address the possibility of insurer insolvencies, as well as numerous State catastrophic insurance funds. After the Secretary makes a triggering determination in section 5, every commercial insurer is subject to an assessment based on an insurer's net commercial insurance premiums to repay any Federal cost-sharing assistance provided under section 6. The aggregate amount assessed will be equal to the lesser of $20 billion or the amount of financial assistance paid.

The aggregate assessment amount shall be assessed to commercial insurers through an industry obligation assessment and, if necessary, the remainder through one or more future financing assessments. Industry obligation assessments are imposed immediately following a triggering determination in an amount up to $5 billion, and if the program is extended pursuant to section 20 for a second or third year, up to $10 billion in each additional year. Financing assessments (any losses above the $5 or $10 billion) shall begin 12 months after the last obligation assessment, and shall not exceed 3 percent of an insurer's net commercial premiums for that year. If the amount assessed through financing assessments in any given year is insufficient to cover Federal assistance, then the Secretary will make a new assessment in each following year until the amount is recouped. The Secretary may delay the assessment of an insurer to avoid an insolvency and may adjust or delay assessments generally as provided in section 9.

Section 8. Terrorism Loss Repayment Surcharge

This section applies only to terrorist losses that exceed $20 billion, and is modeled after several State catastrophic insurance programs. To recoup Federal assistance provided in section 6 for amounts above the Federal share of the $20 billion, the Secretary will impose a commercial policyholder surcharge to the extent that economic and market conditions permit. The factors to be weighed in determining the extent of the surcharge are the ultimate costs to taxpayers if a surcharge is not established, the economic conditions in the commercial marketplace, the affordability of commercial insurance for small and medium-sized business, and such other factors the Secretary considers appropriate. The terrorism repayment surcharge will be on all commercial insurance premiums based on a percentage of any coverage amounts but in any given year may not exceed the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium charged for such coverage. For purposes of this section, commercial property and casualty insurance does not include any reinsurance provided to primary insurance companies, so as to avoid a double surcharge.

Section 9. Administration of Assessments and Surcharges

This section provides the Secretary with significant flexibility in establishing the manner and method of carrying out any assessments or surcharges, in particular as necessary to protect the national interest, avoid unreasonable economic disruption and market instability, and avoid undue burdens on small businesses. The Secretary must also take into consideration the economic impact of any of these assessments and surcharges on urban and smaller commercial and rural areas and different lines of insurance. The Secretary may also make special adjustments to provide for commercial insurers and policies that are not based on a calendar year. The Secretary is also given the authority to assess civil monetary penalties for insurers that submit false data, fail to pay assessed amounts, or fail to collect appropriate surcharges.

Section 10. Application to Self-Insurance Arrangements and Offshore Insurers and Reinsurers

In consultation with the NAIC, the Secretary may apply the provisions of this bill to self-insurance arrangements by municipalities and other entities, but only if that determination is made before the occurrence of a triggering event and all of the provisions of this legislation are applied uniformly to such entities. The Committee expects that many types of self-insuring entities may desire or need risk-sharing coverage for terrorism attacks, while for others participation may be inappropriate. The Secretary is given authority to determine which of these entities should be participating, so long as application of the benefits and costs are applied equally. The Secretary must also ensure that the provisions of this bill are applied as appropriate to any offshore or non-admitted entities that provide commercial property and casualty insurance. Both provisions of this section are intended in part to prevent evasion of assessments.

Section 11. Reserve for Terrorism Coverage Under Commercial Lines of Business

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 12. State Preemption

This section preempts certain State laws to ensure uniform compliance with the bill. Subsection (a) preempts State laws that would conflict with the provision of coverage for acts of terror under the definitions of this legislation. Subsection (b) establishes a narrow preemption to allow insurers to adjust premiums only as necessary to recover the amounts of any assessments under section 7. Subsection (c) preempts State pre-filing approval requirements for commercial property and casualty insurance policies covering acts of terrorism due to the insufficient time between enactment of this legislation and January 1, 2002, but expressly preserves the ability of the States to undertake any subsequent review or action on those policies.

Section 13. Consistent State Guidelines for Coverage for Acts of Terrorism

This section establishes the sense of Congress that the NAIC and the Secretary should consult with each other and develop appropriate definitions for acts of terrorism and standards for determining the number of terrorist events or occurrences. Each State and the Secretary should then adopt such definitions and standards. A further sense of the Congress is provided that the NAIC should develop appropriate guidelines governing insurers' terrorism reserves, including any pooling of those reserves. The Secretary is directed to promulgate those guidelines on a nationwide basis if the States have not adopted guidelines in a uniform manner. A sense of the Congress is also provided that the States should establish regulations requiring separate disclosure to consumers of the costs of any terrorism related coverage. If the States have not adequately adopted such disclosures within a reasonable period of time, the Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC and adopt national guidelines requiring such disclosure.

Section 14. Consultation with State Insurance Regulators and the NAIC

The Secretary is directed to consult with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC in carrying out this bill, and may enter into agreements with the States and the NAIC to provide for the distribution of financial assistance, or the collection of any assessments or surcharges. The Secretary, may, in consultation with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC, investigate and audit claims of insured losses by commercial insurers.

Section 15. Sovereign Immunity Protections

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 16. Study of Potential Effects of Terrorism on Life Insurance Industry

This section directs the President to establish a commission to study and report within 120 days after the enactment of the bill on the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the life insurance industry in the U.S. and markets served by such industry. The membership of this commission shall include: the Secretary of the Treasury; the Chairman of the Federal Reserve System; the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security; and four members appointed by the President from the insurance community.

Section 17. Railroad and Trucking Insurance Study

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury to conduct a study to determine the availability of commercially reasonable railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism. The Secretary must submit a report to Congress within 120 days after enactment of this legislation.

Section 18. Study of Reinsurance Pool System for Future Acts of Terrorism

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury, the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, and the Comptroller General to jointly conduct a study on the advisability and effectiveness of establishing a terrorism reinsurance pool system in lieu of the program created by this bill. The study must utilize a variety of informational sources and be jointly submitted to Congress not later than 6 months after enactment.

Section 19. Definitions

This section establishes various definitions. The term “Act of terrorism” is defined as an act that is unlawful, causes harm to persons or property in the United States or to any U.S. air carrier or U.S. flag vessel outside the United States committed by persons who are recognized (prior or subsequently) by the Department of State or the Secretary as a terrorist group, or who conspire with the surrogates of a recognized terrorist group, and has the purpose of destabilizing any country or to influence the United States by coercion. As defined, an act of terrorism is not an act of war. The Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC to further refine this definition. This section further provides that the bill only applies to commercial property and casualty insurance.

Section 20. Extension of Program

This section grants the Secretary authority to extend the coverage period of the bill through the 2004 calendar year, if the extension is necessary to ensure the adequate availability in the United States of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terror. Extensions are to be made on a year-by-year basis and the Secretary is required to report to Congress on the reasons for any extensions beyond the 2002 calendar year.

Section 21. Regulations

This section grants the Secretary authority to issue regulations as necessary to implement this legislation.

Summary

The Terrorism Risk Protection Act is the most pro-taxpayer, pro-consumer proposal to ensure terrorism coverage for consumers, with a significant commercial industry/policyholder stake, and relatively little regulation required (most of which would only kick in if an event occurred). This proposal is relatively low-maintenance for the government and will sunset without a private sector addiction to Federal subsidies.

For commercial insurers, the bill protects individual companies more than any other proposal. For policyholders, since insurers will have an incentive to write terrorism coverage, it greatly increases the affordability and availability of coverage. Taxpayers and the Federal treasury are protected from unlimited financial risk because they are not on the hook for the ultimate costs. Every dollar of Federal assistance will be repaid. If no event occurs, no bureaucracy is created, and the legislation sunsets after a brief period of time.

Key Elements

- Requires all Federal taxpayer costs/assistance to be paid back.
- Models risk-sharing plan on existing State insurance programs.
- Sets trigger at $100 million for small commercial insurers and $1 billion as an industry wide aggregate.
- Provides 90% Federal share with 10% individual company retention.
- Assesses first $20 billion in losses back to commercial insurers over time.
- Recoups subsequent losses through commercial policyholder surcharges.
- Provides the Treasury Secretary limited flexibility in determining assessments and surcharges based on economic conditions and the impact on urban, rural, and small commercial centers.
- Establishes uniform definition of terrorism.
- Authorizes one-year program with optional extension for up to two additional years.
- Includes limited liability reforms to protect taxpayer funds.

Advantages

- No taxpayer bailout — any Federal funds used to boost liquidity are paid back by commercial industry/policyholders (the primary beneficiaries of any proposal) over time.
- Greatly increases capacity of insurers to offer terrorism coverage.
- Companies get first dollar protection. Without this early protection, few companies can afford their individual risk and won't offer significant or affordable coverage.
- Protects small and large policyholders, and small and large insurers, while retaining incentives for risk management and efficient claims processing.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF H.R. 3210 – FLOOR VERSION

Section 1. Short Title and Table of Contents

This section sets forth the short title of the bill, the “Terrorism Risk Protection Act,” and provides a table of contents.

Section 2. Congressional Findings

This section provides Congressional findings about the damage from the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, the resulting market disruption and potential unavailability of future terrorism insurance coverage, and the need for a temporary industry risk sharing program to facilitate transition back to a viable private insurance and reinsurance market.

Section 3. Authority of Secretary of the Treasury

This section provides that the Secretary of the Treasury will be responsible for carrying out the temporary risk sharing program for the commercial property and casualty insurance industry.

Section 4. Submission of Premium Information to Secretary

This section recognizes that insurance premium information is already provided to State insurance commissioners and the NAIC, but allows the Secretary, to the extent that such information is not otherwise available, to require insurers to submit their net U.S. commercial property and casualty insurance premium data to the NAIC or the Secretary.

Section 5. Initial and Subsequent Triggering Determinations

This section directs the Secretary to determine whether insured losses from acts of terrorism over a 12 month period exceed the triggering thresholds. The section provides for an industry-wide trigger and an individual insurer trigger. The Secretary will make a triggering determination for the entire commercial property and casualty insurance industry if industry-wide losses exceed $1 billion. The Secretary will make a company specific triggering determination if industry-wide losses exceed $100 million and the portion of those losses for any one commercial insurer exceed both 10 percent of the company's capital surplus and net premiums. The lower $100 million threshold does not apply to any commercial insurer that was not providing commercial property and casualty coverage prior to September 11, 2001, except for certain terrorism risk pools.

Subsection (b) gives the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General and Secretary of State, sole authority to determine whether a loss was caused by an act of terrorism and whether the terrorist attack occurred during the period of time covered by this legislation. The ability of the Secretary to make such determinations under this subsection is not limited to commercial property and casualty insurance, but rather is intended to apply for all lines of insurance.

Section 6. Federal Cost-Sharing for Commercial Insurers

Once the Secretary makes an industry-wide triggering determination in section 5, then financial cost-sharing is provided to each insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90% of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of the triggering event and $5 million. If the industry-wide triggering determination is not reached, but the Secretary makes a company specific triggering determination, then financial cost-sharing is provided to that insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90 percent of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of such triggering event and 10 percent of the net commercial property and casualty premiums written by such commercial insurer (as a deductible). Federal assistance is capped at $100 billion. A sense of the Congress provides that terrorist events causing in excess of that amount would necessitate further Congressional action. Any Federal assistance provided will be repaid through the assessments and surcharges provided for in section 7 and 8, and may be designated by the President as emergency budget authority and outlays. Federal assistance received by an insurer should not be treated as a loan for balance sheet purposes. Furthermore, Federal assistance will be available for all property and casualty terrorism risk insurance policies in force during the coverage period of this legislation as long as the insurer was providing such coverage (or not excluding terrorism risk coverage) on or before September 11, 2001.

Section 7. Assessments

This section is modeled after the State insurance guarantee funds that exist in almost every State to address the possibility of insurer insolvencies, as well as numerous State catastrophic insurance funds. After the Secretary makes a triggering determination in section 5, every commercial insurer is subject to an assessment based on an insurer's net commercial insurance premiums to repay any Federal cost-sharing assistance provided under section 6. The aggregate amount assessed will be equal to the lesser of $20 billion or the amount of financial assistance paid.

The aggregate assessment amount shall be assessed to commercial insurers through an industry obligation assessment and, if necessary, the remainder through one or more future financing assessments. Industry obligation assessments are imposed immediately following a triggering determination in an amount up to $5 billion, and if the program is extended pursuant to section 20 for a second or third year, up to $10 billion in each additional year. Financing assessments (any losses above the $5 or $10 billion) shall begin 12 months after the last obligation assessment, and shall not exceed 3 percent of an insurer's net commercial premiums for that year. If the amount assessed through financing assessments in any given year is insufficient to cover Federal assistance, then the Secretary will make a new assessment in each following year until the amount is recouped. The Secretary may delay the assessment of an insurer to avoid an insolvency and may adjust or delay assessments generally as provided in section 9.

Section 8. Terrorism Loss Repayment Surcharge

This section applies only to terrorist losses that exceed $20 billion, and is modeled after several State catastrophic insurance programs. To recoup Federal assistance provided in section 6 for amounts above the Federal share of the $20 billion, the Secretary will impose a commercial policyholder surcharge to the extent that economic and market conditions permit. The factors to be weighed in determining the extent of the surcharge are the ultimate costs to taxpayers if a surcharge is not established, the economic conditions in the commercial marketplace, the affordability of commercial insurance for small and medium-sized business, and such other factors the Secretary considers appropriate. The terrorism repayment surcharge will be on all commercial insurance premiums based on a percentage of any coverage amounts but in any given year may not exceed the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium charged for such coverage. For purposes of this section, commercial property and casualty insurance does not include any reinsurance provided to primary insurance companies, so as to avoid a double surcharge.

Section 9. Administration of Assessments and Surcharges

This section provides the Secretary with significant flexibility in establishing the manner and method of carrying out any assessments or surcharges, in particular as necessary to protect the national interest, avoid unreasonable economic disruption and market instability, and avoid undue burdens on small businesses. The Secretary must also take into consideration the economic impact of any of these assessments and surcharges on urban and smaller commercial and rural areas and different lines of insurance. The Secretary may also make special adjustments to provide for commercial insurers and policies that are not based on a calendar year. The Secretary is also given the authority to assess civil monetary penalties for insurers that submit false data, fail to pay assessed amounts, or fail to collect appropriate surcharges.

Section 10. Application to Self-Insurance Arrangements and Offshore Insurers and Reinsurers

In consultation with the NAIC, the Secretary may apply the provisions of this bill to self-insurance arrangements by municipalities and other entities, but only if that determination is made before the occurrence of a triggering event and all of the provisions of this legislation are applied uniformly to such entities. The Committee expects that many types of self-insuring entities may desire or need risk-sharing coverage for terrorism attacks, while for others participation may be inappropriate. The Secretary is given authority to determine which of these entities should be participating, so long as application of the benefits and costs are applied equally. The Secretary must also ensure that the provisions of this bill are applied as appropriate to any offshore or non-admitted entities that provide commercial property and casualty insurance. Both provisions of this section are intended in part to prevent evasion of assessments.

Section 11. Reserve for Terrorism Coverage Under Commercial Lines of Business

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 12. State Preemption

This section preempts certain State laws to ensure uniform compliance with the bill. Subsection (a) preempts State laws that would conflict with the provision of coverage for acts of terror under the definitions of this legislation. Subsection (b) establishes a narrow preemption to allow insurers to adjust premiums only as necessary to recover the amounts of any assessments under section 7. Subsection (c) preempts State pre-filing approval requirements for commercial property and casualty insurance policies covering acts of terrorism due to the insufficient time between enactment of this legislation and January 1, 2002, but expressly preserves the ability of the States to undertake any subsequent review or action on those policies.

Section 13. Consistent State Guidelines for Coverage for Acts of Terrorism

This section establishes the sense of Congress that the NAIC and the Secretary should consult with each other and develop appropriate definitions for acts of terrorism and standards for determining the number of terrorist events or occurrences. Each State and the Secretary should then adopt such definitions and standards. A further sense of the Congress is provided that the NAIC should develop appropriate guidelines governing insurers' terrorism reserves, including any pooling of those reserves. The Secretary is directed to promulgate those guidelines on a nationwide basis if the States have not adopted guidelines in a uniform manner. A sense of the Congress is also provided that the States should establish regulations requiring separate disclosure to consumers of the costs of any terrorism related coverage. If the States have not adequately adopted such disclosures within a reasonable period of time, the Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC and adopt national guidelines requiring such disclosure.

Section 14. Consultation with State Insurance Regulators and the NAIC

The Secretary is directed to consult with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC in carrying out this bill, and may enter into agreements with the States and the NAIC to provide for the distribution of financial assistance, or the collection of any assessments or surcharges. The Secretary, may, in consultation with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC, investigate and audit claims of insured losses by commercial insurers.

Section 15. Sovereign Immunity Protections

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 16. Study of Potential Effects of Terrorism on Life Insurance Industry

This section directs the President to establish a commission to study and report within 120 days after the enactment of the bill on the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the life insurance industry in the U.S. and markets served by such industry. The membership of this commission shall include: the Secretary of the Treasury; the Chairman of the Federal Reserve System; the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security; and four members appointed by the President from the insurance community.

Section 17. Railroad and Trucking Insurance Study

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury to conduct a study to determine the availability of commercially reasonable railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism. The Secretary must submit a report to Congress within 120 days after enactment of this legislation.

Section 18. Study of Reinsurance Pool System for Future Acts of Terrorism

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury, the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, and the Comptroller General to jointly conduct a study on the advisability and effectiveness of establishing a terrorism reinsurance pool system in lieu of the program created by this bill. The study must utilize a variety of informational sources and be jointly submitted to Congress not later than 6 months after enactment.

Section 19. Definitions

This section establishes various definitions. The term “Act of terrorism” is defined as an act that is unlawful, causes harm to persons or property in the United States or to any U.S. air carrier or U.S. flag vessel outside the United States committed by persons who are recognized (prior or subsequently) by the Department of State or the Secretary as a terrorist group, or who conspire with the surrogates of a recognized terrorist group, and has the purpose of destabilizing any country or to influence the United States by coercion. As defined, an act of terrorism is not an act of war. The Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC to further refine this definition. This section further provides that the bill only applies to commercial property and casualty insurance.

Section 20. Extension of Program

This section grants the Secretary authority to extend the coverage period of the bill through the 2004 calendar year, if the extension is necessary to ensure the adequate availability in the United States of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terror. Extensions are to be made on a year-by-year basis and the Secretary is required to report to Congress on the reasons for any extensions beyond the 2002 calendar year.

Section 21. Regulations

This section grants the Secretary authority to issue regulations as necessary to implement this legislation.

1ST SESSION

H. R. _____

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. ARMEY (for himself, Mr. OXLEY, Mr. SENSENBRENNER, Mr. NUSSLE, and Mr. THOMAS) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To ensure the continued financial capacity of insurers to provide coverage for risks from terrorism, and for other purposes.

- 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE AND TABLE OF CONTENTS.
4 (a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the 5 “Terrorism Risk Protection Act”.

1 SEC. 7. ASSESSMENTS.

2 (a) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a triggering deter-
3 mination, each commercial insurer shall be subject to as-
4 sessments under this section for the purpose of repaying
5 a portion of the financial assistance made available under 6 section 6 in connection with such determination.

7 (b) AGGREGATE ASSESSMENT.—Pursuant to a trig-
8 gering determination, the Secretary shall determine the 9 aggregate amount to be assessed under this section among 10 all commercial insurers, which shall be equal to the lesser 11 of—

12 (1) $20,000,000,000; and

13 (2) the amount of financial assistance paid
14 under section 6 in connection with the triggering de-
15 termination.

16 The aggregate assessment amount under this subsection
17 shall be assessed to commercial insurers through an indus-
18 try obligation assessment under subsection (c) and, if nec-
19 essary, the remainder shall be assessed through one or 20 more financing assessments under subsection (d).

21 (c) INDUSTRY OBLIGATION ASSESSMENTS.—

22 (1) IN GENERAL.—Immediately upon the occur-
23 rence of a triggering determination, the Secretary
24 shall impose an industry obligation assessment
25 under this subsection on all commercial insurers,
26 subject to paragraph (3).

1 (2) AMOUNT.—The aggregate amount of an in-
2 dustry obligation assessment in connection with a
3 triggering determination shall be equal to—

4 (A) in the case of a triggering determina-
5 tion occurring during the covered period speci-
6 fied in section 20(a), the lesser of—

7 (i) the difference between (I)
8 $5,000,000,000, and (II) the aggregate
9 amount of any assessments made by the 10 Secretary pursuant to this section during 11 the portion of such covered period pre-
12 ceding the triggering determination; and

13 (ii) the amount of financial assistance
14 made available under section 6 in connec-
15 tion with the triggering determination; or

16 (B) such other aggregate industry obliga-
17 tion amount as may apply pursuant to sub-
18 section (g).

19 (3) TIMING OF MULTIPLE ASSESSMENTS.—

20 (A) DELAYED IMPOSITION AND AGGREGA-
21 TION OF ASSESSMENTS.—In the case of any
22 triggering determination occurring within 12
23 months of the occurrence of a previous trig-
24 gering determination, any industry obligation
25 assessments under this subsection resulting

1 from such subsequent determination shall be
2 imposed upon the conclusion of the quarterly
3 assessment period under subparagraph (B) dur-
4 ing which such determination occurs.

5 (B) QUARTERLY ASSESSMENT PERIOD.—

6 With respect to a subsequent triggering deter-
7 mination referred to in subparagraph (A), the 8 quarterly assessment periods under this sub-
9 paragraph are—

10 (i) the 3-month period that begins
11 upon the imposition of the industry obliga-
12 tion assessment resulting from the trig-
13 gering determination that—

14 (I) occurred most recently before
15 such subsequent triggering determina-
16 tion; and

17 (II) did not occur within 12
18 months of the occurrence of any pre-
19 vious triggering determination; and

20 (ii) each successive 3-month period
21 thereafter that begins during the covered
22 period.

23 (d) FINANCING ASSESSMENTS.—

24 (1) IN GENERAL.—If the aggregate assessment
25 amount in connection with a triggering determina-

1 tion exceeds the aggregate amount of the industry
2 obligation assessment under subsection (c) in con-
3 nection with the determination, the remaining
4 amount shall be assessed through one or more, as 5 may be necessary pursuant to paragraph (3), financ-
6 ing assessments under this subsection.

7 (2) TIMING.—A financing assessment under
8 this subsection in connection with a triggering deter-
9 mination shall be imposed only upon the expiration 10 of any 12-month period beginning after such deter-
11 mination during which no assessments under this 12 section have been imposed.

13 (3) LIMITATION.—The aggregate amount of 14 any financing assessments imposed under this sub-
15 section on any single commercial insurer during any 16 12-month period shall not exceed the amount that is 17 equal to 3 percent of the net premium for such in-
18 surer for such period.

19 (e) ALLOCATION OF ASSESSMENT.—The portion of 20 the aggregate amount of any industry obligation assess-
21 ment or financing assessment under this section that is 22 allocated to each commercial insurer shall be based on the 23 ratio that the net premium written by such commercial 24 insurer during the year during which the assessment is 25 imposed bears to the aggregate written premium for such

1 year, subject to section 9 and the limitation under sub-
2 section (d)(3) of this section.

3 (f) NOTICE AND OBLIGATION TO PAY.—

4 (1) NOTICE.—As soon as practicable after any 5 triggering determination, the Secretary shall notify
6 each commercial insurer in writing of an assessment
7 under this section, which notice shall include the 8 amount of the assessment allocated to such insurer.

9 (2) EFFECT OF NOTICE.—Upon notice to a
10 commercial insurer, the commercial insurer shall be
11 obligated to pay to the Secretary, not later than 60
12 days after receipt of such notice, the amount of the 13 assessment on such commercial insurer.

14 (3) FAILURE TO MAKE TIMELY PAYMENT.—If
15 any commercial insurer fails to pay an assessment
16 under this section before the deadline established
17 under paragraph (2) for the assessment, the Sec-
18 retary may take either or both of the following ac-
19 tions:

20 (A) CIVIL MONETARY PENALTY.—Assess a
21 civil monetary penalty pursuant to section 9(d)
22 upon such insurer.

23 (B) INTEREST.—Require such insurer to
24 pay interest, at such rate as the Secretary con-
25 siders appropriate, on the amount of the assess-

1 ment that was not paid before the deadline es-
2 tablished under paragraph (2).

3 (g) AGGREGATE INDUSTRY OBLIGATION AMOUNT
4 FOR PROGRAM EXTENSION YEARS.—If the Secretary ex-
5 ercises the authority under section 20(b) to extend the 6 covered period, the aggregate industry obligation amount
7 for purposes of subsection (c)(2)(B) shall, in the case of 8 a triggering determination occurring during the portion of 9 the covered period beginning on the date referred to in 10 section 20(a), be equal to the lesser of—

11 (1) the difference between (A)
12 $10,000,000,000, and (B) the aggregate amount of 13 any assessments made by the Secretary pursuant to 14 this section during the 12-month period preceding 15 the triggering determination; and

16 (2) the amount of financial assistance made
17 available under section 6 in connection with the trig-
18 gering determination.

19 (h) ADMINISTRATIVE FLEXIBILITY.—

20 (1) ADJUSTMENT OF ASSESSMENTS.—The Sec-
21 retary may provide for or require estimations of 22 amounts under this section and may provide for sub-
23 sequent refunds or require additional payments to 24 correct such estimations, as appropriate.

1 (2) DEFERRAL OF CONTRIBUTIONS.—The Sec-
2 retary may defer the payment of part or all of an
3 assessment required under this section to be paid by 4 a commercial insurer, but only to the extent that the 5 Secretary determines that such deferral is necessary
6 to avoid the likely insolvency of the commercial in-7 surer.

8 (3) TIMING OF ASSESSMENTS.—The Secretary
9 shall make adjustments regarding the timing and 10 imposition of assessments (including the calculation 11 of net premiums and aggregate written premium) as 12 appropriate for commercial insurers that provide 13 commercial property and casualty insurance on a
14 non-calendar year basis.

15 SEC. 8. TERRORISM LOSS REPAYMENT SURCHARGE.

16 (a) DETERMINATION OF IMPOSITION AND COLLEC-
17 TION.—

18 (1) IN GENERAL.—If, pursuant to a triggering
19 determination, the Secretary determines that the ag-
20 gregate amount of financial assistance provided pur-
21 suant to section 6 exceeds $20,000,000,000, the 22 Secretary shall consider and weigh the factors under 23 paragraph (2) to determine the extent to which a
24 surcharge under this section should be established.

1 (2) FACTORS.—The factors under this para-
2 graph are—

3 (A) the ultimate costs to taxpayers if a
4 surcharge under this section is not established;

5 (B) the economic conditions in the com-
6 mercial marketplace;

7 (C) the affordability of commercial insur-
8 ance for small- and medium-sized business; and

9 (D) such other factors as the Secretary
10 considers appropriate.

11 (3) POLICYHOLDER PREMIUM.—The amount es-
12 tablished by the Secretary as a surcharge under this 13 section shall be established and imposed as a policy-
14 holder premium surcharge on commercial property
15 and casualty insurance written after such determina-
16 tion, for the purpose of repaying financial assistance
17 made available under section 6 in connection with 18 such triggering determination.

19 (4) COLLECTION.—The Secretary shall provide 20 for commercial insurers to collect surcharge amounts
21 established under this section and remit such 22 amounts collected to the Secretary.

23 (b) AMOUNT AND DURATION.—Subject to subsection
24 (c), the surcharge under this section shall be established
25 in such amount, and shall apply to commercial property

1 and casualty insurance written during such period, as the
2 Secretary determines is necessary to recover the aggregate
3 amount of financial assistance provided under section 6
4 in connection with the triggering determination that ex-
5 ceeds $20,000,000,000.

6 (c) PERCENTAGE LIMITATION.—The surcharge
7 under this section applicable to commercial property and 8 casualty insurance coverage may not exceed, on an annual 9 basis, the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium
10 charged for such coverage.

11 (d) OTHER TERMS.—The surcharge under this sec-
12 tion shall—

13 (1) be based on a percentage of the premium
14 amount charged for commercial property and cas-
15 ualty insurance coverage that a policy provides; and

16 (2) be imposed with respect to all commercial
17 property and casualty insurance coverage written
18 during the period referred to in subsection (b).

19 (e) EXCLUSIONS.—For purposes of this section, com-
20 mercial property and casualty insurance does not include
21 any reinsurance provided to primary insurance companies.

22 SEC. 9. ADMINISTRATION OF ASSESSMENTS AND SUR-
23 CHARGES.

24 (a) MANNER AND METHOD.—

1 (1) IN GENERAL.—Except to the extent speci-
2 fied in such sections, the Secretary shall provide for 3 the manner and method of carrying out assessments
4 under section 7 and surcharges under section 8, in-
5 cluding the timing and procedures of making assess-
6 ments and surcharges, notifying commercial insurers
7 of assessments and surcharge requirements, col-
8 lecting payments from and surcharges through com-
9 mercial insurers, and refunding of any excess
10 amounts paid or crediting such amounts against fu-
11 ture assessments.

12 (2) EFFECT OF ASSESSMENTS AND SUR-
13 CHARGES ON URBAN AND SMALLER COMMERCIAL
14 AND RURAL AREAS AND DIFFERENT LINES OF IN-
15 SURANCE.—In determining the method and manner
16 of imposing assessments under section 7 and sur-
17 charges under section 8, including the amount of 18 such assessments and surcharges, the Secretary
19 shall take into consideration—

20 (A) the economic impact of any such as-
21 sessments and surcharges on commercial cen-
22 ters of urban areas, including the effect on 23 commercial rents and commercial insurance
24 premiums, particularly rents and premiums
25 charged to small businesses, and the availability

3 SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS.

4 The Congress finds that—

- 5 (1) the terrorist attacks on the World Trade
6 Center and the Pentagon of September 11, 2001, re-
7 sulted in a large number of deaths and injuries, the 8 destruction and damage to buildings, and interrup-
9 tion of business operations;
- 10 (2) the attacks have inflicted possibly the larg-
11 est losses ever incurred by insurers and reinsurers in 12 a single day;
- 13 (3) while the insurance and reinsurance indus-
14 tries have committed to pay the losses arising from

1 of lease space and commercial insurance within
2 urban areas;

3 (B) the risk factors related to rural areas
4 and smaller commercial centers, including the 5 potential exposure to loss and the likely mag-
6 nitude of such loss, as well as any resulting 7 cross-subsidization that might result; and

8 (C) the various exposures to terrorism risk
9 for different lines of commercial property and 10 casualty insurance.

11 (b) TIMING OF COVERAGES AND ASSESSMENTS.—
12 The Secretary may adjust the timing of coverages and as-
13 sessments provided under this Act to provide for equiva-
14 lent application of the provisions of this Act to commercial
15 insurers and policies that are not based on a calendar
16 year.

17 (c) ADJUSTMENT.—The Secretary may adjust the as-
18 sessments charged under section 7 or the percentage im-
19 posed under the surcharge under section 8 at any time,
20 as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the na-
21 tional interest, which may include avoiding unreasonable
22 economic disruption or excessive market instability and 23 avoiding undue burdens on small businesses.

24 (d) CIVIL MONETARY PENALTY.—

1 (1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may assess a
2 civil monetary penalty in an amount not exceeding
3 the amount under paragraph (2) against any com-
4 mercial insurer that the Secretary determines, on 5 the record after opportunity for a hearing—

6 (A) has failed to pay an assessment under
7 section 7 in accordance with the requirements
8 of, or regulations issued, under this Act;

9 (B) has failed to charge, collect, or remit
10 surcharges under section 8 in accordance with 11 the requirements of, or regulations issued
12 under, this Act;

13 (C) has intentionally provided to the Sec-
14 retary erroneous information regarding pre-
15 mium or loss amounts; or

16 (D) has otherwise failed to comply with the 17 provisions of, or the regulations issued under,
18 this Act.

19 (2) AMOUNT.—The amount under this para-
20 graph is the greater of $1,000,000 and, in the case
21 of any failure to pay, charge, collect, or remit
22 amounts in accordance with this Act or the regula-
23 tions issued under this Act, such amount in dispute.

1 SEC. 10. APPLICATION TO SELF-INSURANCE ARRANGE-
2 MENTS AND OFFSHORE INSURERS AND REIN-
3 SURERS.

4 (a) SELF-INSURANCE ARRANGEMENTS.—The Sec-
5 retary may, in consultation with the NAIC, apply the pro-
6 visions of this Act, as appropriate, to self-insurance ar-
7 rangements by municipalities and other entities, but only 8 if such application is determined before the occurrence of 9 a triggering event and all of the provisions of this Act are 10 applied uniformly to such entities.

11 (b) OFFSHORE INSURERS AND REINSURERS.—The 12 Secretary shall ensure that the provisions of this Act are 13 applied as appropriate to any offshore or non-admitted en-
14 tities that provide commercial property and casualty insur-
15 ance.

16 SEC. 11. STUDY OF RESERVES FOR PROPERTY AND CAS-
17 UALTY INSURANCE FOR TERRORIST OR
18 OTHER CATASTROPHIC EVENTS.

19 (a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Treasury
20 shall conduct a study of issues relating to permitting prop-
21 erty and casualty insurance companies to establish deduct-
22 ible reserves against losses for future acts of terrorism,
23 including—

24 (1) whether such tax-favored reserves would
25 promote (A) insurance coverage of risks of ter-
26 rorism, and (B) the accumulation of additional re-

1 sources needed to satisfy potential claims resulting
2 from such risks,

3 (2) the lines of business for which such reserves
4 would be appropriate, including whether such re-
5 serves should be applied to personal or commercial
6 lines of business,

7 (3) how the amount of such reserves would be
8 determined,

9 (4) how such reserves would be administered,

10 (5) a comparison of the Federal tax treatment
11 of such reserves with other insurance reserves per-
12 mitted under Federal tax laws,

13 (6) an analysis of the use of tax-favored re-
14 serves for catastrophic events, including acts of ter-
15 rorism, under the tax laws of foreign countries, and

16 (7) whether it would be appropriate to permit
17 similar reserves for other future catastrophic events,
18 such as natural disasters, taking into account the 19 factors under the preceding paragraphs.

20 (b) REPORT.—Not later than 4 months after the date
21 of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury
22 shall submit a report to Congress on the results of the 23 study under subsection (a), together with recommenda-
24 tions for amending the Internal Revenue Code of 1986
25 or other appropriate action.

1 SEC. 12. STATE PREEMPTION.

2 (a) COVERED PERILS.—A commercial insurer shall
3 be considered to have complied with any State law that
4 requires or regulates the provision of insurance coverage
5 for acts of terrorism if the insurer provides coverage in 6 accordance with the definitions regarding acts of terrorism
7 under this Act or under any regulations issued by the Sec-
8 retary.

9 (b) RATE LAWS.—If any provision of any State law
10 prevents an insurer from increasing its premium rates in 11 an amount necessary to recover any assessments pursuant 12 to section 7, such provision is preempted only to the extent
13 necessary to provide for such insurer to recover such 14 losses.

15 (c) FILE AND USE.—

16 (1) IN GENERAL.—With respect only to com-
17 mercial property and casualty insurance covering
18 acts of terrorism, any provision of State law that re-
19 quires, as a condition precedent to the effectiveness
20 of rates or policies for such insurance that is made 21 available by an insurer licensed to transact such 22 business in the State, any action (including prior ap-
23 proval by the State insurance regulator for such 24 State) other than filing of such rates and policies
25 and related information with such State insurance
26 regulator is preempted to the extent such law re-

1 quires such additional actions for such insurance
2 coverage.

3 (2) SUBSEQUENT REVIEW AUTHORITY.—Para-
4 graph (1) shall not be considered to preempt a pro-
5 vision of State law solely because the law provides 6 that rates and policies for such insurance coverage
7 are, upon such filing, subject to subsequent review
8 and action, which may include actions to disapprove
9 or discontinue use of such rates or policies, by the 10 State insurance regulator.

11 (3) TREATMENT OF PRIOR REVIEW PROVI-
12 SIONS.—Any authority for prior review and action
13 by a State regulator preempted under paragraph (1)
14 shall be deemed to be authority to conduct a subse-
15 quent review and action on such filings.

16 SEC. 13. CONSISTENT STATE GUIDELINES FOR COVERAGE
17 FOR ACTS OF TERRORISM.

18 (a) SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING COVERED
19 PERILS.—It is the sense of the Congress that—

20 (1) the NAIC, in consultation with the Sec-
21 retary, should develop appropriate definitions for 22 acts of terrorism that are consistent with this Act
23 and appropriate standards for making determina-
24 tions regarding occurrences of acts of terrorism;

1 (2) each State should adopt the definitions and
2 standards developed by the NAIC for purposes of 3 regulating insurance coverage made available in that 4 State;

5 (3) in consulting with the NAIC, the Secretary
6 should advocate and promote the development of 7 definitions and standards that are appropriate for 8 purposes of this Act; and

9 (4) after consultation with the NAIC, the Sec-
10 retary should adopt further definitions for acts of 11 terrorism and standards for determinations that are 12 appropriate for this Act.

13 (b) INSURANCE RESERVE GUIDELINES.—

14 (1) SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING ADOPTION
15 BY STATES.—It is the sense of the Congress that—

16 (A) the NAIC should develop appropriate
17 guidelines for commercial insurers and pools re-
18 garding maintenance of reserves against the 19 risks of acts of terrorism; and

20 (B) each State should adopt such guide-
21 lines for purposes of regulating commercial in-
22 surers doing business in that State.

23 (2) CONSIDERATION OF ADOPTION OF NA-
24 TIONAL GUIDELINES.—Upon the expiration of the 6-
25 month period beginning on the date of the enact-

1 ment of this Act, the Secretary shall make a deter-
2 mination of whether the guidelines referred to in
3 paragraph (1) have, by such time, been developed
4 and adopted by nearly all States in a uniform man-
5 ner. If the Secretary determines that such guidelines
6 have not been so developed and adopted, the Sec-
7 retary shall consider adopting, and may adopt, such 8 guidelines on a national basis in a manner that 9 supercedes any State law regarding maintenance of 10 reserves against such risks.

11 (c) GUIDELINES REGARDING DISCLOSURE OF PRIC-
12 ING AND TERMS OF COVERAGE.—

13 (1) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of 14 the Congress that the States should require, by laws
15 or regulations governing the provision of commercial
16 property and casualty insurance that includes cov-
17 erage for acts of terrorism, that the price of any 18 such terrorism coverage, including the costs of any 19 terrorism related assessments or surcharges under 20 this Act, be separately disclosed.

21 (2) ADOPTION OF NATIONAL GUIDELINES.—If 22 the Secretary determines that the States have not
23 enacted laws or adopted regulations adequately pro-
24 viding for the disclosures described in paragraph (1)
25 within a reasonable period of time after the date of

1 the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall, after
2 consultation with the NAIC, adopt guidelines on a
3 national basis requiring such disclosure in a manner
4 that supercedes any State law regarding such disclo-
5 sure.

6 SEC. 14. CONSULTATION WITH STATE INSURANCE REGU-
7 LATORS AND NAIC.

8 (a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall consult with 9 the State insurance regulators and the NAIC in carrying 10 out this Act.

11 (b) FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE, ASSESSMENTS, AND 12 SURCHARGES.—The Secretary may take such actions, in-13 cluding entering into such agreements and providing such 14 technical and organizational assistance to insurers and 15 State insurance regulators, as may be necessary to provide 16 for the distribution of financial assistance under section
17 6 and the collection of assessments under section 7 and 18 surcharges under section 8.

19 (c) INVESTIGATING AND AUDITING CLAIMS.—The 20 Secretary may, in consultation with the State insurance
21 regulators and the NAIC, investigate and audit claims of 22 insured losses by commercial insurers and otherwise re-
23 quire verification of amounts of premiums or losses, as 24 appropriate.

1 SEC. 15. LITIGATION MANAGEMENT.

2 (a) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION FOR CLAIMS RE-
3 LATING TO TERRORIST ACTS.—

4 (1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), if 5 the Secretary makes a determination pursuant to 6 section 5(b) that one or more acts of terrorism oc-
7 curred, there shall exist a Federal cause of action,
8 which, except as provided in subsection (b), shall be
9 the exclusive remedy for claims arising out of, relat-
10 ing to, or resulting from such acts of terrorism.

11 (2) EFFECT OF DETERMINATION.—A deter-
12 mination referred to in paragraph (1)—

13 (A) shall not be subject to judicial review;

14 (B) shall take effect upon its publication in 15 the Federal Register; and

16 (C) shall be subject to such changes as the 17 Secretary may provide in one or more later de-
18 terminations made in accordance with the pro-
19 visions of this paragraph.

20 (3) SUBSTANTIVE LAW.—The substantive law
21 for decision in any such action shall be derived from 22 the law, including choice of law principles, of the 23 State in which such acts of terrorism occurred, un-
24 less such law is inconsistent with or preempted by 25 Federal law.

1 the September 11 attacks, the resulting disruption
2 has created widespread market uncertainties with re-
3 gard to the risk of losses arising from possible fu-
4 ture terrorist attacks;

5 (4) such uncertainty threatens the continued
6 availability of United States commercial property
7 and casualty insurance for terrorism risk at mean-
8 ingful coverage levels;

9 (5) the unavailability of affordable commercial
10 property and casualty insurance for terrorist acts
11 threatens the growth and stability of the United
12 States economy, including impeding the ability of fi-
13 nancial services providers to finance commercial
14 property acquisitions and new construction;

15 (6) in the past, the private insurance and rein-
16 surance markets have shown a remarkable resiliency
17 in adapting to changed circumstances;

18 (7) given time, the private markets will diver-
19 sify and develop risk spreading mechanisms to in-
20 crease capacity and guard against possible future
21 losses incurred by terrorist attacks;

22 (8) it is necessary to create a temporary indus-
23 try risk sharing program to ensure the continued
24 availability of commercial property and casualty in-
25 surance and reinsurance for terrorism-related risks;

1 (4) JURISDICTION.—For each determination
2 under paragraph (1), the Judicial Panel on Multidis-
3 trict Litigation shall designate one or more district
4 courts of the United States which shall have original
5 and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions for any 6 claim (including any claim for loss of property, per-
7 sonal injury, or death) brought pursuant to this sub-
8 section. The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litiga-
9 tion shall select and assign the district court or 10 courts based on the convenience of the parties and 11 the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings.
12 For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district
13 court or courts designated by the Judicial Panel on 14 Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all
15 judicial districts in the United States.

16 (5) LIMITS ON DAMAGES.—In an action
17 brought under this subsection for damages:

18 (A) No punitive damages intended to pun-
19 ish or deter, exemplary damages, or other dam-
20 ages not intended to compensate a plaintiff for 21 actual losses may be awarded, nor shall any 22 party be liable for interest prior to the judg-
23 ment.

24 (B)(i) Each defendant in such an action
25 shall be liable only for the amount of non-

1 economic damages allocated to the defendant in
2 direct proportion to the percentage of responsi-
3 bility of the defendant for the harm to the 4 plaintiff, and no plaintiff may recover non-
5 economic damages unless the plaintiff suffered
6 physical harm.

7 (ii) For purposes of clause (i), the term
8 “noneconomic damages” means damages for 9 losses for physical and emotional pain, suf-
10 fering, inconvenience, physical impairment,
11 mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoy-
12 ment of life, loss of society and companionship, 13 loss of consortium, hedonic damages, injury to 14 reputation, and any other nonpecuniary losses.

15 (6) COLLATERAL SOURCES.—Any recovery by a 16 plaintiff in an action under this subsection shall be 17 reduced by the amount of collateral source com-
18 pensation, if any, that the plaintiff has received or 19 is entitled to receive as a result of the acts of ter-
20 rorism with respect to which the determination
21 under paragraph (1) was made.

22 (7) ATTORNEY FEES.—Reasonable attorneys
23 fees for work performed shall be subject to the dis-
24 cretion of the court, but in no event shall any attor-
25 ney charge, demand, receive, or collect for services

1 rendered, fees or compensation in an amount in ex-
2 cess of 20 percent of the damages ordered by the 3 court to be paid pursuant to this section, or in ex-
4 cess of 20 percent of any court-approved settlement
5 made of any claim cognizable under this section.
6 Any attorney who charges, demands, receives, or col-
7 lects for services rendered in connection with such 8 claim any amount in excess of that allowed under 9 this section, if recovery be had, shall be fined not 10 more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than 1
11 year, or both.

12 (b) EXCLUSION.—Nothing in this section shall apply
13 to or in any way limit the liability of any person who—

14 (1) attempts to commit, knowingly participates
15 in, aids and abets, or commits any act of terrorism
16 with respect to which a determination under sub-
17 section (a)(1) was made, or any criminal act related 18 to or resulting from such act of terrorism; or

19 (2) participates in a conspiracy to commit any 20 such act of terrorism or any such criminal act.

21 (c) RIGHT OF SUBROGATION.—The United States
22 shall have the right of subrogation with respect to any 23 claim paid by the United States under this Act.

24 (d) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER LAW.—Nothing in this 25 section shall be construed to affect—

1 (1) any party's contractual right to arbitrate a
2 dispute; or

3 (2) any provision of the Air Transportation
4 Safety and System Stabilization Act (Public Law
5 107-42; 49 U.S.C. 40101 note).

6 (e) SATISFACTION OF JUDGMENTS FROM FROZEN
7 ASSETS OF TERRORISTS, TERRORIST ORGANIZATIONS,
8 AND STATE SPONSORS OF TERRORISM.—

9 (1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in para-
10 graph (2), in every case in which a person obtains
11 a judgment against a terrorist party on a claim for 12 compensatory damages for an act of terrorism, or a
13 claim for money damages brought pursuant to sec-
14 tion 1605(a)(7) of title 28, United States Code, the 15 frozen assets of that terrorist party, or any agency
16 or instrumentality of that terrorist party, shall be 17 available for satisfaction of the judgment, to the ex-
18 tent of any compensatory damages awarded in the 19 judgment for which the terrorist party is liable.

20 (2) PRESIDENTIAL WAIVER.—

21 (A) Subject to subparagraph (B), upon de-
22 termining on an asset-by-asset basis that a
23 waiver is necessary in the national security in-24 terest, the President may waive the require-
25 ments of this subsection in connection with

1 (and prior to the enforcement of) any judicial
2 order directing attachment in aid of execution
3 or execution against any property subject to the 4 Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or 5 the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations.

6 (B) A waiver under this paragraph shall 7 not apply to—

8 (i) property subject to the Vienna
9 Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the
10 Vienna Convention on Consular Relations
11 that has been used for any nondiplomatic
12 purpose (including use as rental property),
13 the proceeds of such use; or

14 (ii) any asset subject to the Vienna
15 Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the
16 Vienna Convention on Consular Relations
17 that is sold or otherwise transferred for 18 value to a third party, the proceeds of such 19 sale or transfer.

20 (3) DEFINITIONS.—In this subsection:

21 (A) The term “terrorist party” means a
22 terrorist, a terrorist organization, or a foreign 23 state designated as a state sponsor of terrorism
24 under section 6(j) of the Export Administration
25 Act of 1979 (50 U.S.C. App. 2405(j)) or sec-

1 tion 620A of the Foreign Assistance Act of
2 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2371).

3 (B) The term “frozen assets” means assets
4 seized or frozen by the United States in accord-
5 ance with law.

6 (C) The term “property subject to the Vi-
7 enna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the 8 Vienna Convention on Consular Relations” and 9 the term “asset subject to the Vienna Conven-
10 tion on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna
11 Convention on Consular Relations” mean any 12 property or asset, respectively, the attachment
13 in aid of execution or execution of which would 14 result in a violation of an obligation of the 15 United States under the Vienna Convention on 16 Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention
17 on Consular Relations, as the case may be.

18 SEC. 16. STUDY OF POTENTIAL EFFECTS OF TERRORISM
19 ON LIFE INSURANCE INDUSTRY.

20 (a) ESTABLISHMENT.—Not later than 30 days after 21 the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall es-
22 tablish a commission (in this section referred to as the 23 “Commission”) to study and report on the potential ef-
24 fects of an act or acts of terrorism on the life insurance

1 industry in the United States and the markets served by
2 such industry.

3 (b) MEMBERSHIP AND OPERATIONS.—

4 (1) APPOINTMENT.—The Commission shall con-
5 sist of 7 members, as follows:

6 (A) The Secretary of the Treasury or the 7 designee of the Secretary.

8 (B) The Chairman of the Board of Gov-
9 ernors of the Federal Reserve System or the 10 designee of the Chairman.

11 (C) The Assistant to the President for 12 Homeland Security.

13 (D) 4 members appointed by the Presi-
14 dent, who shall be—

15 (i) a representative of direct under-16 writers of life insurance within the United
17 States;

18 (ii) a representative of reinsurers of 19 life insurance within the United States;

20 (iii) an officer of the NAIC; and

21 (iv) a representative of insurance
22 agents for life underwriters.

23 (2) OPERATIONS.—The chairperson of the 24 Commission shall determine the manner in which 25 the Commission shall operate, including funding,

1 staffing, and coordination with other governmental
2 entities.

3 (c) STUDY.—The Commission shall conduct a study
4 of the life insurance industry in the United States, which 5 shall identify and make recommendations regarding—

6 (1) possible actions to encourage, facilitate, and 7 sustain the provision, by the life insurance industry
8 in the United States, of coverage for losses due to 9 death or disability resulting from an act or acts of 10 terrorism, including in the face of threats of such 11 acts; and

12 (2) possible actions or mechanisms to sustain or 13 supplement the ability of the life insurance industry
14 in the United States to cover losses due to death or 15 disability resulting from an act or acts of terrorism
16 in the event that—

17 (A) such acts significantly affect mortality
18 experience of the population of the United
19 States over any period of time;

20 (B) such losses jeopardize the capital and 21 surplus of the life insurance industry in the 22 United States as a whole; or

23 (C) other consequences from such acts
24 occur, as determined by the Commission, that 25 may significantly affect the ability of the life in-

1 surance industry in the United States to inde-
2 pendently cover such losses.

3 (d) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Commission may
4 make a recommendation pursuant to subsection (c) only
5 upon the concurrence of a majority of the members of the 6 Commission.

7 (e) REPORT.—Not later than 120 days after the date
8 of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall submit to 9 the House of Representatives and the Senate a report de-
10 scribing the results of the study and any recommendations
11 developed under subsection (c).

12 (f) TERMINATION.—The Commission shall terminate
13 60 days after submission of the report pursuant to sub-
14 section (e).

15 SEC. 17. RAILROAD AND TRUCKING INSURANCE STUDY.

16 The Secretary of the Treasury shall conduct a study
17 to determine how the Federal Government can address a
18 possible crisis in the availability and affordability of rail-
19 road and trucking insurance by making such insurance for 20 acts of terrorism available on commercially reasonable 21 terms. Not later than 120 days after the date of the enact-
22 ment of this Act the Secretary shall submit to the Con-
23 gress a report regarding the results and conclusions of the 24 study.

1 SEC. 18. STUDY OF REINSURANCE POOL SYSTEM FOR FU-
2 TURE ACTS OF TERRORISM.

3 (a) STUDY.—The Secretary, the Board of Governors
4 of the Federal Reserve System, and the Comptroller Gen-
5 eral of the United States shall jointly conduct a study on 6 the advisability and effectiveness of establishing a reinsur-
7 ance pool system relating to future acts of terrorism to 8 replace the program provided for under this Act.

9 (b) CONSULTATION.—In conducting the study under 10 subsection (a), the Secretary, the Board of Governors of 11 the Federal Reserve System, and the Comptroller General
12 shall consult with (1) academic experts, (2) the United 13 Nations Secretariat for Trade and Development, (3) rep-
14 resentatives from the property and casualty insurance in-
15 dustry, (4) representatives from the reinsurance industry,
16 (5) the NAIC, and (6) such consumer organizations as 17 the Secretary considers appropriate.

18 (c) REPORT.—Not later than 6 months after the date
19 of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary, the Board of 20 Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and the Comp-
21 troller General shall jointly submit a report to the Con-
22 gress on the results of the study under subsection (a).

23 SEC. 19. DEFINITIONS.

24 For purposes of this Act, the following definitions
25 shall apply:

26 (1) ACT OF TERRORISM.—

1 (9) such action is necessary to limit immediate
2 market disruptions, encourage economic stabiliza-
3 tion, and facilitate a transition to a viable market
4 for private terrorism risk insurance;

5 (10) in addition, it is necessary to repeal por-
6 tions of the tax law which discourage the insurance
7 market from developing the necessary reserves to 8 handle possible future losses due to acts of ter-
9 rorism; and

10 (11) terrorism insurance plays an important
11 role in the efficient functioning of the economy and 12 the financing of commercial property acquisitions
13 and new construction and, therefore, the Congress
14 intends to continue to monitor, review, and evaluate 15 the private terrorism insurance and reinsurance
16 marketplace to determine whether additional action
17 is necessary to maintain the long-term stability of 18 the real estate and capital markets.

19 SEC. 3. AUTHORITY OF SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

20 The Secretary of the Treasury shall be responsible 21 for carrying out a program for financial assistance for 22 commercial property and casualty insurers, as provided in 23 this Act.

1 (A) IN GENERAL.—The term “act of ter-
2 rorism” means any act that the Secretary de-
3 termines meets the requirements under sub-
4 paragraph (B), as such requirements are fur-
5 ther defined and specified by the Secretary in 6 consultation with the NAIC.

7 (B) REQUIREMENTS.—An act meets the 8 requirements of this subparagraph if the act—

9 (i) is unlawful;

10 (ii) causes harm to a person, property,
11 or entity, in the United States, or in the 12 case of a domestic United States air car-
13 rier or a United States flag vessel (or a 14 vessel based principally in the United
15 States on which United States income tax
16 is paid and whose insurance coverage is 17 subject to regulation in the United States),
18 in or outside the United States;

19 (iii) is committed by a person or 20 group of persons or associations who are 21 recognized, either before or after such act,
22 by the Department of State or the Sec-
23 retary as an international terrorist group
24 or have conspired with such a group or the 25 group’s agents or surrogates;

1 (iv) has as its purpose to overthrow or
2 destabilize the government of any country,
3 or to influence the policy or affect the con-
4 duct of the government of the United
5 States or any segment of the economy of 6 United States, by coercion; and

7 (v) is not considered an act of war,
8 except that this clause shall not apply with 9 respect to any coverage for workers com-
10 pensation.

11 (2) AFFILIATE.—The term “affiliate” means,
12 with respect to an insurer, any company that con-
13 trols, is controlled by, or is under common control
14 with the insurer.

15 (3) AGGREGATE WRITTEN PREMIUM.—The 16 term “aggregate written premium” means, with re-
17 spect to a year, the aggregate premium amount of 18 all commercial property and casualty insurance cov-
19 erage written during such year under all lines of 20 commercial property and casualty insurance.

21 (4) COMMERCIAL INSURER.—The term “com-
22 mercial insurer” means any corporation, association,
23 society, order, firm, company, mutual, partnership,
24 individual, aggregation of individuals, or any other
25 legal entity that provides commercial property and

1 casualty insurance. Such term includes any affiliates
2 of a commercial insurer.

3 (5) COMMERCIAL PROPERTY AND CASUALTY IN-
4 SURANCE.—

5 (A) IN GENERAL.—The term “commercial
6 property and casualty insurance” means insur-
7 ance or reinsurance, or retrocessional reinsur-
8 ance, for persons or properties in the United 9 States against—

10 (i) loss of or damage to property;

11 (ii) loss of income or extra expense in-12 curred because of loss of or damage to 13 property;

14 (iii) third party liability claims caused
15 by negligence or imposed by statute or con-
16 tract, including workers compensation; or

17 (iv) loss resulting from debt or default
18 of another.

19 (B) EXCLUSIONS.—Such term does not 20 include—

21 (i) insurance for homeowners, tenants,
22 private passenger nonfleet automobiles,
23 mobile homes, or other insurance for per-
24 sonal, family, or household needs;

- 1 (ii) insurance for professional liability,
2 including medical malpractice, errors and
3 omissions, or directors' and officers' liabil-
4 ity; or
5 (iii) health or life insurance.

6 (6) CONTROL.—A company has control over an-
7 other company if—

8 (A) the company directly or indirectly or 9 acting through one or more other persons owns,
10 controls, or has power to vote 25 percent or 11 more of any class of voting securities of the 12 other company;

13 (B) the company controls in any manner
14 the election of a majority of the directors or 15 trustees of the other company; or

16 (C) the Secretary determines, after notice
17 and opportunity for hearing, that the company
18 directly or indirectly exercises a controlling in-19 fluence over the management or policies of the 20 other company.

21 (7) COVERED PERIOD.—The term “covered pe-
22 riod” has the meaning given such term in section
23 20.

24 (8) INDUSTRY-WIDE LOSSES.—The term “in-25 dustry-wide losses” means the aggregate insured

1 losses sustained by all insurers from coverage writ-
2 ten under all lines of commercial property and cas-
3 ualty insurance.

4 (9) INSURED LOSS.—The term “insured loss”
5 means any loss, net of reinsurance and
6 retrocessional reinsurance, covered by commercial
7 property and casualty insurance.

8 (10) NAIC.—The term “NAIC” means the Na-
9 tional Association of Insurance Commissioners.

10 (11) NET PREMIUM.—The term “net premium”
11 means, with respect a commercial insurer and a 12 year, the aggregate premium amount collected by 13 such commercial insurer for all commercial property
14 and casualty insurance coverage written during such 15 year under all lines of commercial property and cas-
16 ualty insurance by such commercial insurer, less any 17 premium paid by such commercial insurer to other 18 commercial insurers to insure or reinsure those 19 risks.

20 (12) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary”
21 means the Secretary of the Treasury.

22 (13) STATE.—The term “State” means the 23 States of the United States, the District of Colum-
24 bia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Com-
25 monwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, Guam,

1 the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and any other
2 territory or possession of the United States.

3 (14) STATE INSURANCE REGULATOR.—The
4 term “State insurance regulator” means, with re-
5 spect to a State, the principal insurance regulatory
6 authority of the State.

7 (15) TRIGGERING DETERMINATION.—The term
8 “triggering determination” has the meaning given
9 such term in section 5(a).

10 (16) TRIGGERING EVENT.—The term “trig-
11 gering event” means, with respect to a triggering de-
12 termination, the occurrence of an act of terrorism,
13 or the occurrence of such acts, that caused the in-
14 sured losses resulting in such triggering determina-
15 tion.

16 (17) UNITED STATES.—The term “United
17 States” means, collectively, the States (as such term 18 is defined in this section).

19 SEC. 20. COVERED PERIOD AND EXTENSION OF PROGRAM.

20 (a) COVERED PERIOD.—Except to the extent pro-
21 vided otherwise under subsection (b), for purposes of this
22 Act, the term “covered period” means the period begin-
23 ning on the date of the enactment of this Act and ending
24 on January 1, 2003.

1 (b) EXTENSION OF PROGRAM.—If the Secretary de-
2 termines that extending the covered period is necessary
3 to ensure the adequate availability in the United States
4 of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage
5 for acts of terrorism, the Secretary may, subject to sub-
6 section (c), extend the covered period by not more than 7 two years.

8 (c) REPORT.—The Secretary may exercise the au-
9 thority under subsection (b) to extend the covered period
10 only if the Secretary submits a report to the Congress pro-
11 viding notice of and setting forth the reasons for such ex-
12 tension.

13 SEC. 21. REGULATIONS.

14 The Secretary shall issue any regulations necessary
15 to carry out this Act.

1 SEC. 4. SUBMISSION OF PREMIUM INFORMATION TO SEC-
2 RETARY.

3 To the extent such information is not otherwise avail-
4 able to the Secretary, the Secretary may require each in-
5 surer to submit, to the Secretary or to the NAIC, a state-
6 ment specifying the net premium amount of coverage writ-
7 ten by such insurer under each line of commercial property
8 and casualty insurance sold by such insurer during such 9 periods as the Secretary may provide.

10 SEC. 5. INITIAL AND SUBSEQUENT TRIGGERING DETER-
11 MINATIONS.

12 (a) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this Act, a “trig-
13 gering determination” is a determination by the Secretary
14 that an act of terrorism has occurred during the covered 15 period and that the aggregate insured losses resulting 16 from such occurrence or from multiple occurrences of acts
17 of terrorism all occurring during the covered period, meet
18 the requirements under either of the following paragraphs:

19 (1) INDUSTRY-WIDE TRIGGER.—Such industry-
20 wide losses exceed $1,000,000,000.

21 (2) INDIVIDUAL INSURER TRIGGER.—Such in-
22 dustry-wide losses exceed $100,000,000 and some 23 portion of such losses for any single commercial in-24 surer exceed—

1 (A) 10 percent of the capital surplus of
2 such commercial insurer (as such term is de-
3 fined by the Secretary); and

4 (B) 10 percent of the net premium written
5 by such commercial insurer that is in force at 6 the time the insured losses occurred;

7 except that this paragraph shall not apply to any
8 commercial insurer that was not providing commer-
9 cial property and casualty insurance coverage prior
10 to September 11, 2001, unless such insurer incurs
11 such losses under commercial property and casualty
12 insurance providing coverage for acts of terrorism
13 through a pool of reserves for terrorism risks that 14 is not under the control of any commercial insurer.

15 (b) DETERMINATIONS REGARDING OCCURRENCES.—

16 The Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney Gen-
17 eral of the United States and the Secretary of State, shall 18 have the sole authority which may not be delegated or des-
19 ignated to any other officer, employee, or position, for de-
20 termining whether—

21 (1) an occurrence was caused by an act of ter-
22 rorism; and

23 (2) an act of terrorism occurred during the cov-
24 ered period.

1 SEC. 6. FEDERAL COST-SHARING FOR COMMERCIAL INSUR-
2 ERS.

3 (a) IN GENERAL.—Pursuant to a triggering deter-
4 mination, the Secretary shall provide financial assistance
5 to commercial insurers in accordance with this section to 6 cover insured losses resulting from acts of terrorism,
7 which shall be repaid in accordance with subsection (e).

8 (b) AMOUNT.—

9 (1) INDUSTRY-WIDE TRIGGER.—Subject to sub-
10 sections (c) and (d), with respect to a triggering de-
11 termination under section 5(a)(1), financial assist-
12 ance shall be made available under this section to 13 each commercial insurer in an amount equal to the 14 difference between—

15 (A) 90 percent of the amount of the in-
16 sured losses of the insurer as a result of the 17 triggering event involved; and

18 (B) $5,000,000.

19 (2) INDIVIDUAL INSURER TRIGGER.—Subject to 20 subsections (c) and (d), with respect to a triggering
21 determination under section 5(a)(2), financial assist-
22 ance shall be made available under this section, to 23 each commercial insurer incurring insured losses as 24 a result of the triggering event involved that exceed 25 the amounts under subparagraphs (A) and (B) of 1 such section, in an amount equal to the difference

2 between—

3 (A) 90 percent of the amount of the in-
4 sured losses of the insurer as a result of such 5 triggering event; and

6 (B) the amount under subparagraph (B) of 7 section 5(a)(2).

8 (3) ADDITIONAL AMOUNTS.—Subject to sub-
9 section (c), if the Secretary has provided financial 10 assistance to a commercial insurer pursuant to para-
11 graph (2) of this subsection and subsequently makes 12 a triggering determination pursuant to section
13 5(a)(1), the Secretary shall provide financial assist-
14 ance to such insurer in connection with such subse-
15 quent triggering determination (in addition to the 16 amount of financial assistance provided to such in-17 surer pursuant to paragraph (1) of this subsection)
18 in the amount under section 5(a)(2)(B).

19 (c) AGGREGATE LIMITATION.—

20 (1) IN GENERAL.—The aggregate amount of fi-
21 nancial assistance provided pursuant to this section
22 may not exceed $100,000,000,000.

23 (2) SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING SEVERE
24 LOSSES.—It is the sense of the Congress that acts
25 of terrorism resulting in insured losses greater than

1 $100,000,000,000 would necessitate further action
2 by the Congress to address such additional losses.

3 (d) LIMITATIONS.—The Secretary may establish such
4 limitations as may be necessary to ensure that payments
5 under this section in connection with a triggering deter-
6 mination are made only to commercial insurers that are 7 not in default of any obligation under section 7 to pay
8 assessments or under section 8 to collect surcharges.

9 (e) REPAYMENT.—Financial assistance made avail-
10 able under this section shall be repaid through assess-
11 ments under section 7 collected by the Secretary and sur-
12 charges remitted to the Secretary under section 8. Any 13 such amounts collected or remitted shall be deposited into 14 the general fund of the Treasury.

15 (f) EMERGENCY DESIGNATION.—Congress des-
16 ignates the amount of new budget authority and outlays
17 in all fiscal years resulting from this section as an emer-
18 gency requirement pursuant to section 252(e) of the Bal-
19 anced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985
20 (2 U.S.C. 901(e)). Such amount shall be available only 21 to the extent that a request, that includes designation of 22 such amount as an emergency requirement as defined in 23 such Act, is transmitted by the President to Congress.

Summary

The Terrorism Risk Protection Act is the most pro-taxpayer, pro-consumer proposal to ensure terrorism coverage for consumers, with a significant commercial industry/policyholder stake, and relatively little regulation required (most of which would only kick in if an event occurred). This proposal is relatively low-maintenance for the government and will sunset without a private sector addiction to Federal subsidies.

For commercial insurers, the bill protects individual companies more than any other proposal. For policyholders, since insurers will have an incentive to write terrorism coverage, it greatly increases the affordability and availability of coverage. Taxpayers and the Federal treasury are protected from unlimited financial risk because they are not on the hook for the ultimate costs. Every dollar of Federal assistance will be repaid. If no event occurs, no bureaucracy is created, and the legislation sunsets after a brief period of time.

Key Elements

- Requires all Federal taxpayer costs/assistance to be paid back.
- Models risk-sharing plan on existing State insurance programs.
- Sets trigger at $100 million for small commercial insurers and $1 billion as an industry wide aggregate.
- Provides 90% Federal share with 10% individual company retention.
- Assesses first $20 billion in losses back to commercial insurers over time.
- Recoups subsequent losses through commercial policyholder surcharges.
- Provides the Treasury Secretary limited flexibility in determining assessments and surcharges based on economic conditions and the impact on urban, rural, and small commercial centers.
- Establishes uniform definition of terrorism.
- Authorizes one-year program with optional extension for up to two additional years.
- Includes limited liability reforms to protect taxpayer funds.

Advantages

- No taxpayer bailout — any Federal funds used to boost liquidity are paid back by commercial industry/policyholders (the primary beneficiaries of any proposal) over time.
- Greatly increases capacity of insurers to offer terrorism coverage.
- Companies get first dollar protection. Without this early protection, few companies can afford their individual risk and won't offer significant or affordable coverage.
- Protects small and large policyholders, and small and large insurers, while retaining incentives for risk management and efficient claims processing.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF H.R. 3210 – FLOOR VERSION

Section 1. Short Title and Table of Contents

This section sets forth the short title of the bill, the “Terrorism Risk Protection Act,” and provides a table of contents.

Section 2. Congressional Findings

This section provides Congressional findings about the damage from the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, the resulting market disruption and potential unavailability of future terrorism insurance coverage, and the need for a temporary industry risk sharing program to facilitate transition back to a viable private insurance and reinsurance market.

Section 3. Authority of Secretary of the Treasury

This section provides that the Secretary of the Treasury will be responsible for carrying out the temporary risk sharing program for the commercial property and casualty insurance industry.

Section 4. Submission of Premium Information to Secretary

This section recognizes that insurance premium information is already provided to State insurance commissioners and the NAIC, but allows the Secretary, to the extent that such information is not otherwise available, to require insurers to submit their net U.S. commercial property and casualty insurance premium data to the NAIC or the Secretary.

Section 5. Initial and Subsequent Triggering Determinations

This section directs the Secretary to determine whether insured losses from acts of terrorism over a 12 month period exceed the triggering thresholds. The section provides for an industry-wide trigger and an individual insurer trigger. The Secretary will make a triggering determination for the entire commercial property and casualty insurance industry if industry-wide losses exceed $1 billion. The Secretary will make a company specific triggering determination if industry-wide losses exceed $100 million and the portion of those losses for any one commercial insurer exceed both 10 percent of the company's capital surplus and net premiums. The lower $100 million threshold does not apply to any commercial insurer that was not providing commercial property and casualty coverage prior to September 11, 2001, except for certain terrorism risk pools.

Subsection (b) gives the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General and Secretary of State, sole authority to determine whether a loss was caused by an act of terrorism and whether the terrorist attack occurred during the period of time covered by this legislation. The ability of the Secretary to make such determinations under this subsection is not limited to commercial property and casualty insurance, but rather is intended to apply for all lines of insurance.

Section 6. Federal Cost-Sharing for Commercial Insurers

Once the Secretary makes an industry-wide triggering determination in section 5, then financial cost-sharing is provided to each insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90% of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of the triggering event and $5 million. If the industry-wide triggering determination is not reached, but the Secretary makes a company specific triggering determination, then financial cost-sharing is provided to that insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90 percent of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of such triggering event and 10 percent of the net commercial property and casualty premiums written by such commercial insurer (as a deductible). Federal assistance is capped at $100 billion. A sense of the Congress provides that terrorist events causing in excess of that amount would necessitate further Congressional action. Any Federal assistance provided will be repaid through the assessments and surcharges provided for in section 7 and 8, and may be designated by the President as emergency budget authority and outlays. Federal assistance received by an insurer should not be treated as a loan for balance sheet purposes. Furthermore, Federal assistance will be available for all property and casualty terrorism risk insurance policies in force during the coverage period of this legislation as long as the insurer was providing such coverage (or not excluding terrorism risk coverage) on or before September 11, 2001.

Section 7. Assessments

This section is modeled after the State insurance guarantee funds that exist in almost every State to address the possibility of insurer insolvencies, as well as numerous State catastrophic insurance funds. After the Secretary makes a triggering determination in section 5, every commercial insurer is subject to an assessment based on an insurer's net commercial insurance premiums to repay any Federal cost-sharing assistance provided under section 6. The aggregate amount assessed will be equal to the lesser of $20 billion or the amount of financial assistance paid.

The aggregate assessment amount shall be assessed to commercial insurers through an industry obligation assessment and, if necessary, the remainder through one or more future financing assessments. Industry obligation assessments are imposed immediately following a triggering determination in an amount up to $5 billion, and if the program is extended pursuant to section 20 for a second or third year, up to $10 billion in each additional year. Financing assessments (any losses above the $5 or $10 billion) shall begin 12 months after the last obligation assessment, and shall not exceed 3 percent of an insurer's net commercial premiums for that year. If the amount assessed through financing assessments in any given year is insufficient to cover Federal assistance, then the Secretary will make a new assessment in each following year until the amount is recouped. The Secretary may delay the assessment of an insurer to avoid an insolvency and may adjust or delay assessments generally as provided in section 9.

Section 8. Terrorism Loss Repayment Surcharge

This section applies only to terrorist losses that exceed $20 billion, and is modeled after several State catastrophic insurance programs. To recoup Federal assistance provided in section 6 for amounts above the Federal share of the $20 billion, the Secretary will impose a commercial policyholder surcharge to the extent that economic and market conditions permit. The factors to be weighed in determining the extent of the surcharge are the ultimate costs to taxpayers if a surcharge is not established, the economic conditions in the commercial marketplace, the affordability of commercial insurance for small and medium-sized business, and such other factors the Secretary considers appropriate. The terrorism repayment surcharge will be on all commercial insurance premiums based on a percentage of any coverage amounts but in any given year may not exceed the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium charged for such coverage. For purposes of this section, commercial property and casualty insurance does not include any reinsurance provided to primary insurance companies, so as to avoid a double surcharge.

Section 9. Administration of Assessments and Surcharges

This section provides the Secretary with significant flexibility in establishing the manner and method of carrying out any assessments or surcharges, in particular as necessary to protect the national interest, avoid unreasonable economic disruption and market instability, and avoid undue burdens on small businesses. The Secretary must also take into consideration the economic impact of any of these assessments and surcharges on urban and smaller commercial and rural areas and different lines of insurance. The Secretary may also make special adjustments to provide for commercial insurers and policies that are not based on a calendar year. The Secretary is also given the authority to assess civil monetary penalties for insurers that submit false data, fail to pay assessed amounts, or fail to collect appropriate surcharges.

Section 10. Application to Self-Insurance Arrangements and Offshore Insurers and Reinsurers

In consultation with the NAIC, the Secretary may apply the provisions of this bill to self-insurance arrangements by municipalities and other entities, but only if that determination is made before the occurrence of a triggering event and all of the provisions of this legislation are applied uniformly to such entities. The Committee expects that many types of self-insuring entities may desire or need risk-sharing coverage for terrorism attacks, while for others participation may be inappropriate. The Secretary is given authority to determine which of these entities should be participating, so long as application of the benefits and costs are applied equally. The Secretary must also ensure that the provisions of this bill are applied as appropriate to any offshore or non-admitted entities that provide commercial property and casualty insurance. Both provisions of this section are intended in part to prevent evasion of assessments.

Section 11. Reserve for Terrorism Coverage Under Commercial Lines of Business

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 12. State Preemption

This section preempts certain State laws to ensure uniform compliance with the bill. Subsection (a) preempts State laws that would conflict with the provision of coverage for acts of terror under the definitions of this legislation. Subsection (b) establishes a narrow preemption to allow insurers to adjust premiums only as necessary to recover the amounts of any assessments under section 7. Subsection (c) preempts State pre-filing approval requirements for commercial property and casualty insurance policies covering acts of terrorism due to the insufficient time between enactment of this legislation and January 1, 2002, but expressly preserves the ability of the States to undertake any subsequent review or action on those policies.

Section 13. Consistent State Guidelines for Coverage for Acts of Terrorism

This section establishes the sense of Congress that the NAIC and the Secretary should consult with each other and develop appropriate definitions for acts of terrorism and standards for determining the number of terrorist events or occurrences. Each State and the Secretary should then adopt such definitions and standards. A further sense of the Congress is provided that the NAIC should develop appropriate guidelines governing insurers' terrorism reserves, including any pooling of those reserves. The Secretary is directed to promulgate those guidelines on a nationwide basis if the States have not adopted guidelines in a uniform manner. A sense of the Congress is also provided that the States should establish regulations requiring separate disclosure to consumers of the costs of any terrorism related coverage. If the States have not adequately adopted such disclosures within a reasonable period of time, the Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC and adopt national guidelines requiring such disclosure.

Section 14. Consultation with State Insurance Regulators and the NAIC

The Secretary is directed to consult with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC in carrying out this bill, and may enter into agreements with the States and the NAIC to provide for the distribution of financial assistance, or the collection of any assessments or surcharges. The Secretary, may, in consultation with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC, investigate and audit claims of insured losses by commercial insurers.

Section 15. Sovereign Immunity Protections

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 16. Study of Potential Effects of Terrorism on Life Insurance Industry

This section directs the President to establish a commission to study and report within 120 days after the enactment of the bill on the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the life insurance industry in the U.S. and markets served by such industry. The membership of this commission shall include: the Secretary of the Treasury; the Chairman of the Federal Reserve System; the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security; and four members appointed by the President from the insurance community.

Section 17. Railroad and Trucking Insurance Study

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury to conduct a study to determine the availability of commercially reasonable railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism. The Secretary must submit a report to Congress within 120 days after enactment of this legislation.

Section 18. Study of Reinsurance Pool System for Future Acts of Terrorism

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury, the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, and the Comptroller General to jointly conduct a study on the advisability and effectiveness of establishing a terrorism reinsurance pool system in lieu of the program created by this bill. The study must utilize a variety of informational sources and be jointly submitted to Congress not later than 6 months after enactment.

Section 19. Definitions

This section establishes various definitions. The term “Act of terrorism” is defined as an act that is unlawful, causes harm to persons or property in the United States or to any U.S. air carrier or U.S. flag vessel outside the United States committed by persons who are recognized (prior or subsequently) by the Department of State or the Secretary as a terrorist group, or who conspire with the surrogates of a recognized terrorist group, and has the purpose of destabilizing any country or to influence the United States by coercion. As defined, an act of terrorism is not an act of war. The Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC to further refine this definition. This section further provides that the bill only applies to commercial property and casualty insurance.

Section 20. Extension of Program

This section grants the Secretary authority to extend the coverage period of the bill through the 2004 calendar year, if the extension is necessary to ensure the adequate availability in the United States of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terror. Extensions are to be made on a year-by-year basis and the Secretary is required to report to Congress on the reasons for any extensions beyond the 2002 calendar year.

Section 21. Regulations

This section grants the Secretary authority to issue regulations as necessary to implement this legislation.

Summary

The Terrorism Risk Protection Act is the most pro-taxpayer, pro-consumer proposal to ensure terrorism coverage for consumers, with a significant commercial industry/policyholder stake, and relatively little regulation required (most of which would only kick in if an event occurred). This proposal is relatively low-maintenance for the government and will sunset without a private sector addiction to Federal subsidies.

For commercial insurers, the bill protects individual companies more than any other proposal. For policyholders, since insurers will have an incentive to write terrorism coverage, it greatly increases the affordability and availability of coverage. Taxpayers and the Federal treasury are protected from unlimited financial risk because they are not on the hook for the ultimate costs. Every dollar of Federal assistance will be repaid. If no event occurs, no bureaucracy is created, and the legislation sunsets after a brief period of time.

Key Elements

- Requires all Federal taxpayer costs/assistance to be paid back.
- Models risk-sharing plan on existing State insurance programs.
- Sets trigger at $100 million for small commercial insurers and $1 billion as an industry wide aggregate.
- Provides 90% Federal share with 10% individual company retention.
- Assesses first $20 billion in losses back to commercial insurers over time.
- Recoups subsequent losses through commercial policyholder surcharges.
- Provides the Treasury Secretary limited flexibility in determining assessments and surcharges based on economic conditions and the impact on urban, rural, and small commercial centers.
- Establishes uniform definition of terrorism.
- Authorizes one-year program with optional extension for up to two additional years.
- Includes limited liability reforms to protect taxpayer funds.

Advantages

- No taxpayer bailout — any Federal funds used to boost liquidity are paid back by commercial industry/policyholders (the primary beneficiaries of any proposal) over time.
- Greatly increases capacity of insurers to offer terrorism coverage.
- Companies get first dollar protection. Without this early protection, few companies can afford their individual risk and won't offer significant or affordable coverage.
- Protects small and large policyholders, and small and large insurers, while retaining incentives for risk management and efficient claims processing.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF H.R. 3210 – FLOOR VERSION

Section 1. Short Title and Table of Contents

This section sets forth the short title of the bill, the “Terrorism Risk Protection Act,” and provides a table of contents.

Section 2. Congressional Findings

This section provides Congressional findings about the damage from the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, the resulting market disruption and potential unavailability of future terrorism insurance coverage, and the need for a temporary industry risk sharing program to facilitate transition back to a viable private insurance and reinsurance market.

Section 3. Authority of Secretary of the Treasury

This section provides that the Secretary of the Treasury will be responsible for carrying out the temporary risk sharing program for the commercial property and casualty insurance industry.

Section 4. Submission of Premium Information to Secretary

This section recognizes that insurance premium information is already provided to State insurance commissioners and the NAIC, but allows the Secretary, to the extent that such information is not otherwise available, to require insurers to submit their net U.S. commercial property and casualty insurance premium data to the NAIC or the Secretary.

Section 5. Initial and Subsequent Triggering Determinations

This section directs the Secretary to determine whether insured losses from acts of terrorism over a 12 month period exceed the triggering thresholds. The section provides for an industry-wide trigger and an individual insurer trigger. The Secretary will make a triggering determination for the entire commercial property and casualty insurance industry if industry-wide losses exceed $1 billion. The Secretary will make a company specific triggering determination if industry-wide losses exceed $100 million and the portion of those losses for any one commercial insurer exceed both 10 percent of the company’s capital surplus and net premiums. The lower $100 million threshold does not apply to any commercial insurer that was not providing commercial property and casualty coverage prior to September 11, 2001, except for certain terrorism risk pools.

Subsection (b) gives the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General and Secretary of State, sole authority to determine whether a loss was caused by an act of terrorism and whether the terrorist attack occurred during the period of time covered by this legislation. The ability of the Secretary to make such determinations under this subsection is not limited to commercial property and casualty insurance, but rather is intended to apply for all lines of insurance.

Section 6. Federal Cost-Sharing for Commercial Insurers

Once the Secretary makes an industry-wide triggering determination in section 5, then financial cost-sharing is provided to each insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90% of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of the triggering event and $5 million. If the industry-wide triggering determination is not reached, but the Secretary makes a company specific triggering determination, then financial cost-sharing is provided to that insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90 percent of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of such triggering event and 10 percent of the net commercial property and casualty premiums written by such commercial insurer (as a deductible). Federal assistance is capped at $100 billion. A sense of the Congress provides that terrorist events causing in excess of that amount would necessitate further Congressional action. Any Federal assistance provided will be repaid through the assessments and surcharges provided for in section 7 and 8, and may be designated by the President as emergency budget authority and outlays. Federal assistance received by an insurer should not be treated as a loan for balance sheet purposes. Furthermore, Federal assistance will be available for all property and casualty terrorism risk insurance policies in force during the coverage period of this legislation as long as the insurer was providing such coverage(or not excluding terrorism risk coverage) on or before September 11, 2001.

Section 7. Assessments

This section is modeled after the State insurance guarantee funds that exist in almost every State to address the possibility of insurer insolvencies, as well as numerous State catastrophic insurance funds. After the Secretary makes a triggering determination in section 5, every commercial insurer is subject to an assessment based on an insurer's net commercial insurance premiums to repay any Federal cost-sharing assistance provided under section 6. The aggregate amount assessed will be equal to the lesser of $20 billion or the amount of financial assistance paid.

The aggregate assessment amount shall be assessed to commercial insurers through an industry obligation assessment and, if necessary, the remainder through one or more future financing assessments. Industry obligation assessments are imposed immediately following a triggering determination in an amount up to $5 billion, and if the program is extended pursuant to section 20 for a second or third year, up to $10 billion in each additional year. Financing assessments (any losses above the $5 or $10 billion) shall begin 12 months after the last obligation assessment, and shall not exceed 3 percent of an insurer's net commercial premiums for that year. If the amount assessed through financing assessments in any given year is insufficient to cover Federal assistance, then the Secretary will make a new assessment in each following year until the amount is recouped. The Secretary may delay the assessment of an insurer to avoid an insolvency and may adjust or delay assessments generally as provided in section 9.

Section 8. Terrorism Loss Repayment Surcharge

This section applies only to terrorist losses that exceed $20 billion, and is modeled after several State catastrophic insurance programs. To recoup Federal assistance provided in section 6 for amounts above the Federal share of the $20 billion, the Secretary will impose a commercial policyholder surcharge to the extent that economic and market conditions permit. The factors to be weighed in determining the extent of the surcharge are the ultimate costs to taxpayers if a surcharge is not established, the economic conditions in the commercial marketplace, the affordability of commercial insurance for small and medium-sized business, and such other factors the Secretary considers appropriate. The terrorism repayment surcharge will be on all commercial insurance premiums based on a percentage of any coverage amounts but in any given year may not exceed the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium charged for such coverage. For purposes of this section, commercial property and casualty insurance does not include any reinsurance provided to primary insurance companies, so as to avoid a double surcharge.

Section 9. Administration of Assessments and Surcharges

This section provides the Secretary with significant flexibility in establishing the manner and method of carrying out any assessments or surcharges, in particular as necessary to protect the national interest, avoid unreasonable economic disruption and market instability, and avoid undue burdens on small businesses. The Secretary must also take into consideration the economic impact of any of these assessments and surcharges on urban and smaller commercial and rural areas and different lines of insurance. The Secretary may also make special adjustments to provide for commercial insurers and policies that are not based on a calendar year. The Secretary is also given the authority to assess civil monetary penalties for insurers that submit false data, fail to pay assessed amounts, or fail to collect appropriate surcharges.

Section 10. Application to Self-Insurance Arrangements and Offshore Insurers and Reinsurers

In consultation with the NAIC, the Secretary may apply the provisions of this bill to self-insurance arrangements by municipalities and other entities, but only if that determination is made before the occurrence of a triggering event and all of the provisions of this legislation are applied uniformly to such entities. The Committee expects that many types of self-insuring entities may desire or need risk-sharing coverage for terrorism attacks, while for others participation may be inappropriate. The Secretary is given authority to determine which of these entities should be participating, so long as application of the benefits and costs are applied equally. The Secretary must also ensure that the provisions of this bill are applied as appropriate to any offshore or non-admitted entities that provide commercial property and casualty insurance. Both provisions of this section are intended in part to prevent evasion of assessments.

Section 11. Reserve for Terrorism Coverage Under Commercial Lines of Business

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 12. State Preemption

This section preempts certain State laws to ensure uniform compliance with the bill. Subsection (a) preempts State laws that would conflict with the provision of coverage for acts of terror under the definitions of this legislation. Subsection (b) establishes a narrow preemption to allow insurers to adjust premiums only as necessary to recover the amounts of any assessments under section 7. Subsection (c) preempts State pre-filing approval requirements for commercial property and casualty insurance policies covering acts of terrorism due to the insufficient time between enactment of this legislation and January 1, 2002, but expressly preserves the ability of the States to undertake any subsequent review or action on those policies.

Section 13. Consistent State Guidelines for Coverage for Acts of Terrorism

This section establishes the sense of Congress that the NAIC and the Secretary should consult with each other and develop appropriate definitions for acts of terrorism and standards for determining the number of terrorist events or occurrences. Each State and the Secretary should then adopt such definitions and standards. A further sense of the Congress is provided that the NAIC should develop appropriate guidelines governing insurers' terrorism reserves, including any pooling of those reserves. The Secretary is directed to promulgate those guidelines on a nationwide basis if the States have not adopted guidelines in a uniform manner. A sense of the Congress is also provided that the States should establish regulations requiring separate disclosure to consumers of the costs of any terrorism related coverage. If the States have not adequately adopted such disclosures within a reasonable period of time, the Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC and adopt national guidelines requiring such disclosure.

Section 14. Consultation with State Insurance Regulators and the NAIC

The Secretary is directed to consult with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC in carrying out this bill, and may enter into agreements with the States and the NAIC to provide for the distribution of financial assistance, or the collection of any assessments or surcharges. The Secretary, may, in consultation with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC, investigate and audit claims of insured losses by commercial insurers.

Section 15. Sovereign Immunity Protections

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 16. Study of Potential Effects of Terrorism on Life Insurance Industry

This section directs the President to establish a commission to study and report within 120 days after the enactment of the bill on the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the life insurance industry in the U.S. and markets served by such industry. The membership of this commission shall include: the Secretary of the Treasury; the Chairman of the Federal Reserve System; the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security; and four members appointed by the President from the insurance community.

Section 17. Railroad and Trucking Insurance Study

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury to conduct a study to determine the availability of commercially reasonable railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism. The Secretary must submit a report to Congress within 120 days after enactment of this legislation.

Section 18. Study of Reinsurance Pool System for Future Acts of Terrorism

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury, the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, and the Comptroller General to jointly conduct a study on the advisability and effectiveness of establishing a terrorism reinsurance pool system in lieu of the program created by this bill. The study must utilize a variety of informational sources and be jointly submitted to Congress not later than 6 months after enactment.

Section 19. Definitions

This section establishes various definitions. The term "Act of terrorism" is defined as an act that is unlawful, causes harm to persons or property in the United States or to any U.S. air carrier or U.S. flag vessel outside the United States committed by persons who are recognized (prior or subsequently) by the Department of State or the Secretary as a terrorist group, or who conspire with the surrogates of a recognized terrorist group, and has the purpose of destabilizing any country or to influence the United States by coercion. As defined, an act of terrorism is not an act of war. The Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC to further refine this definition. This section further provides that the bill only applies to commercial property and casualty insurance.

Section 20. Extension of Program

This section grants the Secretary authority to extend the coverage period of the bill through the 2004 calendar year, if the extension is necessary to ensure the adequate availability in the United States of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terror. Extensions are to be made on a year-by-year basis and the Secretary is required to report to Congress on the reasons for any extensions beyond the 2002 calendar year.

Section 21. Regulations

This section grants the Secretary authority to issue regulations as necessary to implement this legislation.

Terror Insurance

ú Prior to Thanksgiving, Chairman Sarbanes and Senators Gramm, Dodd and Enzi reached agreement on a bill would have provided federal risk sharing for losses over $10 billion. They agreed to two provisions limiting liability in terrorism cases, both of which would have sunsetted with the rest if the bill after two or three years: consolidation of claims in a single federal court and a ban on punitive damages. We expressed strong support for the agreement.

ú At the behest of trial lawyers, Daschle prohibited Sarbanes from introducing the bill. Daschle is now drafting a Democratic proposal.

ú We are continuing to work with Senator Gramm, who may introduce the original agreement. We had hoped that Senator Dodd would be on the Gramm bill, but this now seems unlikely.

ú The House will take up an Oxley-Baker bill on Thursday

ú We are much less supportive of the overall structure of the House bill, which has a complicated payback mechanism, but the bill has strong liability provisions.

ú Larry and Glenn have emphasized that the Administration will insist on some liability limitations because:

ú In many cases, the cause of the rising insurance prices is the risk of open-ended liability. For example, railroads and trucking companies are expecting increases as a result of the fact that hazardous cargo could be used in an attack. These businesses are not paying higher prices as a result of first-party coverage issues; they are paying for the risk of a runaway verdict in state court.

ú For as long as the federal backstop is in place, taxpayer dollars are at risk.

Designing meaningful procedures before any future attacks is necessary to ensure that Congress isn't forced to act quickly after the fact.

Subject: NOT ANOTHER TURKEY!

U R G E N T !

On Wednesday, the House Rules Committee will be considering the Terrorism Risk Protection (i.e., insurance) Bill reported by the Financial Services Committee. As reported, the bill is H.R. 3210, however, we have learned that a comprehensive Manager's Amendment will be offered which is very likely to include across-the-board tort reform which would limit the rights of victims and their families in the event of a future terrorist attack.

REV_00136732

This will NOT be a simple matter of the government protecting insurance companies from having to insure against punitive damages in future terrorism cases, or making sure that taxpayer money isn't used to reimburse insurers for an insured's willful, wanton, or reckless misconduct. Instead, this is clearly a cynical attempt by some to irresponsibly use the terrorism insurance bill as a vehicle to advance their long-standing tort reform agenda.

Among the items we understand may be included in the Manager's Amendment are:

- * Complete elimination of punitive damages in terrorism cases, protection not just for the insurer or the government but for the wrongdoer as well; also limits on non-economic damage awards--either a cap on non-economic damages, or the elimination of joint liability for non-economic damages, or both. Punitive damages are very rarely awarded. They are reserved for those cases where a defendant's misconduct is not merely negligent or careless, but willfully reckless. For example, if a security firm protecting a gas pipeline knowingly hired an illegal alien it knew had a criminal record, that conduct would be protected under this proposal. Non-economic damages are REAL damages. The loss of a limb, eyesight, or the ability to have children and the loss of a loved one are real, life-altering losses. Limiting them would discriminate against children, the elderly and homemaking moms. And capping them would harm the most severely injured.

- * Limits on attorneys' fees. This may be the most cynical proposal of all. For one thing, this is a proposal to limit only plaintiffs' attorneys fees; there are no limits on what defendants would be allowed to pay their attorneys. This is nothing more than a political agenda that would have the effect of penalizing families who seek legal representation. The likely proposal is a limit on contingent fees. The tort reformers know that the contingent fee system is the key to the court house for average Americans. The contingent fee system is the only way for average Americans to take on large corporations and powerful interests, and compete on a level playing field. And remember, under the contingent fee system, the plaintiff pays his or her attorney absolutely nothing unless he or she prevails in the courtroom. What has any of this to do with preserving the market for terrorism risk insurance?

This is only a sampling of what we hear may be in the Manager's Amendment. Congress needs to focus on the real issue, which is a responsible role for the federal government in working with insurers to extend terrorism risk protection beyond December 31st. Congress should turn its back on this unrelated tort reform agenda.

Oppose the Manager's Amendment; support genuine terrorism risk protection.

As we learn more about the Manager's Amendment, and the possible development of an alternative (perhaps an alternative offered as a substitute), we will be in touch with you. Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to get in touch with us at 202-944-2818.

This email responds to Bridgeland's request for more information regarding liability limitations for NYC in the Aviation Security Act. In short, there is indeed such a limitation, but it protects only NYC and does not operate, in the view of WHCO or Robert McCallum of the Civil Division, to solve the problem of the lack of indemnification for the contractors.

In particular, the Aviation and Transportation Security Act includes the following provision:

" LIMITATIONS ON LIABILITY FOR NEW YORK CITY- Liability for all claims, whether for compensatory or punitive damages or for contribution or indemnity arising from the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001, against the City of New York shall not exceed the greater of the city's insurance coverage or $350,000,000. If a claimant who is eligible to seek compensation under section 405 of this Act, submits a claim under section 405, the claimant waives the right to file a civil action (or to be a party to an action) in any Federal or State court for damages sustained as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001, including any such action against the City of New York. The preceding sentence does not apply to a civil action to recover collateral source obligations."

The Conference Report has this to say about the meaning of the provision:

"The Conference substitute also limits the liability for all claims arising from the terrorist-related attacks of September 11, 2001, brought against the City of New York to the greater of the City's insurance coverage or $350,000,000. This limitation on damages against the City of New York, however, does not apply to any non-government or private entity that is contracted with the City."

REV_00136740

In other words, the statutory limitation does not extend to contractors and the like who might argue they are agents of New York.

As to anecdotal legislative history, Liz Dougherty of DPC recalls that it was Don Young (not McCain) who inserted the language in an effort to garner support for the bill from the New York delegation. (In fact, McCain complained on the floor about the inclusion of these provisions as evidence of unfair interest group influence). Don Marsh of Legislative Affairs is going to find out more from Young's staff as to the intended purpose of the provision, how it wound up in the bill, and at whose behest, et cetera.

As to the scope of the statutory liability limitation for NYC, WHCO is of the view that one can advance arguments for either broad and narrow interpretations based on the meaning of the phrase "arising from." That is, it is not clear from the face of the statute or the legislative history whether the liability limitation is only for claims directly and immediately related to the attacks (e.g., wrongful death claims for persons trapped in the building) or whether it extends to claims for injury that occurred a few steps down the causal chain (e.g. a personal injury claim for an accident during debris removal, months after the attack).

Even on a broad reading of "claims arising from" the attacks, however, the provision only provides protection to NYC and does nothing for the contractors. For instance, if a third party sued the contractors for damages caused by an accident during the cleanup and the contractors in turn sued NYC for indemnification, NYC would be protected against that claim up to the statutory limit but the contractors would be on the hook for all damages that might be awarded.

Accordingly, I do not view the instant provision as solving the contractual issue at hand. I got the impression from Austin this morning that NYC somehow thought this provision fixed everything, but my conclusion is that it does not. To repeat, it fixes things from NYC's particular standpoint of liability, but it does not solve the larger problem of the contractors' liability on the site and the fact that NYC has not indemnified them for potential claims arising out of their work or secured insurance for such indemnification.

Also, you may be interested to know that Pataki is now pushing for a similar liability limitation for the State of New York. He is working with DeLay's office on language now. The solution for the contractor situation (if indeed it remains a live "emergency") is to fashion a like limitation for the debris removal contractors, and perhaps even for other contractors at the site. As we have noted all along, that is, although not ideal, preferable to a federal indemnification of NYC or the State.

Finally, the latest update from McCallum is excerpted below for your information:

"My last conversations were last Tues. with the attny for the contractors who continued to stress the ability of the federal gov't to provide an indemnity I told him and the folks in NY that I would be back in touch with them this week once we had gotten from Ernst & Young the insurance analysis and once we had gotten info on the insurance coverages and efforts from Willis, neither of which we have received."

That's it for now.

Summary

The Terrorism Risk Protection Act is the most pro-taxpayer, pro-consumer proposal to ensure terrorism coverage for consumers, with a significant commercial industry/policyholder stake, and relatively little regulation required (most of which would only kick in if an event occurred). This proposal is relatively low-maintenance for the government and will sunset without a private sector addiction to Federal subsidies.

For commercial insurers, the bill protects individual companies more than any other proposal. For policyholders, since insurers will have an incentive to write terrorism coverage, it greatly increases the affordability and availability of coverage. Taxpayers and the Federal treasury are protected from unlimited financial risk because they are not on the hook for the ultimate costs. Every dollar of Federal assistance will be repaid. If no event occurs, no bureaucracy is created, and the legislation sunsets after a brief period of time.

Key Elements

- Requires all Federal taxpayer costs/assistance to be paid back.
- Models risk-sharing plan on existing State insurance programs.
- Sets trigger at $100 million for small commercial insurers and $1 billion as an industry wide aggregate.
- Provides 90% Federal share with 10% individual company retention.
- Assesses first $20 billion in losses back to commercial insurers over time.
- Recoups subsequent losses through commercial policyholder surcharges.
- Provides the Treasury Secretary limited flexibility in determining assessments and surcharges based on economic conditions and the impact on urban, rural, and small commercial centers.
- Establishes uniform definition of terrorism.
- Authorizes one-year program with optional extension for up to two additional years.
- Includes limited liability reforms to protect taxpayer funds.

Advantages

- No taxpayer bailout — any Federal funds used to boost liquidity are paid back by commercial industry/policyholders (the primary beneficiaries of any proposal) over time.
- Greatly increases capacity of insurers to offer terrorism coverage.
- Companies get first dollar protection. Without this early protection, few companies can afford their individual risk and won't offer significant or affordable coverage.
- Protects small and large policyholders, and small and large insurers, while retaining incentives for risk management and efficient claims processing.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF H.R. 3210 – FLOOR VERSION

Section 1. Short Title and Table of Contents

This section sets forth the short title of the bill, the “Terrorism Risk Protection Act,” and provides a table of contents.

Section 2. Congressional Findings

This section provides Congressional findings about the damage from the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, the resulting market disruption and potential unavailability of future terrorism insurance coverage, and the need for a temporary industry risk sharing program to facilitate transition back to a viable private insurance and reinsurance market.

Section 3. Authority of Secretary of the Treasury

This section provides that the Secretary of the Treasury will be responsible for carrying out the temporary risk sharing program for the commercial property and casualty insurance industry.

Section 4. Submission of Premium Information to Secretary

This section recognizes that insurance premium information is already provided to State insurance commissioners and the NAIC, but allows the Secretary, to the extent that such information is not otherwise available, to require insurers to submit their net U.S. commercial property and casualty insurance premium data to the NAIC or the Secretary.

Section 5. Initial and Subsequent Triggering Determinations

This section directs the Secretary to determine whether insured losses from acts of terrorism over a 12 month period exceed the triggering thresholds. The section provides for an industry-wide trigger and an individual insurer trigger. The Secretary will make a triggering determination for the entire commercial property and casualty insurance industry if industry-wide losses exceed $1 billion. The Secretary will make a company specific triggering determination if industry-wide losses exceed $100 million and the portion of those losses for any one commercial insurer exceed both 10 percent of the company's capital surplus and net premiums. The lower $100 million threshold does not apply to any commercial insurer that was not providing commercial property and casualty coverage prior to September 11, 2001, except for certain terrorism risk pools.

Subsection (b) gives the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General and Secretary of State, sole authority to determine whether a loss was caused by an act of terrorism and whether the terrorist attack occurred during the period of time covered by this legislation. The ability of the Secretary to make such determinations under this subsection is not limited to commercial property and casualty insurance, but rather is intended to apply for all lines of insurance.

Section 6. Federal Cost-Sharing for Commercial Insurers

Once the Secretary makes an industry-wide triggering determination in section 5, then financial cost-sharing is provided to each insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90% of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of the triggering event and $5 million. If the industry-wide triggering determination is not reached, but the Secretary makes a company specific triggering determination, then financial cost-sharing is provided to that insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90 percent of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of such triggering event and 10 percent of the net commercial property and casualty premiums written by such commercial insurer (as a deductible). Federal assistance is capped at $100 billion. A sense of the Congress provides that terrorist events causing in excess of that amount would necessitate further Congressional action. Any Federal assistance provided will be repaid through the assessments and surcharges provided for in section 7 and 8, and may be designated by the President as emergency budget authority and outlays. Federal assistance received by an insurer should not be treated as a loan for balance sheet purposes. Furthermore, Federal assistance will be available for all property and casualty terrorism risk insurance policies in force during the coverage period of this legislation as long as the insurer was providing such coverage(or not excluding terrorism risk coverage) on or before September 11, 2001.

Section 7. Assessments

This section is modeled after the State insurance guarantee funds that exist in almost every State to address the possibility of insurer insolvencies, as well as numerous State catastrophic insurance funds. After the Secretary makes a triggering determination in section 5, every commercial insurer is subject to an assessment based on an insurer's net commercial insurance premiums to repay any Federal cost-sharing assistance provided under section 6. The aggregate amount assessed will be equal to the lesser of $20 billion or the amount of financial assistance paid.

The aggregate assessment amount shall be assessed to commercial insurers through an industry obligation assessment and, if necessary, the remainder through one or more future financing assessments. Industry obligation assessments are imposed immediately following a triggering determination in an amount up to $5 billion, and if the program is extended pursuant to section 20 for a second or third year, up to $10 billion in each additional year. Financing assessments (any losses above the $5 or $10 billion) shall begin 12 months after the last obligation assessment, and shall not exceed 3 percent of an insurer's net commercial premiums for that year. If the amount assessed through financing assessments in any given year is insufficient to cover Federal assistance, then the Secretary will make a new assessment in each following year until the amount is recouped. The Secretary may delay the assessment of an insurer to avoid an insolvency and may adjust or delay assessments generally as provided in section 9.

Section 8. Terrorism Loss Repayment Surcharge

This section applies only to terrorist losses that exceed $20 billion, and is modeled after several State catastrophic insurance programs. To recoup Federal assistance provided in section 6 for amounts above the Federal share of the $20 billion, the Secretary will impose a commercial policyholder surcharge to the extent that economic and market conditions permit. The factors to be weighed in determining the extent of the surcharge are the ultimate costs to taxpayers if a surcharge is not established, the economic conditions in the commercial marketplace, the affordability of commercial insurance for small and medium-sized business, and such other factors the Secretary considers appropriate. The terrorism repayment surcharge will be on all commercial insurance premiums based on a percentage of any coverage amounts but in any given year may not exceed the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium charged for such coverage. For purposes of this section, commercial property and casualty insurance does not include any reinsurance provided to primary insurance companies, so as to avoid a double surcharge.

Section 9. Administration of Assessments and Surcharges

This section provides the Secretary with significant flexibility in establishing the manner and method of carrying out any assessments or surcharges, in particular as necessary to protect the national interest, avoid unreasonable economic disruption and market instability, and avoid undue burdens on small businesses. The Secretary must also take into consideration the economic impact of any of these assessments and surcharges on urban and smaller commercial and rural areas and different lines of insurance. The Secretary may also make special adjustments to provide for commercial insurers and policies that are not based on a calendar year. The Secretary is also given the authority to assess civil monetary penalties for insurers that submit false data, fail to pay assessed amounts, or fail to collect appropriate surcharges.

Section 10. Application to Self-Insurance Arrangements and Offshore Insurers and Reinsurers

In consultation with the NAIC, the Secretary may apply the provisions of this bill to self-insurance arrangements by municipalities and other entities, but only if that determination is made before the occurrence of a triggering event and all of the provisions of this legislation are applied uniformly to such entities. The Committee expects that many types of self-insuring entities may desire or need risk-sharing coverage for terrorism attacks, while for others participation may be inappropriate. The Secretary is given authority to determine which of these entities should be participating, so long as application of the benefits and costs are applied equally. The Secretary must also ensure that the provisions of this bill are applied as appropriate to any offshore or non-admitted entities that provide commercial property and casualty insurance. Both provisions of this section are intended in part to prevent evasion of assessments.

Section 11. Reserve for Terrorism Coverage Under Commercial Lines of Business

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 12. State Preemption

This section preempts certain State laws to ensure uniform compliance with the bill. Subsection (a) preempts State laws that would conflict with the provision of coverage for acts of terror under the definitions of this legislation. Subsection (b) establishes a narrow preemption to allow insurers to adjust premiums only as necessary to recover the amounts of any assessments under section 7. Subsection (c) preempts State pre-filing approval requirements for commercial property and casualty insurance policies covering acts of terrorism due to the insufficient time between enactment of this legislation and January 1, 2002, but expressly preserves the ability of the States to undertake any subsequent review or action on those policies.

Section 13. Consistent State Guidelines for Coverage for Acts of Terrorism

This section establishes the sense of Congress that the NAIC and the Secretary should consult with each other and develop appropriate definitions for acts of terrorism and standards for determining the number of terrorist events or occurrences. Each State and the Secretary should then adopt such definitions and standards. A further sense of the Congress is provided that the NAIC should develop appropriate guidelines governing insurers' terrorism reserves, including any pooling of those reserves. The Secretary is directed to promulgate those guidelines on a nationwide basis if the States have not adopted guidelines in a uniform manner. A sense of the Congress is also provided that the States should establish regulations requiring separate disclosure to consumers of the costs of any terrorism related coverage. If the States have not adequately adopted such disclosures within a reasonable period of time, the Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC and adopt national guidelines requiring such disclosure.

Section 14. Consultation with State Insurance Regulators and the NAIC

The Secretary is directed to consult with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC in carrying out this bill, and may enter into agreements with the States and the NAIC to provide for the distribution of financial assistance, or the collection of any assessments or surcharges. The Secretary, may, in consultation with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC, investigate and audit claims of insured losses by commercial insurers.

Section 15. Sovereign Immunity Protections

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 16. Study of Potential Effects of Terrorism on Life Insurance Industry

This section directs the President to establish a commission to study and report within 120 days after the enactment of the bill on the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the life insurance industry in the U.S. and markets served by such industry. The membership of this commission shall include: the Secretary of the Treasury; the Chairman of the Federal Reserve System; the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security; and four members appointed by the President from the insurance community.

Section 17. Railroad and Trucking Insurance Study

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury to conduct a study to determine the availability of commercially reasonable railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism. The Secretary must submit a report to Congress within 120 days after enactment of this legislation.

Section 18. Study of Reinsurance Pool System for Future Acts of Terrorism

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury, the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, and the Comptroller General to jointly conduct a study on the advisability and effectiveness of establishing a terrorism reinsurance pool system in lieu of the program created by this bill. The study must utilize a variety of informational sources and be jointly submitted to Congress not later than 6 months after enactment.

Section 19. Definitions

This section establishes various definitions. The term “Act of terrorism” is defined as an act that is unlawful, causes harm to persons or property in the United States or to any U.S. air carrier or U.S. flag vessel outside the United States committed by persons who are recognized (prior or subsequently) by the Department of State or the Secretary as a terrorist group, or who conspire with the surrogates of a recognized terrorist group, and has the purpose of destabilizing any country or to influence the United States by coercion. As defined, an act of terrorism is not an act of war. The Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC to further refine this definition. This section further provides that the bill only applies to commercial property and casualty insurance.

Section 20. Extension of Program

This section grants the Secretary authority to extend the coverage period of the bill through the 2004 calendar year, if the extension is necessary to ensure the adequate availability in the United States of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terror. Extensions are to be made on a year-by-year basis and the Secretary is required to report to Congress on the reasons for any extensions beyond the 2002 calendar year.

Section 21. Regulations

This section grants the Secretary authority to issue regulations as necessary to implement this legislation.

Summary

The Terrorism Risk Protection Act is the most pro-taxpayer, pro-consumer proposal to ensure terrorism coverage for consumers, with a significant commercial industry/policyholder stake, and relatively little regulation required (most of which would only kick in if an event occurred). This proposal is relatively low-maintenance for the government and will sunset without a private sector addition to Federal subsidies.

For commercial insurers, the bill protects individual companies more than any other proposal. For policyholders, since insurers will have an incentive to write terrorism coverage, it greatly increases the affordability and availability of coverage. Taxpayers and the Federal treasury are protected from unlimited financial risk because they are not on the hook for the ultimate costs. Every dollar of Federal assistance will be repaid. If no event occurs, no bureaucracy is created, and the legislation sunsets after a brief period of time.

Key Elements

- Requires all Federal taxpayer costs/assistance to be paid back.
- Models risk-sharing plan on existing State insurance programs.
- Sets trigger at $100 million for small commercial insurers and $1 billion as an industry wide aggregate.
- Provides 90% Federal share with 10% individual company retention.
- Assesses first $20 billion in losses back to commercial insurers over time.
- Recoups subsequent losses through commercial policyholder surcharges.
- Provides the Treasury Secretary limited flexibility in determining assessments and surcharges based on economic conditions and the impact on urban, rural, and small commercial centers.
- Establishes uniform definition of terrorism.
- Authorizes one-year program with optional extension for up to two additional years.
- Includes limited liability reforms to protect taxpayer funds.

Advantages

- No taxpayer bailout — any Federal funds used to boost liquidity are paid back by commercial industry/policyholders (the primary beneficiaries of any proposal) over time.
- Greatly increases capacity of insurers to offer terrorism coverage.
- Companies get first dollar protection. Without this early protection, few companies can afford their individual risk and won't offer significant or affordable coverage.
- Protects small and large policyholders, and small and large insurers, while retaining incentives for risk management and efficient claims processing.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF H.R. 3210 – FLOOR VERSION

Section 1. Short Title and Table of Contents

This section sets forth the short title of the bill, the “Terrorism Risk Protection Act,” and provides a table of contents.

Section 2. Congressional Findings

This section provides Congressional findings about the damage from the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, the resulting market disruption and potential unavailability of future terrorism insurance coverage, and the need for a temporary industry risk sharing program to facilitate transition back to a viable private insurance and reinsurance market.

Section 3. Authority of Secretary of the Treasury

This section provides that the Secretary of the Treasury will be responsible for carrying out the temporary risk sharing program for the commercial property and casualty insurance industry.

Section 4. Submission of Premium Information to Secretary

This section recognizes that insurance premium information is already provided to State insurance commissioners and the NAIC, but allows the Secretary, to the extent that such information is not otherwise available, to require insurers to submit their net U.S. commercial property and casualty insurance premium data to the NAIC or the Secretary.

Section 5. Initial and Subsequent Triggering Determinations

This section directs the Secretary to determine whether insured losses from acts of terrorism over a 12 month period exceed the triggering thresholds. The section provides for an industry-wide trigger and an individual insurer trigger. The Secretary will make a triggering determination for the entire commercial property and casualty insurance industry if industry-wide losses exceed $1 billion. The Secretary will make a company specific triggering determination if industry-wide losses exceed $100 million and the portion of those losses for any one commercial insurer exceed both 10 percent of the company's capital surplus and net premiums. The lower $100 million threshold does not apply to any commercial insurer that was not providing commercial property and casualty coverage prior to September 11, 2001, except for certain terrorism risk pools.

Subsection (b) gives the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General and Secretary of State, sole authority to determine whether a loss was caused by an act of terrorism and whether the terrorist attack occurred during the period of time covered by this legislation. The ability of the Secretary to make such determinations under this subsection is not limited to commercial property and casualty insurance, but rather is intended to apply for all lines of insurance.

Section 6. Federal Cost-Sharing for Commercial Insurers

Once the Secretary makes an industry-wide triggering determination in section 5, then financial cost-sharing is provided to each insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90% of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of the triggering event and $5 million. If the industry-wide triggering determination is not reached, but the Secretary makes a company specific triggering determination, then financial cost-sharing is provided to that insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90 percent of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of such triggering event and 10 percent of the net commercial property and casualty premiums written by such commercial insurer (as a deductible). Federal assistance is capped at $100 billion. A sense of the Congress provides that terrorist events causing in excess of that amount would necessitate further Congressional action. Any Federal assistance provided will be repaid through the assessments and surcharges provided for in section 7 and 8, and may be designated by the President as emergency budget authority and outlays. Federal assistance received by an insurer should not be treated as a loan for balance sheet purposes. Furthermore, Federal assistance will be available for all property and casualty terrorism risk insurance policies in force during the coverage period of this legislation as long as the insurer was providing such coverage (or not excluding terrorism risk coverage) on or before September 11, 2001.

Section 7. Assessments

This section is modeled after the State insurance guarantee funds that exist in almost every State to address the possibility of insurer insolvencies, as well as numerous State catastrophic insurance funds. After the Secretary makes a triggering determination in section 5, every commercial insurer is subject to an assessment based on an insurer's net commercial insurance premiums to repay any Federal cost-sharing assistance provided under section 6. The aggregate amount assessed will be equal to the lesser of $20 billion or the amount of financial assistance paid.

The aggregate assessment amount shall be assessed to commercial insurers through an industry obligation assessment and, if necessary, the remainder through one or more future financing assessments. Industry obligation assessments are imposed immediately following a triggering determination in an amount up to $5 billion, and if the program is extended pursuant to section 20 for a second or third year, up to $10 billion in each additional year. Financing assessments (any losses above the $5 or $10 billion) shall begin 12 months after the last obligation assessment, and shall not exceed 3 percent of an insurer's net commercial premiums for that year. If the amount assessed through financing assessments in any given year is insufficient to cover Federal assistance, then the Secretary will make a new assessment in each following year until the amount is recouped. The Secretary may delay the assessment of an insurer to avoid an insolvency and may adjust or delay assessments generally as provided in section 9.

Section 8. Terrorism Loss Repayment Surcharge

This section applies only to terrorist losses that exceed $20 billion, and is modeled after several State catastrophic insurance programs. To recoup Federal assistance provided in section 6 for amounts above the Federal share of the $20 billion, the Secretary will impose a commercial policyholder surcharge to the extent that economic and market conditions permit. The factors to be weighed in determining the extent of the surcharge are the ultimate costs to taxpayers if a surcharge is not established, the economic conditions in the commercial marketplace, the affordability of commercial insurance for small and medium-sized business, and such other factors the Secretary considers appropriate. The terrorism repayment surcharge will be on all commercial insurance premiums based on a percentage of any coverage amounts but in any given year may not exceed the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium charged for such coverage. For purposes of this section, commercial property and casualty insurance does not include any reinsurance provided to primary insurance companies, so as to avoid a double surcharge.

Section 9. Administration of Assessments and Surcharges

This section provides the Secretary with significant flexibility in establishing the manner and method of carrying out any assessments or surcharges, in particular as necessary to protect the national interest, avoid unreasonable economic disruption and market instability, and avoid undue burdens on small businesses. The Secretary must also take into consideration the economic impact of any of these assessments and surcharges on urban and smaller commercial and rural areas and different lines of insurance. The Secretary may also make special adjustments to provide for commercial insurers and policies that are not based on a calendar year. The Secretary is also given the authority to assess civil monetary penalties for insurers that submit false data, fail to pay assessed amounts, or fail to collect appropriate surcharges.

Section 10. Application to Self-Insurance Arrangements and Offshore Insurers and Reinsurers

In consultation with the NAIC, the Secretary may apply the provisions of this bill to self-insurance arrangements by municipalities and other entities, but only if that determination is made before the occurrence of a triggering event and all of the provisions of this legislation are applied uniformly to such entities. The Committee expects that many types of self-insuring entities may desire or need risk-sharing coverage for terrorism attacks, while for others participation may be inappropriate. The Secretary is given authority to determine which of these entities should be participating, so long as application of the benefits and costs are applied equally. The Secretary must also ensure that the provisions of this bill are applied as appropriate to any offshore or non-admitted entities that provide commercial property and casualty insurance. Both provisions of this section are intended in part to prevent evasion of assessments.

Section 11. Reserve for Terrorism Coverage Under Commercial Lines of Business

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 12. State Preemption

This section preempts certain State laws to ensure uniform compliance with the bill. Subsection (a) preempts State laws that would conflict with the provision of coverage for acts of terror under the definitions of this legislation. Subsection (b) establishes a narrow preemption to allow insurers to adjust premiums only as necessary to recover the amounts of any assessments under section 7. Subsection (c) preempts State pre-filing approval requirements for commercial property and casualty insurance policies covering acts of terrorism due to the insufficient time between enactment of this legislation and January 1, 2002, but expressly preserves the ability of the States to undertake any subsequent review or action on those policies.

Section 13. Consistent State Guidelines for Coverage for Acts of Terrorism

This section establishes the sense of Congress that the NAIC and the Secretary should consult with each other and develop appropriate definitions for acts of terrorism and standards for determining the number of terrorist events or occurrences. Each State and the Secretary should then adopt such definitions and standards. A further sense of the Congress is provided that the NAIC should develop appropriate guidelines governing insurers' terrorism reserves, including any pooling of those reserves. The Secretary is directed to promulgate those guidelines on a nationwide basis if the States have not adopted guidelines in a uniform manner. A sense of the Congress is also provided that the States should establish regulations requiring separate disclosure to consumers of the costs of any terrorism related coverage. If the States have not adequately adopted such disclosures within a reasonable period of time, the Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC and adopt national guidelines requiring such disclosure.

Section 14. Consultation with State Insurance Regulators and the NAIC

The Secretary is directed to consult with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC in carrying out this bill, and may enter into agreements with the States and the NAIC to provide for the distribution of financial assistance, or the collection of any assessments or surcharges. The Secretary, may, in consultation with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC, investigate and audit claims of insured losses by commercial insurers.

Section 15. Sovereign Immunity Protections

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 16. Study of Potential Effects of Terrorism on Life Insurance Industry

This section directs the President to establish a commission to study and report within 120 days after the enactment of the bill on the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the life insurance industry in the U.S. and markets served by such industry. The membership of this commission shall include: the Secretary of the Treasury; the Chairman of the Federal Reserve System; the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security; and four members appointed by the President from the insurance community.

Section 17. Railroad and Trucking Insurance Study

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury to conduct a study to determine the availability of commercially reasonable railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism. The Secretary must submit a report to Congress within 120 days after enactment of this legislation.

Section 18. Study of Reinsurance Pool System for Future Acts of Terrorism

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury, the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, and the Comptroller General to jointly conduct a study on the advisability and effectiveness of establishing a terrorism reinsurance pool system in lieu of the program created by this bill. The study must utilize a variety of informational sources and be jointly submitted to Congress not later than 6 months after enactment.

Section 19. Definitions

This section establishes various definitions. The term "Act of terrorism" is defined as an act that is unlawful, causes harm to persons or property in the United States or to any U.S. air carrier or U.S. flag vessel outside the United States committed by persons who are recognized (prior or subsequently) by the Department of State or the Secretary as a terrorist group, or who conspire with the surrogates of a recognized terrorist group, and has the purpose of destabilizing any country or to influence the United States by coercion. As defined, an act of terrorism is not an act of war. The Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC to further refine this definition. This section further provides that the bill only applies to commercial property and casualty insurance.

Section 20. Extension of Program

This section grants the Secretary authority to extend the coverage period of the bill through the 2004 calendar year, if the extension is necessary to ensure the adequate availability in the United States of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terror. Extensions are to be made on a year-by-year basis and the Secretary is required to report to Congress on the reasons for any extensions beyond the 2002 calendar year.

Section 21. Regulations

This section grants the Secretary authority to issue regulations as necessary to implement this legislation.

Summary

The Terrorism Risk Protection Act is the most pro-taxpayer, pro-consumer proposal to ensure terrorism coverage for consumers, with a significant commercial industry/policyholder stake, and relatively little regulation required (most of which would only kick in if an event occurred). This proposal is relatively low-maintenance for the government and will sunset without a private sector addition to Federal subsidies.

For commercial insurers, the bill protects individual companies more than any other proposal. For policyholders, since insurers will have an incentive to write terrorism coverage, it greatly increases the affordability and availability of coverage. Taxpayers and the Federal treasury are protected from unlimited financial risk because they are not on the hook for the ultimate costs. Every dollar of Federal assistance will be repaid. If no event occurs, no bureaucracy is created, and the legislation sunsets after a brief period of time.

Key Elements

- Requires all Federal taxpayer costs/assistance to be paid back.
- Models risk-sharing plan on existing State insurance programs.
- Sets trigger at $100 million for small commercial insurers and $1 billion as an industry wide aggregate.
- Provides 90% Federal share with 10% individual company retention.
- Assesses first $20 billion in losses back to commercial insurers over time.
- Recoups subsequent losses through commercial policyholder surcharges.
- Provides the Treasury Secretary limited flexibility in determining assessments and surcharges based on economic conditions and the impact on urban, rural, and small commercial centers.
- Establishes uniform definition of terrorism.
- Authorizes one-year program with optional extension for up to two additional years.
- Includes limited liability reforms to protect taxpayer funds.

Advantages

- No taxpayer bailout — any Federal funds used to boost liquidity are paid back by commercial industry/policyholders (the primary beneficiaries of any proposal) over time.
- Greatly increases capacity of insurers to offer terrorism coverage.
- Companies get first dollar protection. Without this early protection, few companies can afford their individual risk and won't offer significant or affordable coverage.
- Protects small and large policyholders, and small and large insurers, while retaining incentives for risk management and efficient claims processing.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF H.R. 3210 – FLOOR VERSION

Section 1. Short Title and Table of Contents

This section sets forth the short title of the bill, the “Terrorism Risk Protection Act,” and provides a table of contents.

Section 2. Congressional Findings

This section provides Congressional findings about the damage from the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, the resulting market disruption and potential unavailability of future terrorism insurance coverage, and the need for a temporary industry risk sharing program to facilitate transition back to a viable private insurance and reinsurance market.

Section 3. Authority of Secretary of the Treasury

This section provides that the Secretary of the Treasury will be responsible for carrying out the temporary risk sharing program for the commercial property and casualty insurance industry.

Section 4. Submission of Premium Information to Secretary

This section recognizes that insurance premium information is already provided to State insurance commissioners and the NAIC, but allows the Secretary, to the extent that such information is not otherwise available, to require insurers to submit their net U.S. commercial property and casualty insurance premium data to the NAIC or the Secretary.

Section 5. Initial and Subsequent Triggering Determinations

This section directs the Secretary to determine whether insured losses from acts of terrorism over a 12 month period exceed the triggering thresholds. The section provides for an industry-wide trigger and an individual insurer trigger. The Secretary will make a triggering determination for the entire commercial property and casualty insurance industry if industry-wide losses exceed $1 billion. The Secretary will make a company specific triggering determination if industry-wide losses exceed $100 million and the portion of those losses for any one commercial insurer exceed both 10 percent of the company's capital surplus and net premiums. The lower $100 million threshold does not apply to any commercial insurer that was not providing commercial property and casualty coverage prior to September 11, 2001, except for certain terrorism risk pools.

Subsection (b) gives the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General and Secretary of State, sole authority to determine whether a loss was caused by an act of terrorism and whether the terrorist attack occurred during the period of time covered by this legislation. The ability of the Secretary to make such determinations under this subsection is not limited to commercial property and casualty insurance, but rather is intended to apply for all lines of insurance.

Section 6. Federal Cost-Sharing for Commercial Insurers

Once the Secretary makes an industry-wide triggering determination in section 5, then financial cost-sharing is provided to each insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90% of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of the triggering event and $5 million. If the industry-wide triggering determination is not reached, but the Secretary makes a company specific triggering determination, then financial cost-sharing is provided to that insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90 percent of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of such triggering event and 10 percent of the net commercial property and casualty premiums written by such commercial insurer (as a deductible). Federal assistance is capped at $100 billion. A sense of the Congress provides that terrorist events causing in excess of that amount would necessitate further Congressional action. Any Federal assistance provided will be repaid through the assessments and surcharges provided for in section 7 and 8, and may be designated by the President as emergency budget authority and outlays. Federal assistance received by an insurer should not be treated as a loan for balance sheet purposes. Furthermore, Federal assistance will be available for all property and casualty terrorism risk insurance policies in force during the coverage period of this legislation as long as the insurer was providing such coverage (or not excluding terrorism risk coverage) on or before September 11, 2001.

Section 7. Assessments

This section is modeled after the State insurance guarantee funds that exist in almost every State to address the possibility of insurer insolvencies, as well as numerous State catastrophic insurance funds. After the Secretary makes a triggering determination in section 5, every commercial insurer is subject to an assessment based on an insurer's net commercial insurance premiums to repay any Federal cost-sharing assistance provided under section 6. The aggregate amount assessed will be equal to the lesser of $20 billion or the amount of financial assistance paid.

The aggregate assessment amount shall be assessed to commercial insurers through an industry obligation assessment and, if necessary, the remainder through one or more future financing assessments. Industry obligation assessments are imposed immediately following a triggering determination in an amount up to $5 billion, and if the program is extended pursuant to section 20 for a second or third year, up to $10 billion in each additional year. Financing assessments (any losses above the $5 or $10 billion) shall begin 12 months after the last obligation assessment, and shall not exceed 3 percent of an insurer's net commercial premiums for that year. If the amount assessed through financing assessments in any given year is insufficient to cover Federal assistance, then the Secretary will make a new assessment in each following year until the amount is recouped. The Secretary may delay the assessment of an insurer to avoid an insolvency and may adjust or delay assessments generally as provided in section 9.

Section 8. Terrorism Loss Repayment Surcharge

This section applies only to terrorist losses that exceed $20 billion, and is modeled after several State catastrophic insurance programs. To recoup Federal assistance provided in section 6 for amounts above the Federal share of the $20 billion, the Secretary will impose a commercial policyholder surcharge to the extent that economic and market conditions permit. The factors to be weighed in determining the extent of the surcharge are the ultimate costs to taxpayers if a surcharge is not established, the economic conditions in the commercial marketplace, the affordability of commercial insurance for small and medium-sized business, and such other factors the Secretary considers appropriate. The terrorism repayment surcharge will be on all commercial insurance premiums based on a percentage of any coverage amounts but in any given year may not exceed the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium charged for such coverage. For purposes of this section, commercial property and casualty insurance does not include any reinsurance provided to primary insurance companies, so as to avoid a double surcharge.

Section 9. Administration of Assessments and Surcharges

This section provides the Secretary with significant flexibility in establishing the manner and method of carrying out any assessments or surcharges, in particular as necessary to protect the national interest, avoid unreasonable economic disruption and market instability, and avoid undue burdens on small businesses. The Secretary must also take into consideration the economic impact of any of these assessments and surcharges on urban and smaller commercial and rural areas and different lines of insurance. The Secretary may also make special adjustments to provide for commercial insurers and policies that are not based on a calendar year. The Secretary is also given the authority to assess civil monetary penalties for insurers that submit false data, fail to pay assessed amounts, or fail to collect appropriate surcharges.

Section 10. Application to Self-Insurance Arrangements and Offshore Insurers and Reinsurers

In consultation with the NAIC, the Secretary may apply the provisions of this bill to self-insurance arrangements by municipalities and other entities, but only if that determination is made before the occurrence of a triggering event and all of the provisions of this legislation are applied uniformly to such entities. The Committee expects that many types of self-insuring entities may desire or need risk-sharing coverage for terrorism attacks, while for others participation may be inappropriate. The Secretary is given authority to determine which of these entities should be participating, so long as application of the benefits and costs are applied equally. The Secretary must also ensure that the provisions of this bill are applied as appropriate to any offshore or non-admitted entities that provide commercial property and casualty insurance. Both provisions of this section are intended in part to prevent evasion of assessments.

Section 11. Reserve for Terrorism Coverage Under Commercial Lines of Business

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 12. State Preemption

This section preempts certain State laws to ensure uniform compliance with the bill. Subsection (a) preempts State laws that would conflict with the provision of coverage for acts of terror under the definitions of this legislation. Subsection (b) establishes a narrow preemption to allow insurers to adjust premiums only as necessary to recover the amounts of any assessments under section 7. Subsection (c) preempts State pre-filing approval requirements for commercial property and casualty insurance policies covering acts of terrorism due to the insufficient time between enactment of this legislation and January 1, 2002, but expressly preserves the ability of the States to undertake any subsequent review or action on those policies.

Section 13. Consistent State Guidelines for Coverage for Acts of Terrorism

This section establishes the sense of Congress that the NAIC and the Secretary should consult with each other and develop appropriate definitions for acts of terrorism and standards for determining the number of terrorist events or occurrences. Each State and the Secretary should then adopt such definitions and standards. A further sense of the Congress is provided that the NAIC should develop appropriate guidelines governing insurers' terrorism reserves, including any pooling of those reserves. The Secretary is directed to promulgate those guidelines on a nationwide basis if the States have not adopted guidelines in a uniform manner. A sense of the Congress is also provided that the States should establish regulations requiring separate disclosure to consumers of the costs of any terrorism related coverage. If the States have not adequately adopted such disclosures within a reasonable period of time, the Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC and adopt national guidelines requiring such disclosure.

Section 14. Consultation with State Insurance Regulators and the NAIC

The Secretary is directed to consult with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC in carrying out this bill, and may enter into agreements with the States and the NAIC to provide for the distribution of financial assistance, or the collection of any assessments or surcharges. The Secretary, may, in consultation with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC, investigate and audit claims of insured losses by commercial insurers.

Section 15. Sovereign Immunity Protections

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 16. Study of Potential Effects of Terrorism on Life Insurance Industry

This section directs the President to establish a commission to study and report within 120 days after the enactment of the bill on the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the life insurance industry in the U.S. and markets served by such industry. The membership of this commission shall include: the Secretary of the Treasury; the Chairman of the Federal Reserve System; the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security; and four members appointed by the President from the insurance community.

Section 17. Railroad and Trucking Insurance Study

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury to conduct a study to determine the availability of commercially reasonable railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism. The Secretary must submit a report to Congress within 120 days after enactment of this legislation.

Section 18. Study of Reinsurance Pool System for Future Acts of Terrorism

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury, the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, and the Comptroller General to jointly conduct a study on the advisability and effectiveness of establishing a terrorism reinsurance pool system in lieu of the program created by this bill. The study must utilize a variety of informational sources and be jointly submitted to Congress not later than 6 months after enactment.

Section 19. Definitions

This section establishes various definitions. The term “Act of terrorism” is defined as an act that is unlawful, causes harm to persons or property in the United States or to any U.S. air carrier or U.S. flag vessel outside the United States committed by persons who are recognized (prior or subsequently) by the Department of State or the Secretary as a terrorist group, or who conspire with the surrogates of a recognized terrorist group, and has the purpose of destabilizing any country or to influence the United States by coercion. As defined, an act of terrorism is not an act of war. The Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC to further refine this definition. This section further provides that the bill only applies to commercial property and casualty insurance.

Section 20. Extension of Program

This section grants the Secretary authority to extend the coverage period of the bill through the 2004 calendar year, if the extension is necessary to ensure the adequate availability in the United States of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terror. Extensions are to be made on a year-by-year basis and the Secretary is required to report to Congress on the reasons for any extensions beyond the 2002 calendar year.

Section 21. Regulations

This section grants the Secretary authority to issue regulations as necessary to implement this legislation.

Summary

The Terrorism Risk Protection Act is the most pro-taxpayer, pro-consumer proposal to ensure terrorism coverage for consumers, with a significant commercial industry/policyholder stake, and relatively little regulation required (most of which would only kick in if an event occurred). This proposal is relatively low-maintenance for the government and will sunset without a private sector addition to Federal subsidies.

For commercial insurers, the bill protects individual companies more than any other proposal. For policyholders, since insurers will have an incentive to write terrorism coverage, it greatly increases the affordability and availability of coverage. Taxpayers and the Federal treasury are protected from unlimited financial risk because they are not on the hook for the ultimate costs. Every dollar of Federal assistance will be repaid. If no event occurs, no bureaucracy is created, and the legislation sunsets after a brief period of time.

Key Elements

- Requires all Federal taxpayer costs/assistance to be paid back.
- Models risk-sharing plan on existing State insurance programs.
- Sets trigger at $100 million for small commercial insurers and $1 billion as an industry wide aggregate.
- Provides 90% Federal share with 10% individual company retention.
- Assesses first $20 billion in losses back to commercial insurers over time.
- Recoups subsequent losses through commercial policyholder surcharges.
- Provides the Treasury Secretary limited flexibility in determining assessments and surcharges based on economic conditions and the impact on urban, rural, and small commercial centers.
- Establishes uniform definition of terrorism.
- Authorizes one-year program with optional extension for up to two additional years.
- Includes limited liability reforms to protect taxpayer funds.

Advantages

- No taxpayer bailout — any Federal funds used to boost liquidity are paid back by commercial industry/policyholders (the primary beneficiaries of any proposal) over time.
- Greatly increases capacity of insurers to offer terrorism coverage.
- Companies get first dollar protection. Without this early protection, few companies can afford their individual risk and won't offer significant or affordable coverage.
- Protects small and large policyholders, and small and large insurers, while retaining incentives for risk management and efficient claims processing.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF H.R. 3210 – FLOOR VERSION

Section 1. Short Title and Table of Contents

This section sets forth the short title of the bill, the “Terrorism Risk Protection Act,” and provides a table of contents.

Section 2. Congressional Findings

This section provides Congressional findings about the damage from the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, the resulting market disruption and potential unavailability of future terrorism insurance coverage, and the need for a temporary industry risk sharing program to facilitate transition back to a viable private insurance and reinsurance market.

Section 3. Authority of Secretary of the Treasury

This section provides that the Secretary of the Treasury will be responsible for carrying out the temporary risk sharing program for the commercial property and casualty insurance industry.

Section 4. Submission of Premium Information to Secretary

This section recognizes that insurance premium information is already provided to State insurance commissioners and the NAIC, but allows the Secretary, to the extent that such information is not otherwise available, to require insurers to submit their net U.S. commercial property and casualty insurance premium data to the NAIC or the Secretary.

Section 5. Initial and Subsequent Triggering Determinations

This section directs the Secretary to determine whether insured losses from acts of terrorism over a 12 month period exceed the triggering thresholds. The section provides for an industry-wide trigger and an individual insurer trigger. The Secretary will make a triggering determination for the entire commercial property and casualty insurance industry if industry-wide losses exceed $1 billion. The Secretary will make a company specific triggering determination if industry-wide losses exceed $100 million and the portion of those losses for any one commercial insurer exceed both 10 percent of the company’s capital surplus and net premiums. The lower $100 million threshold does not apply to any commercial insurer that was not providing commercial property and casualty coverage prior to September 11, 2001, except for certain terrorism risk pools.

Subsection (b) gives the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General and Secretary of State, sole authority to determine whether a loss was caused by an act of terrorism and whether the terrorist attack occurred during the period of time covered by this legislation. The ability of the Secretary to make such determinations under this subsection is not limited to commercial property and casualty insurance, but rather is intended to apply for all lines of insurance.

Section 6. Federal Cost-Sharing for Commercial Insurers

Once the Secretary makes an industry-wide triggering determination in section 5, then financial cost-sharing is provided to each insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90% of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of the triggering event and $5 million. If the industry-wide triggering determination is not reached, but the Secretary makes a company specific triggering determination, then financial cost-sharing is provided to that insurer in an amount equal to the difference of 90 percent of the amount of the insured terrorism losses of the insurer as a result of such triggering event and 10 percent of the net commercial property and casualty premiums written by such commercial insurer (as a deductible). Federal assistance is capped at $100 billion. A sense of the Congress provides that terrorist events causing in excess of that amount would necessitate further Congressional action. Any Federal assistance provided will be repaid through the assessments and surcharges provided for in section 7 and 8, and may be designated by the President as emergency budget authority and outlays. Federal assistance received by an insurer should not be treated as a loan for balance sheet purposes. Furthermore, Federal assistance will be available for all property and casualty terrorism risk insurance policies in force during the coverage period of this legislation as long as the insurer was providing such coverage (or not excluding terrorism risk coverage) on or before September 11, 2001.

Section 7. Assessments

This section is modeled after the State insurance guarantee funds that exist in almost every State to address the possibility of insurer insolvencies, as well as numerous State catastrophic insurance funds. After the Secretary makes a triggering determination in section 5, every commercial insurer is subject to an assessment based on an insurer's net commercial insurance premiums to repay any Federal cost-sharing assistance provided under section 6. The aggregate amount assessed will be equal to the lesser of $20 billion or the amount of financial assistance paid.

The aggregate assessment amount shall be assessed to commercial insurers through an industry obligation assessment and, if necessary, the remainder through one or more future financing assessments. Industry obligation assessments are imposed immediately following a triggering determination in an amount up to $5 billion, and if the program is extended pursuant to section 20 for a second or third year, up to $10 billion in each additional year. Financing assessments (any losses above the $5 or $10 billion) shall begin 12 months after the last obligation assessment, and shall not exceed 3 percent of an insurer's net commercial premiums for that year. If the amount assessed through financing assessments in any given year is insufficient to cover Federal assistance, then the Secretary will make a new assessment in each following year until the amount is recouped. The Secretary may delay the assessment of an insurer to avoid an insolvency and may adjust or delay assessments generally as provided in section 9.

Section 8. Terrorism Loss Repayment Surcharge

This section applies only to terrorist losses that exceed $20 billion, and is modeled after several State catastrophic insurance programs. To recoup Federal assistance provided in section 6 for amounts above the Federal share of the $20 billion, the Secretary will impose a commercial policyholder surcharge to the extent that economic and market conditions permit. The factors to be weighed in determining the extent of the surcharge are the ultimate costs to taxpayers if a surcharge is not established, the economic conditions in the commercial marketplace, the affordability of commercial insurance for small and medium-sized business, and such other factors the Secretary considers appropriate. The terrorism repayment surcharge will be on all commercial insurance premiums based on a percentage of any coverage amounts but in any given year may not exceed the amount equal to 3 percent of the premium charged for such coverage. For purposes of this section, commercial property and casualty insurance does not include any reinsurance provided to primary insurance companies, so as to avoid a double surcharge.

Section 9. Administration of Assessments and Surcharges

This section provides the Secretary with significant flexibility in establishing the manner and method of carrying out any assessments or surcharges, in particular as necessary to protect the national interest, avoid unreasonable economic disruption and market instability, and avoid undue burdens on small businesses. The Secretary must also take into consideration the economic impact of any of these assessments and surcharges on urban and smaller commercial and rural areas and different lines of insurance. The Secretary may also make special adjustments to provide for commercial insurers and policies that are not based on a calendar year. The Secretary is also given the authority to assess civil monetary penalties for insurers that submit false data, fail to pay assessed amounts, or fail to collect appropriate surcharges.

Section 10. Application to Self-Insurance Arrangements and Offshore Insurers and Reinsurers

In consultation with the NAIC, the Secretary may apply the provisions of this bill to self-insurance arrangements by municipalities and other entities, but only if that determination is made before the occurrence of a triggering event and all of the provisions of this legislation are applied uniformly to such entities. The Committee expects that many types of self-insuring entities may desire or need risk-sharing coverage for terrorism attacks, while for others participation may be inappropriate. The Secretary is given authority to determine which of these entities should be participating, so long as application of the benefits and costs are applied equally. The Secretary must also ensure that the provisions of this bill are applied as appropriate to any offshore or non-admitted entities that provide commercial property and casualty insurance. Both provisions of this section are intended in part to prevent evasion of assessments.

Section 11. Reserve for Terrorism Coverage Under Commercial Lines of Business

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 12. State Preemption

This section preempts certain State laws to ensure uniform compliance with the bill. Subsection (a) preempts State laws that would conflict with the provision of coverage for acts of terror under the definitions of this legislation. Subsection (b) establishes a narrow preemption to allow insurers to adjust premiums only as necessary to recover the amounts of any assessments under section 7. Subsection (c) preempts State pre-filing approval requirements for commercial property and casualty insurance policies covering acts of terrorism due to the insufficient time between enactment of this legislation and January 1, 2002, but expressly preserves the ability of the States to undertake any subsequent review or action on those policies.

Section 13. Consistent State Guidelines for Coverage for Acts of Terrorism

This section establishes the sense of Congress that the NAIC and the Secretary should consult with each other and develop appropriate definitions for acts of terrorism and standards for determining the number of terrorist events or occurrences. Each State and the Secretary should then adopt such definitions and standards. A further sense of the Congress is provided that the NAIC should develop appropriate guidelines governing insurers' terrorism reserves, including any pooling of those reserves. The Secretary is directed to promulgate those guidelines on a nationwide basis if the States have not adopted guidelines in a uniform manner. A sense of the Congress is also provided that the States should establish regulations requiring separate disclosure to consumers of the costs of any terrorism related coverage. If the States have not adequately adopted such disclosures within a reasonable period of time, the Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC and adopt national guidelines requiring such disclosure.

Section 14. Consultation with State Insurance Regulators and the NAIC

The Secretary is directed to consult with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC in carrying out this bill, and may enter into agreements with the States and the NAIC to provide for the distribution of financial assistance, or the collection of any assessments or surcharges. The Secretary, may, in consultation with the State insurance regulators and the NAIC, investigate and audit claims of insured losses by commercial insurers.

Section 15. Sovereign Immunity Protections

To be determined by Rules Committee.

Section 16. Study of Potential Effects of Terrorism on Life Insurance Industry

This section directs the President to establish a commission to study and report within 120 days after the enactment of the bill on the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the life insurance industry in the U.S. and markets served by such industry. The membership of this commission shall include: the Secretary of the Treasury; the Chairman of the Federal Reserve System; the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security; and four members appointed by the President from the insurance community.

Section 17. Railroad and Trucking Insurance Study

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury to conduct a study to determine the availability of commercially reasonable railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism. The Secretary must submit a report to Congress within 120 days after enactment of this legislation.

Section 18. Study of Reinsurance Pool System for Future Acts of Terrorism

This section directs the Secretary of the Treasury, the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, and the Comptroller General to jointly conduct a study on the advisability and effectiveness of establishing a terrorism reinsurance pool system in lieu of the program created by this bill. The study must utilize a variety of informational sources and be jointly submitted to Congress not later than 6 months after enactment.

Section 19. Definitions

This section establishes various definitions. The term "Act of terrorism" is defined as an act that is unlawful, causes harm to persons or property in the United States or to any U.S. air carrier or U.S. flag vessel outside the United States committed by persons who are recognized (prior or subsequently) by the Department of State or the Secretary as a terrorist group, or who conspire with the surrogates of a recognized terrorist group, and has the purpose of destabilizing any country or to influence the United States by coercion. As defined, an act of terrorism is not an act of war. The Secretary is directed to consult with the NAIC to further refine this definition. This section further provides that the bill only applies to commercial property and casualty insurance.

Section 20. Extension of Program

This section grants the Secretary authority to extend the coverage period of the bill through the 2004 calendar year, if the extension is necessary to ensure the adequate availability in the United States of commercial property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terror. Extensions are to be made on a year-by-year basis and the Secretary is required to report to Congress on the reasons for any extensions beyond the 2002 calendar year.

Section 21. Regulations

This section grants the Secretary authority to issue regulations as necessary to implement this legislation.

ACTION CALL!

November 28, 2001

U.S. HOUSE TO VOTE ON TERRORISM INSURANCE

CALL YOUR REPRESENTATIVE TO ASK FOR THEIR SUPPORT

The U.S. House of Representatives will vote on terrorism insurance legislation this Thursday, November 29th. H.R. 3210, the "Terrorism Risk Protection Act," will limit liability and discourage trial lawyers from cashing in on future terrorist acts by blaming and suing businesses for acts they have no control over.

Thousands of companies across the nation are already beginning to receive notices indicating that insurance coverage for future acts will be cancelled. Without this important legislation, by the end of the year, the majority of American businesses will lose their insurance protection against acts of terrorism, putting them in jeopardy and millions of jobs at risk.

IMMEDIATE ACTION NEEDED: Call or write your representative today and ask them to support H.R. 3210, the "Terrorism Risk Protection Act."

- To call, use the GAIN Legislative Hotline at 1-888-832-GAIN (4246)
- To fax, go to GAIN Online at www.uschamber.policy.net

Background: Without adequate terrorism insurance, businesses and industries will face significantly higher financial & transportation costs. For example:

- Banks cannot lend money for new construction or the purchase of real estate unless borrowers have adequate insurance;
- Borrowers may be considered in default on their existing loans, since lenders often require insurance as a condition of the loan;
- Stadiums and arenas may be forced to no longer feature sporting or entertainment events;
- Shopping malls, factories, power plants, pipelines and skyscrapers could be put out of business;
- Trucking firms, railroads, airlines and ships may be unable to transport many types of cargo or required to limit their destinations.

Any legislation must also include reasonable limits on liability for non-terrorist victims. Liability limits are needed so that businesses won't be sued for terrorist attacks and so that taxpayers won't be subsidizing trial lawyers excesses. Terrorism legislation should provide reasonable legal procedures that would:

- Ensure that victims can quickly recover real losses;
- Protect the taxpayer from spurious claims;
- Prevent unnecessary bankruptcies; and
- Reduce the likelihood that future terrorist attacks will significantly burden the U.S. economy.

A federal backstop for terrorism insurance is not just about helping insurance companies; it's about preventing a widespread credit crunch that jeopardizes thousands of diverse industries of all sizes and millions of workers.

If you would prefer to receive future alerts and updates via e-mail, please visit www.uschamber.policy.net to register.

I have an important conference call on the PLA litigation that was scheduled, after coordinating the schedules of about 10 people, for 4pm today. I don't have any items to present to the WHJSC so, if it's all right with the Chairs, I will participate in the call and see you all next week.

Is it OK for KR to send out the following letter to Progress for America folks who met w/ him on a political trip?:

Dear _____,

It was good to see you at the Progress for America briefing. We're appreciative of all that you and the others at the PFA meeting do for our party and our cause.

The Administration faces some tough challenges ahead, but the President is off to a good start at home and a strong start in the war against global terrorism.

Thanks again for your support.

ACTION CALL!

November 28, 2001

U.S. HOUSE TO VOTE ON TERRORISM INSURANCE

CALL YOUR REPRESENTATIVE TO ASK FOR THEIR SUPPORT

The U.S. House of Representatives will vote on terrorism insurance legislation this Thursday, November 29th. H.R. 3210, the "Terrorism Risk Protection Act," will limit liability and discourage trial lawyers from cashing in on future terrorist acts by blaming and suing businesses for acts they have no control over.

Thousands of companies across the nation are already beginning to receive notices indicating that insurance coverage for future acts will be cancelled. Without this important legislation, by the end of the year, the majority of American businesses will lose their insurance protection against acts of terrorism, putting them in jeopardy and millions of jobs at risk.

IMMEDIATE ACTION NEEDED: Call or write your representative today and ask them to support H.R. 3210, the "Terrorism Risk Protection Act."

- To call, use the GAIN Legislative Hotline at 1-888-832-GAIN (4246)
- To fax, go to GAIN Online at www.uschamber.policy.net

Background: Without adequate terrorism insurance, businesses and industries will face significantly higher financial & transportation costs. For example:

- Banks cannot lend money for new construction or the purchase of real estate unless borrowers have adequate insurance;
- Borrowers may be considered in default on their existing loans, since lenders often require insurance as a condition of the loan;
- Stadiums and arenas may be forced to no longer feature sporting or entertainment events;
- Shopping malls, factories, power plants, pipelines and skyscrapers could be put out of business;
- Trucking firms, railroads, airlines and ships may be unable to transport many types of cargo or required to limit their destinations.

Any legislation must also include reasonable limits on liability for non-terrorist victims. Liability limits are needed so that businesses won't be sued for terrorist attacks and so that taxpayers won't be subsidizing trial lawyers excesses. Terrorism legislation should provide reasonable legal procedures that would:

- Ensure that victims can quickly recover real losses;
- Protect the taxpayer from spurious claims;
- Prevent unnecessary bankruptcies; and
- Reduce the likelihood that future terrorist attacks will significantly burden the U.S. economy.

A federal backstop for terrorism insurance is not just about helping insurance companies; it's about preventing a widespread credit crunch that jeopardizes thousands of diverse industries of all sizes and millions of workers.

Is the rationale for why we are pushing for the letter is that we were asked to do it and in fact, the Committee is anxious to get it?

I got a voicemail message from Jeff Weinberg, the Legislative Reference Attorney at OMB who is facilitating clearance of this letter. He said that he has forwarded the letter to WH counsel, but that they (?) was to know what the rationale is for sending the letter up now, when they are clearing a SAP for House rules today. Also, they want to know why its addressed to Rep. Oxley rather than Judiciary.

The Honorable J. Dennis Hastert
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Speaker Hastert:

As the oldest and largest national trade association in the construction industry, the Associated General Contractors of America (AGC) strongly supports the effort to ensure that the insurance industry can continue to provide insurance coverage for acts of terrorism at reasonable and affordable rates.

If this effort fails, the construction industry will certainly suffer. Even before the tragic events of September 11th, the volume of construction actually put into place had begun to decline. The broad exclusion of all acts of terrorism from all property and liability insurance policies would trigger a much deeper decline in the volume of such construction, and in the end, it could drag the entire nation into an economic recession. Without builders risk insurance broad enough to cover any acts of terrorism, property owners would find it difficult to qualify new projects for construction loans or permanent financing. Even if they could do so, such owners would hesitate to launch the construction of office buildings, shopping centers and industrial and other facilities that would remain largely uninsurable. Because of the long-term nature of construction projects, any solution to the problem needs to be, at a very minimum, at least one year so that such projects can continue to be planned and executed.

The casualties could well include the many new power plants and other energy projects now being planned. Such projects require considerable financing and often take years to complete. The real victims would, however, be the millions of good men and women who depend on the construction industry for their livelihood. Many, many more depend on the infrastructure that these Americans have the unique ability to build.

AGC has more than 33,000 general construction contractors, specialty contractors, material suppliers and professional service providers among its members represented by more than 100 state and local chapters throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. It was formed in 1918, at the request of President Woodrow Wilson, and in response to the national crisis of that much earlier era. It has much faith in the private sector and believes that the private sector can, should, and will assume the ultimate responsibility for resolving the current insurance crisis, but that, for some time, the federal government will have an important role to play.

AGC applauds your leadership and urges both Congress and the Administration to take prompt and appropriate action on this pressing matter.

Respectfully,

Stephen E. Sandherr

RE: Insurance Coverage for Terrorism

Dear Representative xxx:

The International Council of Shopping Centers (ICSC) urges you to quickly pass legislation that would provide a mechanism for property owners, including those who own malls and shopping centers, to obtain affordable and comprehensive insurance against future terrorist activities.

ICSC is the global trade association of the shopping center industry. Its 40,000 members in the United States, Canada and more than 75 other countries around the world include shopping center owners, developers, managers, investors, lenders, retailers and other professionals.

As a result of the events of September 11, the reinsurance industry has decided, on a prospective basis, to exclude acts of terrorism from coverage. Most primary insurers, therefore, will not provide terrorism insurance to their policyholders since they are unable to reduce their risk through reinsurance.

This, in turn, will cause shopping center owners to bear the full risk of damages resulting from any future terrorist activities. In addition, the lack of terrorism insurance will cause banks and other lenders to cease financing new construction projects or refinancing existing centers since their collateral would be exposed to terrorist acts.

It is imperative that Congress takes immediate action to avoid further disruption to our economy. As you consider the various pending legislation, we urge you to address the following concerns of the shopping center industry:

- Any federally assisted insurance program must be of sufficient duration to provide stability to the real estate and financial markets.
- All business and commercial properties must be covered for terrorism to guard against “cherry-picking” low-risk properties and excluding high-risk, high-visibility locations.

- The definition of “terrorism” in policies must be broad enough to include all acts of “terror”, even if they are classified for political purposes as “acts of war”.
- Appropriate legal safeguards should be included to protect all of the victims of a terrorist attack.

We look forward to working with you in the next couple of weeks to enact terrorism insurance legislation. If you have any questions, please contact Wayne Mehlman, ICSC’s Director of Economic Issues and Government Relations, at (703) 549-7404.

Sincerely,

John M. Ingram

November 28, 2001

Dear Member of Congress:

Later this week, the House of Representatives will consider, H.R. 3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act. On behalf of the more than 1,300 member companies of the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies (NAMIC), I encourage you to vote for its passage.

The Terrorism Risk Protection Act would establish a program within the Department of the Treasury that would provide a financial backstop for property and casualty insurance companies in the event of another catastrophic terrorist attack on our country. The events of September 11 have resulted in the largest loss for our industry in its history. While the total amount of those losses will not be known for sometime, estimates from reliable sources suggest the losses could be as high as $70 billion. The industry will pay all substantiated claims from those events.

The terrorism risk, however, is not a coverage for which companies can plan and measure their exposure. International reinsurers (those companies who insure insurers) are in the process of excluding coverage for terrorism losses from reinsurance contracts for the coming year. This means that primary companies will have to exclude the coverage from their policies or risk exposing their companies to insolvency should another event occur.

H.R. 3210 would provide for federal financial assistance to the industry and individual companies if losses exceed significant amounts. Any assistance the industry and individual companies receive from the federal government would be repaid to the U.S. Treasury.

Without the enactment of legislation before year-end, nearly all property and casualty insurance companies will seek to exclude terrorism coverage from their policies. This applies to personal lines carriers as well as commercial lines carriers.

Please vote "for" H.R. 3210.

Sincerely,

Pamela J. Allen
Vice President – Federal Affairs

IDENTICAL LETTER SENT TO ALL MEMBERS OF CONGRESS

Dear :

I write on behalf of the National Association of Wholesaler-Distributors (NAW) and our 45,000 affiliated companies, to express support for terrorism insurance legislation now being developed in both the House of Representatives and the Senate. Time is of the essence in this matter; it is vital to the operation of the wholesale distribution industry and the health of our economy that such legislation be enacted this year.

As you may know, the downturn in the economy which has been reflected in the financial markets contributed mightily to a "hardening" of the property-casualty insurance marketplace which began to be felt in the wholesale distribution and other insured industries well before the tragic events of September 11th. In the aftermath of those atrocities, the reinsurance industry has made clear that it will no longer provide coverage for losses due to "acts of terrorism" in contracts that renew on the first of the year. As a consequence, NAW member companies are learning that their insurers plan to similarly exclude coverage for losses due to terrorist acts. Where such an exclusion is not permitted, it has been suggested to NAW members that they should expect additional premium increases, lower policy limits and higher deductibles.

The financial pressure this places on industry firms is considerable in an already sluggish economy, and is not limited to that which is exerted on companies' bottom lines due to the higher cost of obtaining necessary insurance coverage. It also comes from the higher cost of obtaining services critical to the smooth operation of distribution channels; transportation for example, where insurance costs are similarly skyrocketing. The pressure is also felt in the financial markets for companies no longer able to obtain adequate commercial financing.

Absent a solution implemented in a timely fashion, the threat to our economy is clear. The importance to property-casualty insurance policy holders of the enactment of terrorism insurance legislation, enabling the Federal government to temporarily fill the void, cannot be overstated. To be effective, NAW members believe that the legislation must also provide reasonable legal procedures to protect taxpayers and all potential defendants in lawsuits that arise out of future terrorist attacks.

Again, timely action is essential. NAW respectfully urges that both Chambers of Congress act as quickly as possible, and present to the President for his signature terrorism insurance legislation with balanced, evenly-applied legal procedures. Thank you for your consideration of NAW's views.

Sincerely,

Dirk Van Dongen
President

I got a voicemail message from Jeff Weinberg, the Legislative Reference Attorney at OMB who is facilitating clearance of this letter. He said that he has forwarded the letter to WH counsel, but that they (?) was to know what the rationale is for sending the letter up now, when they are clearing a SAP for House rules today. Also, they want to know why its addressed to Rep. Oxley rather than Judiciary.

Dear Mr. Speaker:

Later this week, the House of Representatives is expected to consider H.R. 3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act. Passage of H.R. 3210 is necessary to ensure the availability of terrorism insurance coverage. The National Association of Real Estate Investment Trusts (NAREIT), representing REITs and publicly traded real estate companies, urges you to support this essential legislation.

It is estimated that over 70 percent of businesses and owners of commercial and residential properties renew their insurance coverage on January 1 each year. Many of these owners have been advised that their policies will not be renewed or that their new policies will exclude risks associated with terrorist acts. Unless Congress acts now to ensure the availability of affordable terrorism coverage in the marketplace, the real estate industry's ability to finance, construct, sell or buy properties across the country will be at risk and significant economic dislocation will likely occur.

H.R.3210 addresses the availability and affordability of terrorism insurance coverage while protecting taxpayers, policyholders and insurers. Moreover, the legislation contains reasonable liability reform provisions designed to benefit the victims of a terrorist attack so that all affected parties will receive appropriate damages.

Thank you in advance for your support of H.R. 3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act.

Sincerely,

Steven A. Wechsler
President and CEO

ASSOCIATION
REAL ESTATE

November 28, 2001

The Honorable Dennis Hastert
2369 Rayburn House Office Building
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Mr. Speaker:

Later this week, the House of Representatives is expected to consider H.R. 3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act. Passage of H.R. 3210 is necessary to ensure the availability of terrorism insurance coverage. The National Association of Real Estate Investment Trusts (NAREIT), representing REITs and publicly traded real estate companies, urges you to support this essential legislation.

It is estimated that over 70 percent of businesses and owners of commercial and residential properties renew their insurance coverage on January 1 each year. Many of these owners have been advised that their policies will not be renewed or that their new policies will exclude risks associated with terrorist acts. Unless Congress acts now to ensure the availability of affordable terrorism coverage in the marketplace, the real estate industry's ability to finance, construct, sell or buy properties across the country will be at risk and significant economic dislocation will likely occur.

H.R.3210 addresses the availability and affordability of terrorism insurance coverage while protecting taxpayers, policyholders and insurers. Moreover, the legislation contains reasonable liability reform provisions designed to benefit the victims of a terrorist attack so that all affected parties will receive appropriate damages.

Thank you in advance for your support of H.R. 3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act.

Sincerely,

Steven A. Wechsler
President and CEO

Why is it addressed to Oxley? It should probably go to Sensenbrenner, no?

Kristen, Brett, any thoughts on this?

I got a voicemail message from Jeff Weinberg, the Legislative Reference Attorney at OMB who is facilitating clearance of this letter. He said that he has forwarded the letter to WH counsel, but that they (?) was to know what the rationale is for sending the letter up now, when they are clearing a SAP for House rules today. Also, they want to know why its addressed to Rep. Oxley rather than Judiciary.

This NAM Key Vote Card was faxed to all members of the House of Representatives this afternoon.

November 28, 2001
Dear Representative:

On behalf of the 14,000 member companies of the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM), including more than 10,000 small and mid-sized manufacturers, I urge you to vote for the Terrorism Risk Protection Act (H.R. 3210).

The NAM supports H.R. 3210 that would provide federal loans to cover 90 percent of terrorism-loss claims totaling more than $1 billion. If aggregate claims exceed $20 billion, it would impose a special assessment on insurance policyholders to help defray costs. Beginning several weeks ago, insurance companies are contractually bound to notify calendar-year policyholders of any change in coverage. Because of the lack of reinsurance and the inability to assess potential losses, insurance carriers are no longer able to provide coverage for risk of loss from terrorist acts, meaning that claims arising from property, casualty or worker's comp losses that may result from a terrorist act will not be covered. It is also important that balanced liability protection for insurers and the insured be provided to avoid having taxpayers shoulder unnecessary expense. The NAM believes that the inability of U.S. businesses to obtain insurance coverage for losses from acts of terrorism poses a serious threat to the economy. Votes for H.R. 3210 will be considered for designation as a Key Manufacturing Vote in the NAM voting record for the 107th Congress.

Sincerely,

Jerry Jasinowski

President

* Votes considered for designation as NAM Key Manufacturing Votes are approved in advance by our members who serve on the Key Vote Advisory Committee. Eligibility for the NAM's Award for Manufacturing Legislative Excellence for the 107th Congress will be based on a member's record on Key Manufacturing Votes.

REV_00136932

The Real Estate Roundtable

November 28, 2001

RE: H.R. 3210, Terrorism Risk Protection Act

To Members of the U.S. House of Representatives:

We are writing to urge you to vote in favor of H.R. 3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act, which is expected to come to the House floor for a vote this week.

The events of September 11th dislocated reinsurance markets and eliminated the availability of primary terrorist insurance coverage at virtually any price. As a result, the real estate and construction industries, which account for over a quarter of the nation's gross domestic product, could face severe economic dislocation in the coming months if the Federal government does not immediately address insurance-related issues tied to terrorism.

Without Federal action, the ability to finance, construct, buy or sell commercial properties across the nation will be at risk – affecting not only real estate owners and lenders but the tenants who lease facilities, their employees and customers, as well as anyone who rents an apartment. While many commercial property owners are already affected, a significant percentage of properties, including shopping centers, offices and hotels are scheduled to renew their insurance coverage on January 1st. Many of these owners have already been advised that their policies will not be renewed or that their new policies will exclude exposures currently insured including terrorism.

As the current policies expire, there is tremendous uncertainty about the status of real estate debt, with some $700 billion in commercial bank debt, $350 billion of commercial mortgage-backed securities (CMBS) loans, and $220 billion of loans held by life insurance companies that run the risk of being in non-monetary default without the availability of terrorism coverage. This lack of coverage raises profound liquidity concerns not only on existing loans and the institutions that hold them but on the ability of borrowers to secure any type of financing going forward.

Any characterization of this legislation as a “bail out” for the insurance industry is inaccurate. The Federal government needs to help ensure that commercial property owners and other businesses can continue to obtain insurance coverage for losses related to terrorism in the future. It is important to act as soon as possible because there are policies expiring every day, and new transactions pending which are being impacted by the lack of resolution of this issue.

As the organization that represents the nation's principal public and privately held commercial property owners, we would like to thank the House for its leadership in attempting to provide a mechanism to ensure that our nation's properties are able to maintain terrorism insurance coverage. Again, we urge you to vote “yes” for H.R. 3210 and look forward to working with the Congress in the days ahead to reach a solution to this very significant issue prior to its adjournment this year.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey D. DeBoer
President & Chief Operating Officer

The Real Estate Roundtable

November 28, 2001

RE: H.R. 3210, Terrorism Risk Protection Act

To Members of the U.S. House of Representatives:

We are writing to urge you to vote in favor of H.R. 3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act, which is expected to come to the House floor for a vote this week.

The events of September 11th dislocated reinsurance markets and eliminated the availability of primary terrorist insurance coverage at virtually any price. As a result, the real estate and construction industries, which account for over a quarter of the nation's gross domestic product, could face severe economic dislocation in the coming months if the Federal government does not immediately address insurance-related issues tied to terrorism.

Without Federal action, the ability to finance, construct, buy or sell commercial properties across the nation will be at risk – affecting not only real estate owners and lenders but the tenants who lease facilities, their employees and customers, as well as anyone who rents an apartment. While many commercial property owners are already affected, a significant percentage of properties, including shopping centers, offices and hotels are scheduled to renew their insurance coverage on January 1st. Many of these owners have already been advised that their policies will not be renewed or that their new policies will exclude exposures currently insured including terrorism.

As the current policies expire, there is tremendous uncertainty about the status of real estate debt, with some $700 billion in commercial bank debt, $350 billion of commercial mortgage-backed securities (CMBS) loans, and $220 billion of loans held by life insurance companies that run the risk of being in non-monetary default without the availability of terrorism coverage. This lack of coverage raises profound liquidity concerns not only on existing loans and the institutions that hold them but on the ability of borrowers to secure any type of financing going forward.

Any characterization of this legislation as a “bail out” for the insurance industry is inaccurate. The Federal government needs to help ensure that commercial property owners and other businesses can continue to obtain insurance coverage for losses related to terrorism in the future. It is important to act as soon as possible because there are policies expiring every day, and new transactions pending which are being impacted by the lack of resolution of this issue.

As the organization that represents the nation's principal public and privately held commercial property owners, we would like to thank the House for its leadership in attempting to provide a mechanism to ensure that our nation's properties are able to maintain terrorism insurance coverage. Again, we urge you to vote “yes” for H.R. 3210 and look forward to working with the Congress in the days ahead to reach a solution to this very significant issue prior to its adjournment this year.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey D. DeBoer
President & Chief Operating Officer

The litigation management provisions in the revised reinsurance bill provide:

(1) If the Secretary of Treasury makes a determination that one or more acts of terrorism occur then an exclusive federal cause of action kicks in for lawsuits arising out of, relating to, or resulting from the acts of terrorism and the following litigation management provisions apply:

- for each determination by the Secretary that one or more acts of terrorism occurred, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall designate one or more federal district courts which shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions for any claim brought under the federal cause of action. The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the district court or courts based on the convenience of the parties and the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings.
- in an action brought under the federal cause of action for damages, no punitive damages shall be awarded
- each defendant in such an action shall be liable only for the amount of noneconomic damages, such as those for pain and suffering, in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of the defendant for the harm to the plaintiff (no joint and several liability).
- any recovery by a plaintiff on a claim under the federal cause of action shall be reduced by the amount of collateral source compensation, if any, that the plaintiff received or is entitled to receive as a result of the acts of terrorism.
- reasonable attorneys fees for work performed shall be subject to the discretion of the court, but in no event shall any attorney charge or collect compensation in an amount in excess of 20 percent of the damages or 20 percent of any court-approved settlement.

Discussion Points regarding the litigation management provisions in the revised reinsurance bill:

- Any terrorist-inspired litigation is not a garden variety tort case. A banana peel is an accident waiting to happen. A terrorist is a suicidal fanatic bent on killings innocents and causing mass destruction of property; even the most diligent property owner always cannot guard against such attacks.
- It's beyond dispute that terrorists are 99% responsible for the destruction caused by their attacks. Yet under many prevailing tort laws, anyone else sharing the remaining 1% responsibility may be on the hook for 100% of the tens of billions of dollars in potential damages. That is clearly unfair.
- Without limits on otherwise potentially infinite liability, any party named in a lawsuit in terrorist-inspired litigation will eventually go under because the capital markets cannot extend loans or credit to anyone facing possible liability in the billions. This includes national businesses with offices nationwide. That is a recipe for a national economic crisis.
- Such litigation management provisions are especially important when the United States, in a terrorism insurance program, is going to be providing up-front coverage of billion-dollar losses under terrorism insurance claims. Similar limits on liability are provided in the Federal Tort Claims Act, which limits the amount of funds that can be drawn from the U.S. Treasury.
- If a cloud of potentially infinite liability remains over any party, its access to credit and capital will dry up, it will fall into bankruptcy, and a federal bankruptcy court will return victims only pennies on the dollar.
- The 1993 World Trade Center bombing killed six people, yet resulted in 500 lawsuits by 700 individuals, businesses, and insurance companies. Damages claimed amounted to $500 million. Eight years later, the cases are only now just getting to trial, and hundreds of plaintiffs have yet to receive a cent in compensation. By providing reasonable limits on potentially infinite liability and consolidating all cases in one or a few federal forums, victims of terrorism will recover quicker and more equitably because a few enormous awards in one court will not bankrupt a responsible party before another court can consider the arguments of others who may have stronger claims against the same party.

Congress has a long history of preempting state tort law and limiting otherwise potentially infinite liability:

On November 16, the House voted 410-9 to pass the Aviation Security Act Conference Report and put reasonable limits on the otherwise potentially infinite liability major industries would have faced as a result of litigation surrounding the terrorist attacks of September 11. As a result of this legislation, as well as the Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act passed on September 21, September 11 related lawsuits against air carriers, aircraft manufacturers, owners and operators of airports, State port authorities, and persons with property interests in the World Trade Center, must be heard in federal court in New York and total damages against these potential defendants, if they are found liable, are capped at the limits of the insurance coverage they had on September 11.

In addition to the provisions described above, the Airline Security Act that originally passed the House also limited punitive damages and attorneys fees, and required that damage awards to plaintiffs be offset by any collateral source compensation received by the plaintiff. The litigation management provisions in H.R. 3210 would similarly benefit victims of future terrorist attacks. It is important to note, however, that unlike the liability provisions in both the Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act and in the Aviation Security Act that passed overwhelmingly in both the House and Senate, the provisions in H.R. 3210 do not cap damage awards. Under these provisions, the only limit on the compensatory damages that may be awarded in terrorist-inspired litigation is the fault of any defendant.

Beyond the recently-enacted Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act and the Aviation Security Act, Congress has passed the following legislation:

! The Price-Anderson Act provided for a maximum aggregate liability of $560 million in the event of a nuclear accident at a federally licensed nuclear power plant.

! The Swine Flu Act substituted the liability of the United States under the Federal Torts Claim Act for the liability of manufacturers, distributors, and volunteer medical personnel in connection with the administration of the swine flu vaccine.

! The Atomic Weapons Testing Liability Act created a cause of action against the United States for radiation injuries arising from federal atomic weapons testing programs, retroactively abolished private tort actions against government contractors for such injuries, and made the Federal Tort Claims Act the sole remedy for those injuries.

! The National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986 was enacted to address manufacturers' liability concerns relating to the distribution of vaccines and to minimize the public health dangers posed by low vaccine supplies. The Act created a no-fault compensation program for childhood vaccine-injury victims to be funded by an excise tax on each dose of vaccine.

! In 1988, under the Price-Anderson Amendments Act of 1988, claims arising from "nuclear incidents" were considered to be exclusively federal causes of action. Such actions are to be based on the applicable state law where the nuclear accident occurred except to the extent such law is inconsistent with federal law.

Just over the last several years, Congress has enacted a series of federal tort reform laws to limit otherwise potentially infinite liability in certain contexts. These statutes preempted state tort law in the areas of:

- ! general aviation aircraft liability;
- ! donation of food for distribution to the needy;
- ! volunteer activity generally;
- ! public railway transportation;
- ! medical implant supplies;
- ! Y2K computer failures;
- ! and just this Tuesday, the House reauthorized the Price-Anderson Act by voice vote.

Talking pts miss the major point --

This bill is about addressing rising insurance costs facing businesses as a result of the risk of terrorism. You can't address those costs without addressing the risk of litigation b/c the premium increases are a direct result -- in large numbers of cases -- of the risk of state court litigation.

When the truckers and railroads or airlines face premium increases -- it isn't because anyone is worried about the cost of replacing the truck or the train or plane -- it's b/c everyone is worried that the truck or plane or train will be used to kill thousands of people and that the business will get sued in Mississippi state court.

Dear New Democrat Coalition Colleague:

Today the House is scheduled to consider H.R. 3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act. While the process has been deeply flawed, it is essential for our nation's economic security that Congress enact legislation to provide a federal government backstop for insured property and casualty losses caused by acts of terrorism.

Damages resulting from the events of September 11 have already topped $50 billion. The insurance industry is paying all claims from these events, but does not have the capacity to pay new claims should additional catastrophic acts of terrorism occur. The legislation would allow insurers to recharge their capacity to pay claims and ensure that the insurance industry can continue to write policies that provide coverage for terrorism risk.

Adequate insurance coverage is an essential component of a growing economy. The reinsurance industry is unable to provide coverage against further terrorist attacks so it is essential that the federal government provide a temporary backstop. At a time of economic weakness, we simply cannot afford to risk another disruption to the economy.

While we acknowledge that the process has been far from ideal, we urge you to support final passage of H.R. 3210, move the process forward, and provide an opportunity for the Conference Committee to develop a consensus package that will address this serious need.

Sincerely,

Group Fights Shield on Executive Records

BYLINE: DAVID G. SAVAGE, TIMES STAFF WRITER

DATELINE: WASHINGTON

BODY:

A group of historians and journalists went to court Wednesday seeking to block President Bush's recent executive order that overrides a 1978 law calling for the release of White House records after 12 years. Directly at issue is 68,000 pages of "confidential communications" from President Reagan's White House.

Beyond that, the legal battle may decide whether Bush's presidential records become public after he leaves office.

Congress passed the Presidential Records Act of 1978 to make clear that the papers and files of a president are the government's property. The measure was a reaction to the Watergate scandal and President Nixon's efforts to control his papers and secret White House tapes. The law took effect in 1981, the year Reagan became president. It said most of a former president's papers would be opened to the public after a 12-year wait.

The open-access rule was to be triggered for the first time this year, but Bush issued an executive order that bars the archivist from releasing any former president's records until the current president and the former president's representative give their approval.

The Nov. 1 order also extended this secrecy rule to "vice presidential records."
This gives the current president the power to block the public release of

REV_00136971

files from the office of former Vice President George Bush, his father.

"Inevitably, this has made people wonder what they are trying to hide," said
Scott Nelson, a lawyer for Public Citizen, the public interest group that filed the suit
Wednesday.

Nelson said none of Reagan's aides had sought the secrecy order. In all, the Reagan
White House generated 44 million pages of files and records. About 4 million pages have been released so far. The law exempts from release any files that involve national security.

The files that spawned the lawsuit were requested by historians who are researching aspects of domestic policy during Reagan's presidency.

Anne Womack, a White House spokeswoman, describes Bush's move as "establishing an orderly process" for implementing the 1978 law.

She pointed out that the order relies on a Supreme Court ruling from Nixon's era that describes a former president as having a continuing legal right over his papers.

Bush's order says the extra delay in releasing old papers is necessary to protect various
"constitutional privileges" such as the "state secrets privilege," the "deliberative process privilege" and the attorney-client privilege.

Critics, including the lawyers who filed the suit, said Bush had turned the 1978 law on its head. Rather than ensuring open access to presidential records, the order drew a veil of secrecy over them, they said.

"Bush's executive order violates not only the spirit but the letter of the law," said Joan
Claybrook, president of Public Citizen.

The suit was filed on behalf of the American Historical Assn., the Organization of American Historians, the National Security Archive and the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, as well as presidential historians Hugh Davis Graham of Vanderbilt
University and Stanley I. Kutler of the University of Wisconsin.

It seeks a judge's order calling for the archivist to release the Reagan papers in keeping with the terms of the 1978 law.

The dispute also has an interesting twist.

Bush's order was drafted by White House lawyer Brett M. Kavanaugh, officials said. It says: "Presidential communications, legal advice, legal work (and) the deliberative process of the President and the President's advisors" are protected by the Constitution.

But three years ago, Kavanaugh was on the opposite side of a similar dispute. As a top deputy to independent counsel Kenneth W. Starr, he argued that the conversations of President Clinton and his aide Bruce Lindsey were not entitled to constitutional protection.

Starr had subpoenaed Lindsey to force him to testify before the grand jury probing the Monica S. Lewinsky scandal, and Kavanaugh won a 2-1 ruling from the U.S. Court of Appeals that rejected Clinton's claim of confidentiality.

I finally caught Tom and spoke to him awhile. In his piece tomorrow, he is going to quote a White House official (me) saying that "his advisors would not recommend that he sign a bill without any legal procedures." This was in response to a question of: "would the President sign a bill without tort reform." This is what we have been telling people, and is what our House SAP said (legal procedures are a necessary condition of Administration support).

AGENCY FOIA REQUESTS

HHS

- 9/11 Medical Records Anticipating a large volume of requests from attorneys and others seeking medical records prepared by PHS emergency medical personnel in connection with recent events, OGC and the Office of Emergency Preparedness drafted standard language for responding. Requesters will be advised to follow applicable FOI and Privacy Act procedures for seeking government records
- NIH Judicial Watch contacted NIH seeking documents regarding an October 23 meeting between NIH's Dr. Anthony Fauci and the Secretary in which the anthrax crisis was discussed.
- Associated Press, Washington, D.C., has requested that CDC provide copies of all contracts of $25,000 or more awarded by the Agency from September 12 through November 9, 2001, on a no-bid or non-competitive basis.
- USA TODAY has requested that CDC provide all EPI-AID request forms and trip reports for the New York, Washington D.C., New Jersey and Florida anthrax investigations (and any other anthrax investigations). In addition, they have requested all information relative to any CDC World Series assignments in Arizona and New York.
- CMS On November 14 Senator Harkin requested that CMS provide electronic access to current demographic data regarding Medicare-eligible Iowans, with monthly electronic updates to ensure accuracy of records.
- Anthrax Judicial Watch requested from FDA any records related to Bioport Corp. and anthrax vaccine, and communications concerning its use during the Gulf War.
- Office of International Affairs. The request is for all deliberations and drafting that contributed to the finalized letter sent to Dr. Hogerzeil, of the World Health Organization (WHO), regarding the WHO's proposed changes to their Essential Drugs List review process.

COMMERCE

- Received 11/26/01 from Joseph W. Dorn and Duane W. Layton of King & Spalding, requesting a copy of the Secretary's report to the President concerning the Secretary's findings and recommendations resulting from the investigation under Section 232 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962. The Section 232 investigation determined the effects on U.S. national security of imports of iron ore and semi-finished steel.

- Received 11/21/01 from Michael Ravnitzky of American Lawyer Media, requesting membership and participant lists for the Interagency Working Group on Technology Transfer (IWGTT) as well as agendas, minutes, and handouts for all meetings of the IWGTT from 1992 to present.
- Received 11/21/01 from Christopher J. Farrell of Judicial Watch, requesting all information relating to: (1) the decision to settle with McDonnell Douglass on charges that the company violated U.S. export laws by selling aerospace machine tools to a Chinese company; (2) communications concerning the decision to drop the criminal charges filed against McDonnell Douglass; (3) communications concerning the decision to set the civil penalty for McDonnell Douglass at $2.1 million; (4) communications concerning the decision to preserve the right of McDonnell Douglass to conduct business overseas as part of the settlement; (5) the sale of $5.4 million in machine equipment to the China National Aero-Technology Import and Export Corporation; and (6) communications concerning the decision to require McDonnell Douglass' parent company, the Boeing Company, to assume responsibility and liability for all exports under DOC's jurisdiction made or to be made by McDonnell Douglass.
- Received 11/15/01 from Gabrielle Herderschee-Hunter of the Federal Trade Commission's FTC Watch, requesting Microsoft Corporation Contracts.

JUSTICE

- Mark Benjamin, of United Press International, has requested all correspondence between the Department and members of Congress since September 11 regarding the following: 1) recent Department policy allowing the government to monitor communications between suspects and their attorneys; 2) information on individuals detained in the government's investigation of the attacks; 3) the administration's decision to possibly establish military tribunals to try terrorist suspects; and, 4) the subject of civil liberties.
- Christopher Farrell, of Judicial Watch, Inc., has requested all records pertaining to the decision to settle with McDonnell Douglas on charges that the company "violated US export laws by selling to a Chinese-run company aerospace machine tools that ultimately wound up in a Chinese military plant."
- Erica Miller, of the Chemical and Biological Arms Control Institute, has requested a document entitled, "Attorney General's Five-Year Interagency Counterterrorism and Technology Crime Plan."

DOT

- Judicial Watch. Records relating to: (1) communications between former FAA Deputy Administrator Linda Daschle and former DOT Inspector General Mary Schiavo regarding criminal-record checks for all airline employees, as cited in the Miami Herald; (2) a meeting between Ms. Daschle and L-3 Communications or InVision Technologies Inc.; (3) the number of "eXaminer" airline luggage bomb-detection devices, manufactured by L-3

Communications, currently in use at airports in the U.S.; (4) the number of "CTX" airline luggage bomb-detection devices, manufactured by InVision Technologies Inc., currently in use at airports in the U.S.; (5) the reported breakdowns of "eXaminer" bomb-detection devices at the Dallas/Fort Worth Airport after installation in the spring of 2000; (6) the number of breakdowns the "eXaminer" bomb-detection devices experience; (7) the number of breakdowns the "CTX" bomb-detection devices experience; (8) FAA's certification of L-3 Communications' "eXaminer" as an FAA approved bomb-scanner; and (9) the decision to mandate the purchase of an "eXaminer" bomb-scanner for every "CTX" bomb-scanner purchased by the FAA.

EPA

- During the week of November 20-26, 2001, the Agency received a total of 177 FOIA requests. Of that total, 35 were received in Headquarters. Significant FOIA requests included: New York Public Interest Research Group is asking for all records and documents between EPA and any representative of the General Electric Company from September 7, 2001 to the present regarding the Hudson River PCB Superfund Site.

You are too modest! Brian, I have always had tremendous respect for the White House lobbying operation, but the way you have handled this bill -- with all its difficulties -- has boosted my opinion 1000%. Great job.

Sheila

Brian Conklin should be congratulated for securing an impressive 227-193 win on the House terrorism insurance bill!

Best,

Marc

Mike wants to discuss with Dan and has exchanged calls with him. As for next Wednesday, the CRM awards ceremony is at 3:30 pm. Mike MUST be present for that, so next Wednesday afternoon is a problem unless the committee guarantees he's out at 2:30 pm

Just a reminder that leg affairs, specifically Heather Wingate, needs to be alerted when a member of this office meets with members of Congress and/or their staff re: judicial nominations.

If the Judge and/or Tim are participants in the meeting Allison or I will take care of notifying Heather. If you going up on your own you need to contact Heather directly.

Thanks!

I have thought more about a possible meeting with all of the department GCs. I am not sure such a group meeting is necessarily the best way to go, assuming as is always likely that such a meeting gets subsequently and inaccurately reported in media. I would propose a summary memo of law/policy from Judge Gonzales to GC's, which should accomplish the objective and also avoid the danger of mischaracterization. Would that be sufficient/useful for you?

The Office of Legal Counsel has concurred with the analysis I previously provided you in which I advised that use of blackberries was consistent with the Presidential Records Act. For these purposes, blackberries are no different from face-to-face meetings, cell phones, regular phones, and voice mail, for example. Please feel free to proceed and to contact me with any additional questions. Thanks.

Don Willet informs me that the Guidelines remain in force and "are good."
I have not, however, independently reviewed them.

Good morning, Mr. Orr.

On August 14, 1997, the White House issued the GUIDELINES ON RELIGIOUS EXERCISE AND RELIGIOUS EXPRESSION IN THE FEDERAL WORKPLACE. I'm simply trying to find out if these guidelines are still in effect, and if not, what have they been replaced by.
Thanks.

My guess is that our larger concern will be with some House Democrats, not the Senate.

Subject: Update on legislative help on Berry

I just spoke with Heather Wingate about her progress on the Hill today. She was under the impression that we were monitoring Hill members to make sure they weren't getting inflamed. She wasn't asking Members to put pressure on Berry to follow the law here. I told her we wanted to get the Hill to pressure Berry into following the law so that we could avoid a confrontation on Friday if possible. She'll start making that request tomorrow.

Her monitoring of the situation produced the following so far:
Most members don't seem to have this issue on their radar screens at all. Daschle's staffer was aware of it, but didn't seem incensed about the issue. Reid's staff indicated that the issue seemed pretty straightforward; they appeared to agree with our position. Heather believes that we can count on most Dems not becoming inflamed or invested in this issue. She expects that Daschle won't want to get involved.

She thinks she may be able to convince Hatch to tell Berry he's not supporting her in this.

Dear Ms. Camp,
The Washington Council of Lawyers would like to invite Hon. Alberto Gonzales to participate as a panelist in our upcoming brownbag forum on responses to terrorism. Brett Kavanaugh suggested that I email you. The panel will be a sequel to our October 25th forum entitled "Responding to Terrorism: Safeguarding Our Communities and Our Civil Liberties." I am attaching a flyer from that event. In our upcoming panel, we once again seek to provide a variety of perspectives on how to reconcile current efforts to protect our security with the need to guarantee fundamental civil liberties. Our focus for this event will be on some of the policies that have emerged since October 25th, including those concerning military tribunals and the attorney-client privilege. We hope that Mr. Gonzales will be able to represent the Administration and provide his perspective on these various government policies. The Washington Council of Lawyers is a voluntary bar association dedicated to promoting public interest and pro bono law. To find out more about the Council, you may visit our website at www.washingtoncounciloflawyers.org. We plan to hold this event on Wed., Jan. 9, or Thurs. Jan. 17, 2002, from 12 noon until 2:00 p.m. at a law firm in downtown Washington, D.C. I would greatly appreciate it if you would let me know whether Mr. Gonzales is available to participate, and whether he is available on both or only one of those dates. Please reply to this email or call me at 202-942-5063. Thank you very much for your assistance.

Dear Ms. Camp,

The Washington Council of Lawyers would like to invite Hon. Alberto Gonzales to participate as a panelist in our upcoming brownbag forum on responses to terrorism. Brett Kavanaugh suggested that I email you.

The panel will be a sequel to our October 25th forum entitled "Responding to Terrorism: Safeguarding Our Communities and Our Civil Liberties." I am attaching a flyer from that event.

In our upcoming panel, we once again seek to provide a variety of perspectives on how to reconcile current efforts to protect our security with the need to guarantee fundamental civil liberties. Our focus for this event will be on some of the policies that have emerged since October 25th, including those concerning military tribunals and the attorney-client privilege. We hope that Mr. Gonzales will be able to represent the Administration and provide his perspective on these various government policies.

The Washington Council of Lawyers is a voluntary bar association dedicated to promoting public interest and pro bono law. To find out more about the Council, you may visit our website at www.washingtoncounciloflawyers.org.

We plan to hold this event on Wed., Jan. 9, or Thurs. Jan. 17, 2002, from 12 noon until 2:00 p.m. at a law firm in downtown Washington, D.C. I would greatly appreciate it if you would let me know whether Mr. Gonzales is available to participate, and whether he is available on both or only one of those dates. Please reply to this email or call me at 202-942-5063.

Thank you very much for your assistance.

12:00 noon to 2:00 p.m.

Hogan & Hartson
Conference Room 12W-600
555 13th Street, N.W.

The panel will discuss how to reconcile current efforts to protect our security with the need to guarantee fundamental civil liberties. The program will address topics of concern including the immigration, privacy and criminal justice implications of proposed anti-terrorist legislation, as well as the security objectives the legislation is designed to meet. Panelists will consider the appropriate balance to be struck in this critical endeavor.

PANELISTS:

Moderator: Louis Bograd, Senior Staff Attorney, American Civil Liberties Union
David Cole, Professor, Georgetown University Law Center, and Author, Terrorism and the Constitution: Sacrificing Civil Liberties in the Name of National Security
Viet Dinh, Assistant Attorney General for the Office of Legal Policy
Elliot Minberg, Vice President and Legal Director, People for the American Way
Stuart Taylor, National Journal Columnist and Newsweek Contributor

This event is a brownbag lunch. Beverages will be provided. Cost: $7 per person, $5 for Council Member, Student, Public Interest, or Government.

The Washington Council of Lawyers is a non-profit organization of lawyers committed to the spirit and practice of law in the public interest.

Kirk mentioned that two important talking pts for today are:

1) Parity on liability. The business groups have some sense (maybe from vote in House fin. services) that insurers will be taken care of but other businesses will be excluded. Make clear that we support accross-the board provisions.

2) That Senate bill is better than House bill in ensuring that companies in del rio don't have to subsidize business in NYC.

He also said that LeAnne had the sense from Dave Hoppe that Lott just wanted vote on liability, not necessarily Atty's fees.

Subject: FYI - Development in Linda Tripp Lawsuit

You may get press inquiries about something that will happen today in the Linda Tripp case. This is the litigation involving the DoD's release of sensitive information from Tripp's personnel file during the Clinton administration.

The DOJ is going to file a document today conceding liability -- i.e., the Department will admit that the release of the information did in fact violate the Privacy Act.

Some talking points:

1) Neither the White House nor any past or present White House officials are parties in this case. The suit is against the DoD only. Furthermore, all of the events at issue are Clinton-era.

REV_00137352

2) Although the DOJ is conceding liability, it is not conceding damages. That is, the Department will continue to argue to the court that Tripp has not proved that she has suffered, or is entitled to recover, any money damages as a result of the Privacy Act violation. Thus, the concession with respect to liability will not end the case -- it will simply shift the focus to the issue of damages, where the DOJ believes its position is strong.

107TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

S.1748

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

Mr. GRAMM (for himself and Mr. ENZI, Mr. BENNETT, Mr. BUNNING, and Mr. ALLARD) introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To promote the stabilization of the economy by encouraging financial institutions to continue to support economic development, including development in urban areas, through the provision of affordable insurance coverage against acts of terrorism, and for other purposes.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

1 (b) CONDITIONS FOR FEDERAL PAYMENTS.—No
2 payment may be made by the Secretary under subsection
3 (c), unless—

4 (1) a policyholder that suffers an insured loss,
5 or a person acting on behalf of that policyholder,
6 files a claim with a participating insurance company;

7 (2) beginning on the date of enactment, at the time of offer, purchase,
8 and renewal

9 | ____ of each policy covering an insured loss, the partici-
10 pating insurance company provides, as soon as 11 practicable following the date of enactment of this Act,
12 clear and conspicuous disclosure in the policy to the 13 policyholder of the premium charged for insured losses
14 covered by the Program and the Federal share of 15 compensation for insured losses under the Program;

16 (3) the participating insurance company proc-
17 esses the claim for the insured loss in accordance 18 with its standard business practices, and any reasonable proce-
19 dures that the Secretary may prescribe;
20 and

21 (4) the participating insurance company sub-
22 mits to the Secretary, in accordance with such reasonable pro-
23 cedures as the Secretary may establish—

24 (A) a claim for payment of the Federal 25 share of compensation for insured losses under 26 the Program;
27

(B) written verification and certification—

(i) of the underlying claim; and

(ii) of all payments made to policyholders for insured losses; and

(C) certification of its compliance with the provisions of this subsection.

(c) MANDATORY PARTICIPATION AND MANDATORY OFFER

(1) PARTICIPATION IN PROGRAM. All participating insurance companies must participate in the Program.

(2) MANDATORY OFFER OF TERRORISM RISK COVERAGE. All property and casualty insurance policies must offer coverage for insured losses.

(d) PARTICIPATION OF SELF INSURED ENTITIES

(1) DETERMINATION BY THE SECRETARY. The Secretary may, in consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, establish procedures to allow self insurance arrangements by municipalities and other governmental or quasi-governmental entities, to participate in the Program, as appropriate, but only if the Secretary's determination with regard to participation of any such governmental or quasi-governmental entity is made before the occurrence of an act of terrorism in which the governmental or quasi-governmental entity incurs an insured loss.

(1)(2) PARTICIPATION. If the Secretary determines to allow a governmental or quasi-governmental entity to participate, all reports, conditions, requirements and standards established by the Act for participating insurance companies shall apply, as determined to be appropriate by the Secretary.

(e)(e) SHARED INSURANCE LOSS COVERAGE.—

(1) PARTICIPATING INSURANCE COMPANY DEDUCTIBLE.

(a) PARTICIPATING INSURANCE COMPANY DEDUCTIBLE DEFINED.—For purposes of this subsection, the term “participating insurance company deductible” means the dollar amount equal to the participating insurance company’s market share of total property and casualty premiums as determined by the Secretary multiplied by $10,000,000,000;

(b) INTERIM FINAL REGULATION. – The Secretary shall issue an interim final regulation prescribing the

1 manner in which each participating insurance company's market
2 share shall be determined in accordance with subsection (a).

3 (2)(1) FEDERAL SHARE.—Subject to the cap limita-
4 tions in paragraph (4)(2), the Federal share of com-
5 pensation under the Program, to be paid by the Sec-
6 retary, shall be—

7 (A) for insured losses resulting from an act
8 of terrorism occurring during the period begin-
9 ning on the date of enactment of this Act and 10 ending at midnight on December 31, 2002, 9 80 percent of 11 a participating insurance company's insured losses that exceed the 12 company's participating insurance company deductible, if the 13 Secretary has not determined that the aggregate amount of insured 14 losses during this period exceed the aggregate amount of all such 15 losses in ex-
16 cess of $10,000,000,000;

17 (B) for insured losses resulting from an 18 act of terrorism occurring during the period be-19 ginning on the date of enactment of this Act and January 1, 2003 and 20 ending at midnight on De-
21 cember 31, 2002 2003, 90 percent of the participating insurance
22 company's insured losses that exceed the company's participating 23 insurance company deductible, beginning on the date that the 24 Secretary determines that the aggregate
25 amount of insured losses during the period exceeds all such losses in 26 excess of
27 $10,000,000,000.; and

28 (C) if the Program is extended in accord-
29 ance with section 6, the Federal share of compensation
30 described in (A) and (B) shall apply to for insured losses
31 resulting 32

1 from an act of terrorism occurring during the
2 period beginning on January 1, ~~2003~~ 2004 and end-
3 ing at midnight on December 31,
4 ~~2003, 2004, 90 percent of the~~
5 ~~aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of~~ 6 ~~$20,000,000,000.~~

8 ~~(4)(2)~~ CAP ON ANNUAL LIABILITY.—Notwith-
9 standing paragraph (1), or any other provision of 10 Federal or State law, if the aggregate insured losses
11 exceed $100,000,000,000 during any period referred 12 to in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (1)
13 (or the period referred to in subparagraph (C) of 14 paragraph (1) if the Program is extended in accord-
15 ance with section 6)—

16 (A) the Secretary shall not make any pay-
17 ment under this Act for any portion of the 18 amount of such losses that exceeds
19 $100,000,000,000; and

20 (B) participating insurance companies
21 shall not be liable for the payment of any por-
22 tion of the amount that exceeds
23 $100,000,000,000.

24 ~~(5)(3)~~ NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary
25 shall notify the Congress if estimated or actual ag-
26 gregate insured losses exceed $100,000,000,000 in 27 any period described in paragraph (1), and the Congress shall determine the procedures for and the source of any such excess payments.
28

(6)~~(4)~~ FINAL NETTING.—The Secretary shall have sole discretion to determine the time at which claims relating to any insured loss or act of terrorism shall become final.

(7)~~(5)~~ DETERMINATIONS FINAL.—Any determination of the Secretary under this subsection shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(f)~~(d)~~ FUNDING.—

(1) PAYMENT AUTHORITY.—This Act constitutes payment authority in advance of appropriation Acts and represents the obligation of the Federal Government to provide for the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program.

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary to pay the administrative expenses of the Program.

SEC. 5. GENERAL AUTHORITY AND ADMINISTRATION OF CLAIMS.

(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall have the powers and authorities necessary to carry out the Program, including authority—

1 (1) to investigate and audit all claims under the 2 Program; and

3 (2) to prescribe regulations and procedures to 4 implement the Program.

5 (b) INTERIM RULES AND PROCEDURES.—The Sec-
6 retary shall issue interim final rules or procedures speci-
7 fying the manner in which—

8 (1) participating insurance companies may file,
9 verify, and certify claims under the Program;

10 (2) the Secretary shall publish or otherwise
11 publicly announce the applicable percentage of in-
12 sured losses to be paid by participating insurance
13 companies and the Federal share of compensation
14 for insured losses under the Program;

15 (3) the Federal share of compensation for in-
16 sured losses will be paid under the Program, includ-
17 ing payments based on estimates of or actual aggre-
18 gate insured losses;

19 (4) the Secretary may, at any time, seek repay-
20 ment from or reimburse any participating insurance
21 company, based on estimates of insured losses under 22 the Program, to effectuate the insured loss sharing
23 schedule and limitations contained in section 4;

24 (5) participating insurance companies that
25 | incur insured losses shall pay their ~~pro-rata~~ share of 26

insured losses in accordance with the schedule and limitations contained in section 4; and

(6) the Secretary will determine any final netting of payments for actual insured losses under the Program, including payments owed to the Federal Government from any participating insurance company and any Federal share of compensation for insured losses owed to any participating insurance company, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4.

(c) SUBROGATION RIGHTS.-- The United States shall have the right of subrogation with respect to any payment made by the United States under the Program.

(d) CONTRACTS FOR SERVICES.—The Secretary may employ persons or contract for services as may be necessary to implement the Program.

(e) CIVIL PENALTIES.—The Secretary may assess civil money penalties for violations of this Act or any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Secretary under this Act relating to the submission of false or misleading information for purposes of the Program, or any failure to repay any amount required to be reimbursed under regulations or procedures described in section 5(b). The authority granted under this subsection shall continue during any period in which the Secretary's authority under section 6(d) is in effect.

SEC. 6. TERMINATION OF PROGRAM; DISCRETIONARY EXTENSION.

(a) TERMINATION OF PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL. The Program shall terminate, at midnight on December 31, 2003 ~~2002~~, unless the Secretary—

(A) determines, after considering the report and finding required by this section, that the Program should be extended for one additional year, until midnight on December 31, 2003; ~~2004~~; and

(B) promptly notifies the Congress of such determination and the reasons therefore.

(2) DETERMINATION FINAL.—The determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) shall be

1 final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

2 (3) TERMINATION AFTER EXTENSION.—If the
3 Program is extended under paragraph (1), this Act
4 is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, at midnight on De-
5 cember 31, 2003~~2004~~.

6 (b) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 9~~18~~
7 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Sec-
8 retary shall submit a report to Congress—

9 (1) regarding—

10 (A) the availability of insurance coverage
11 for acts of terrorism;

12 (B) the affordability of such coverage, in-
13 cluding the effect of such coverage on pre-14 miums; and 15

1 (C) the capacity of the insurance industry
2 to absorb future losses resulting from acts of 3 terrorism, taking into account the profitability
4 of the insurance industry; and

5 (2) that considers—

6 (A) the impact of the Program on each of 7 the factors described in paragraph (1); and

8 (B) the probable impact on such factors
9 and on the United States economy if the Pro-
10 gram terminates on December 31, 2002 ~~2003~~.

11 (c) FINDING REQUIRED.—A determination under 12 subsection (a) to extend the Program shall be based on 13 a finding by the Secretary that—

14 (1) widespread market uncertainties continue to 15 disrupt the ability of insurance companies to price
16 insurance coverage for losses resulting from acts of 17 terrorism, thereby resulting in the continuing un-
18 availability of affordable insurance for consumers;
19 and

20 (2) extending the Program for an additional 21 year would likely encourage economic stabilization
22 and facilitate a transition to a viable market for pri-
23 vate terrorism risk insurance.

24 (d) CONTINUING AUTHORITY TO PAY OR ADJUST
25 COMPENSATION.—Following the termination of the Program under subsection
26 (a), the Secretary may take such actions as may be necessary to ensure payment, 27 reimbursement, or adjustment of compensation for insured losses arising out of 28 any act of terrorism occurring during the period in which the Program was in 29 effect under this Act and as to which a determination has been made in accordance 30 with the provisions of section 4 and regulations promulgated thereunder.

31 (e) STUDY AND REPORT ON SCOPE OF THE PRO-
32 GRAM -

33 (1) STUDY.—The Secretary, after consultation
34 with the National Association of Insurance Commis-
35 sioners, representatives of the insurance industry,
36 and other experts in the insurance field, shall con-
37 duct a study of the potential effects of acts of ter-38 rorism on the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress on the results of the study conducted under paragraph (1).

(f) REPORTS REGARDING TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE PREMIUMS.—

(1) REPORT TO THE NAIC. Beginning 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, and every 6 months thereafter, each participating insurance company shall submit a report to the National Association of Insurance Commissioners that contains information about the premium rates charged by that insurance company over the previous 6 months for insured losses covered by the Program and an explanation of and justification for those rates.

(2) REPORTS FORWARDED. The National Association of Insurance Commissioners shall promptly forward copies of each report to the Secretary, the Secretary of Commerce and the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission.

SEC. 7 PRESERVATION OF STATE LAW.

Nothing in this Act shall affect the jurisdiction or regulatory authority of the insurance commissioner (or any agency or office performing like functions) of any State over any participating insurance company or other person—

1 SECTION. 1. SHORT TITLE.

2 This Act may be cited as the “Terrorism Risk Insur-
3 ance Act of 2001”.

4 SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

5 (a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

6 (1) property and casualty insurance firms are 7 important financial institutions, the products of 8 which allow mutualization of risk and the efficient
9 use of financial resources and enhance the ability of 10 the economy to maintain stability, while responding 11 to a variety of economic, political, environmental,
12 and other risks with a minimum of disruption;

13 (2) the ability of businesses and individuals to 14 obtain property and casualty insurance at reasonable 15 and predictable prices, in order to spread the risk of 16 both routine and catastrophic loss, is critical to eco-
17 nomic growth, urban development, and the construc-
18 tion and maintenance of public and private housing,
19 as well as to the promotion of United States exports
20 and foreign trade in an increasingly interconnected
21 world;

22 (3) the ability of the insurance industry to 23 cover the unprecedented financial risks presented by 24 potential acts of terrorism in the United States can 25 be a major factor in the recovery from terrorist at-26

1 (1) except as specifically provided in this Act;
2 and

3 (2) except that—

4 (A) the definition of the term “act of ter-
5 rorism” in section 3 shall be the exclusive defi-
6 nition for purposes of compensation for insured
7 losses under this Act, and shall preempt any 8 provision of State law that is inconsistent with 9 that definition, to the extent that such provision
10 of law would otherwise apply to any insurance
11 policy relating to terrorism risk in the United
12 States;

13 (B) during the period beginning on the 14 date of enactment of this Act and ending on 15 December 31, 2002, rates for terrorism risk in-16 surance covered by this Act and filed with any 17 State shall not be subject to prior approval or 18 a waiting period, under any law of a State that 19 would otherwise be applicable, except that 20 nothing in this Act affects the ability of any 21 State to invalidate a rate as excessive, inad-
22 equate, or unfairly discriminatory; and

23 (C) during the period beginning on the 24 date of enactment of this Act and for so long
25 as the Program is in effect as provided in Section 6
26

(including any period during which the Secretary's authority under Section 6(d) is in effect), books and records of any participating insurance company shall be provided, or caused to be provided, to the Secretary or his designee upon request by the Secretary or his designee notwithstanding any provision of the laws of any State prohibiting or limiting such access.

SEC. 8. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that the insurance industry should build capacity and aggregate risk to provide affordable property and casualty coverage for terrorism risk.

SEC. 9. PROCEDURES FOR CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION.—There shall exist a Federal cause of action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, which shall be the exclusive cause of action and remedy for claims for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism. All State causes of action of any kind for property damage, personal injury, or death otherwise available arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, are hereby preempted, except as provided in subsection (f).

(b) GOVERNING LAW.—The substantive law for decision in an action for property damage, personal injury,

1 or death arising out of or resulting from an act of ter-
2 rorism under this section shall be derived from the law,
3 including applicable choice of law principles, of the State,
4 or States determined to be required by the district court
5 assigned under subsection (c), unless such law is incon-
6 sistent with or otherwise preempted by Federal law.

7 (c) FEDERAL JURISDICTION.—

8 (1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other
9 provision of law, not later than 90 days after the oc-
10 currence of an act of terrorism, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict
11 Litigation shall assign a single Fed-
12 eral district court to conduct pretrial and trial pro-
13 ceedings in all pending and future civil actions for 14 property damage, personal injury, or death arising
15 out of or resulting from that act of terrorism.

16 (2) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Judicial Panel
17 on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the 18 district court under paragraph (1) based on the con-
19 venience of the parties and the just and efficient
20 conduct of the proceedings.

21 (3) JURISDICTION.—The district court assigned
22 by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation
23 shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all
24 actions under paragraph (1). For purposes of per-25 sonal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the 26

Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(4) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a Federal district court other than the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1) shall be transferred to the Federal district court so assigned.

(5) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a State court shall be removable to the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1).

(d) APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS.—Any settlement between the parties of a civil action described in this section for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism shall be subject to prior approval by the Secretary after consultation with the Attorney General.

(e) LIMITATION ON DAMAGES.—Punitive or exemplary damages shall not be available in any civil action subject to this section.

(f) CLAIMS AGAINST TERRORISTS.—Nothing in this section shall in any way limit the ability of any plaintiff to seek any form of recovery from any person, government or other entity that was a participant in, or aider and abettor of, any act of terrorism.

~~(g) OFFSET—In determining the amount of money damages available under this section, the court shall offset any compensation or benefits received or entitled to be received by the plaintiff or plaintiffs from any collateral source, including the United States or any Federal agency thereof, in response to or as a result of the act of terrorism.~~

(h) EFFECTIVE PERIOD.—This section shall apply only to actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from acts of terrorism that occur during the effective period of the Program, including, if applicable, any extension period under section 6.

SEC.10. REPEAL OF THE ACT.

This Act shall be repealed at the close of business on the termination date of the Program under section 6(a), but the provisions of this section shall not be construed as preventing the Secretary from taking, or causing to be taken, such actions under sections 4(c)(4), (5), sections 5(a)(1), (c), (e), section 6(d), and section 9(d) of this Act and applicable regulations promulgated thereunder. Further, the provisions of this section shall not be construed as preventing the availability of funding under section 4(d) during any period in which the Secretary's authority under section 6(d) is in effect.

1 tacks, while maintaining the stability of the econ-
2 omy;

3 (4) widespread financial market uncertainties
4 have arisen following the terrorist attacks of Sep-
5 tember 11, 2001, including the absence of informa-
6 tion from which financial institutions can make sta-
7 tistically valid estimates of the probability and cost
8 of future terrorist events, and therefore the size,
9 funding, and allocation of the risk of loss caused by 10 such acts of terrorism;

11 (5) a decision by property and casualty insurers
12 to deal with such uncertainties, either by termi-
13 nating property and casualty coverage for losses
14 arising from terrorist events, or by radically esca-
15 lating premium coverage to compensate for risks of 16 loss that are not readily predictable, could seriously
17 hamper ongoing and planned construction, property
18 acquisition, and other business projects, generate a 19 dramatic increase in rents, and otherwise suppress 20 economic activity; and

21 (6) the United States Government should pro-
22 vide temporary financial compensation to insured par-
23 ties, contributing to the stabilization of the United 24 States economy in a time of national crisis, while the 25 financial services industry develops the systems,
26

1 mechanisms, products, and programs necessary to
2 create a viable financial services market for private
3 terrorism risk insurance.

4 (b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to estab-
5 lish a temporary Federal program that provides for a
6 transparent system of shared public and private com-
7 pensation for insured losses resulting from acts of ter-
8 rorism in order to—

9 (1) protect consumers by addressing market
10 disruptions and ensure the continued widespread 11 availability and affordability of property and cas-
12 ualty insurance for terrorism risk; and

13 (2) allow for a transitional period for the pri-
14 vate markets to stabilize, resume pricing of such in-
15 surance, and build capacity to absorb any future
16 losses, while preserving State insurance regulation
17 and consumer protections.

18 SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

19 In this Act, the following definitions shall apply:

20 (1) ACT OF TERRORISM.—

21 (A) CERTIFICATION.—The term “act of 22 terrorism” means any act that is certified by 23 the Secretary, in concurrence with the Sec-
24 retary of State, and the Attorney General of the 25 United States—
26

1 (i) to be a violent act or an act that
2 is dangerous to—

3 (I) human life;

4 (II) property; or

5 (III) infrastructure;

6 (ii) to have resulted in damage within
7 the United States, or outside of the United
8 States in the case of an air carrier de-
9 scribed in paragraph (3)(A)(ii); and

10 (iii) to have been committed by an in-11 dividual or individuals acting on behalf of 12 any foreign person or foreign interest, as 13 part of an effort to coerce the civilian pop-
14 ulation of the United States or to influence
15 the policy or affect the conduct of the 16 United States Government by coercion.

17 (B) LIMITATION.—No act or event shall be 18 certified by the Secretary as an act of terrorism
19 if—

20 (i) the act or event is committed in 21 the course of a war declared by the Con-
22 gress; or

23 (ii) losses resulting from the act or 24 event, in the aggregate, do not exceed 25 $5,000,000.
26

1 (C) DETERMINATIONS FINAL.—Any certifi-
2 cation of, or determination not to certify, an act
3 or event as an act of terrorism under this para-
4 graph shall be final, and shall not be subject to 5 judicial review.

6 (2) BUSINESS INTERRUPTION COVERAGE.—The 7 term “business interruption coverage”—

8 (A) means coverage of losses for temporary 9 relocation expenses and ongoing expenses, in-
10 cluding ordinary wages, where—

11 (i) there is physical damage to the 12 business premises of such magnitude that 13 the business cannot open for business;

14 (ii) there is physical damage to other
15 property that totally prevents customers or 16 employees from gaining access to the busi-
17 ness premises; or

18 (iii) the Federal, State, or local gov-
19 ernment shuts down an area due to phys-
20 ical or environmental damage, thereby pre-
21 venting customers or employees from gain-
22 ing access to the business premises; and

23 (B) does not include lost profits, other 24 than in the case of a small business concern (as 25 defined in section 3 of the Small Business Act
26

1 (15 U.S.C. 632) and applicable regulations
2 hereunder) in any case described in clause (i),
3 (ii), or (iii) of subparagraph (A).

4 (3) INSURED LOSS.—The term “insured loss”—

5 (A) means any loss resulting from an act
6 of terrorism that is covered by any type of com-
7 mercial or personal property and casualty insur-
8 ance policy or endorsement, including business
9 interruption coverage, issued by a participating
10 insurance company if such loss—

11 (i) occurs within the 12 United States; or

13 (ii) occurs to an air carrier (as defined in 14 section 40102 of title 49, United States
15 Code), regardless of where the loss occurs;
16 and

17 (B) does not include any loss covered by any type
18 of life or health insurance policy.

19 (4) PARTICIPATING INSURANCE COMPANY.—

20 The term “participating insurance company” means 21 any insurance company, including any subsidiary or 22 affiliate thereof—

23 (A) that—
24

1 (i) is licensed or admitted to engage
2 in the business of providing primary insur-
3 ance in any State; or

4 (ii) is not so licensed or admitted, if
5 it is an eligible surplus line carrier listed
6 on the Quarterly Listing of Alien Insurers
7 of the National Association of Insurance
8 Commissioners, or any successor thereto;

9 (B) that receives premiums for any type of commercial property
10 and casualty insurance coverage or that, within 14 days from 11 the date of enactment of this Act, submits written notification
12 to the Secretary of the company's intent to participate in the 13 Program with regard to personal lines of property and casualty
14 insurance.~~that offers in all of its property and~~ 15 ~~easualty insurance policies, coverage for insured~~
16 ~~losses;~~

17 (C) that offers property and casualty in-
18 surance coverage for insured losses that does
19 not differ materially from the terms, amounts,
20 and other coverage limitations applicable to 21 losses arising from events other than acts of 22 terrorism; and

23 (D) that meets any other criteria that the 24 Secretary may reasonably prescribe.

25 (5) PERSON.—The term “person” means any 26 individual, business or nonprofit entity (including those organized in the 27 form of a partnership, limited liability company, corporation,
28 or association), trust or estate, or a State or political 29 subdivision of a State or other governmental unit.
30

1 (6) PROGRAM.—The term “Program” means
2 the Terrorism Insured Loss Shared Compensation
3 Program established by this Act.

4 (7) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means
5 the Secretary of the Treasury.

6 (8) STATE.—The term “State” means any
7 State of the United States, the District of Columbia,
8 the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Common-
9 wealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, American
10 Samoa, Guam, and each of the United States Virgin
11 Islands.

12 (9) UNITED STATES.—The term “United
13 States” means all States of the United States.

14 SEC. 4. TERRORISM INSURED LOSS SHARED COMPENSA-
15 TION PROGRAM.

16 (a) ESTABLISHMENT OF PROGRAM.—

17 (1) IN GENERAL.—There is established in the 18 Department of the Treasury the Terrorism Insured
19 Loss Shared Compensation Program.

20 (2) AUTHORITY OF THE SECRETARY.—Notwith-
21 standing any other provision of State or Federal 22 law, the Secretary shall administer the Program,
23 and shall pay the Federal share of compensation for 24 insured losses in accordance with subsection (c).

Senate Panel Oks 5 Bush Nominees; Leahy Seeks Action on Judicial Picks

By Audrey Hudson
The Washington Times
Thursday, December 6, 2001

A Senate panel yesterday approved five of President Bush's judicial nominees and eased bitter feuding between Democrats and Republicans over the backlogged process.

Mr. Bush has submitted 64 district and circuit court nominees to the Senate for confirmation - a record number of first-year nominations over the past three administrations.

However, the Democrat-controlled Senate has confirmed only 18 judges - a confirmation rate of 28 percent - angering Republicans who have used myriad procedural tactics to push confirmations.

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, Judiciary Committee chairman, has asked Senate leaders to expedite confirmation of the five approved yesterday, plus nine nominees approved last week. That would bring the confirmation rate to 50 percent - 7 percent shy of former President Bill Clinton's nominees confirmed during his first year in office. "During these last six difficult months, the committee has worked hard to report 27 judicial nominations favorably to the Senate, including six to the Courts of Appeals," said Mr. Leahy, Vermont Democrat.

Approved and sent to the floor for final consideration yesterday were: Callie V. Granade to be U.S. District Court judge for the Southern District of Alabama; Marcia S. Krieger to be U.S. District Court judge for the District of Colorado; James C. Mahan to be U.S. District Court judge for the District of Nevada; Philip R. Martinez to be U.S. District Court judge for the Western District of Texas; and C. Ashley Royal to be U.S. District Court judge for the Middle District of Georgia.

"I congratulate all of you on being selected by President Bush to serve in high office. After reviewing your distinguished records, I have no doubt that you will do great service for the citizens of this country upon confirmation," said Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, Utah Republican and ranking Judiciary Committee member.

The 14 nominees awaiting final Senate action could, however, be held hostage to another feud erupting over legislation funding programs for homeless veterans.

A Republican Senator has placed an anonymous hold on the bill's final passage, and its chief sponsor said he may block judiciary nominations dear to Republicans to shake the hold.

"I will stop nominees if I have to," said Sen. Paul Wellstone, Minnesota Democrat. "I feel strongly about it and am prepared to fight really hard on this."

Meanwhile, Sen. Christopher S. Bond, Missouri Republican, said yesterday there is "no good reason" for Senate Democratic leaders to block a confirmation vote on Eugene Scalia, President Bush's nominee to become solicitor of the Labor Department.

Mr. Bond said Mr. Scalia is "languishing in limbo" because he is the son of Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia, who ruled with the majority last year in favor of Mr. Bush in the contested Florida presidential election.

"The only basis on which Mr. Scalia is being blocked is because Democrats do not agree with the results of last year's election," Mr. Bond said.

"They don't like the fact that George Bush emerged as the new president and they are doing everything in their power to frustrate and impede his administration from pursuing its agenda," Mr. Bond said.

Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle, South Dakota Democrat, said Tuesday there will be no vote on Mr. Scalia's nomination.

A Bush administration official said Mr. Daschle's announcement came on the one-year anniversary of the Supreme Court's decision that vacated a Florida court's decision to extend the deadline for vote counting.

"It was payback day," the official said.

Mr. Daschle said he will not be influenced by Republicans' strategy of placing "holds" on nominations to the National Labor Relations Board, which Democrats and their union supporters view as an important agency.

"I think further holds just complicate circumstances," Mr. Daschle said. "Reciprocal holds generate more reciprocal holds, and ultimately nobody moves. And that isn't healthy."

Vice President Cheney on Thursday joined a long list of Republicans urging the Senate to confirm more of President Bush's judicial nominations before the Senate leaves for the year.

"President Bush has fulfilled his constitutional responsibility to the federal judiciary," Cheney said in a letter to Senate Judiciary Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt. "He has submitted more judicial nominations in his first year than any other recent president. ... I urge your committee to act so the Senate, in the remainder of this session and next year, can likewise fulfill its constitutional responsibility and fill the more than 100 vacancies on the federal court."

Republicans have been complaining since June that the Democrat-controlled Senate has not confirmed enough of Bush's nominations. The Senate has confirmed 18 of Bush's 44 nominations.

Leahy defends his committee's work.

"We have matched or exceeded the number of confirmations of judges during the first year of the first Bush Administration, the first year of the Clinton Administration and the last year of the first Clinton term," he said Wednesday. "We are holding more hearings on more judicial nominees faster and reporting and confirming more than during the last 6 1/2 years."

Senate Confirms Three More Judges as Republicans Increase Pressure to get More Confirmations Before End of Year

By Jesse Holland
The Associated Press
Thursday, December 6, 2001

The Senate on Thursday confirmed three of President Bush's judicial nominees, elevating New Mexico appellate judge Harris L. Hartz to the Denver-based 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Hartz was confirmed 99-0. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, did not vote. The 10th Circuit Court handles appeals from Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Also approved by voice vote were new U.S. District Judges Danny Reeves of Kentucky and Joe Heaton of Oklahoma.

Senate Judiciary Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said there are six more judges awaiting Senate confirmation, and when those six are finished, the number of vacant judicial positions will drop below 100 for the first time since Democrats took over the Senate.

"I am proud of the work the committee has done on nominations, and I am proud that by the end of the day, we will have confirmed 21 judges," Leahy said. "I hope that by the end of this session, that total will rise to about 30."

Republicans have been pushing for more judicial confirmations by the Democrat-controlled Senate. Senate Republican Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., called the Senate a "a black hole of inactivity" and Vice President Cheney wrote a letter asking for speedier confirmations earlier this week.

"The failure to confirm qualified individuals to serve in the federal government and the federal judiciary hurts the American people," White House spokesman Ari Fleischer said. "It's time for the Senate to act on the president's nominees and ensure that the important work of American government can be done and that justice can be carried out."

Albuquerque Attorney Confirmed as Circuit Judge

The Associated Press

Thursday, December 6, 2001

The U.S. Senate on Thursday confirmed an Albuquerque attorney as a judge on the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Harris Hartz now has to be sworn in before taking his seat on the Denver-based court. The 10th Circuit carries legal jurisdiction over New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Utah and Wyoming.

Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., said the unanimous endorsement shows the strong bipartisan support for Hartz.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said he was convinced of Harris' qualifications.

"His presence on the 10th Circuit will certainly elevate that court, and I look forward to what I'm sure will be a continuation of his distinguished career on the bench," Domenici said.

Hartz was a New Mexico Court of Appeals judge from 1989 to 1999. He left the court to join the Albuquerque law firm Stier, Anderson and Malone.

Hartz is also a former Assistant U.S. Attorney for the District of New Mexico.

The Senate has not yet scheduled a confirmation vote on the nomination of William Johnson of Roswell as a U.S. District Court judge in New Mexico.

Cheney Jumps In

By Byron York

National Review

Wednesday, December 5, 2001

At a time of increasing tension between the Justice Department and Senate Judiciary Committee chairman Patrick Leahy over the administration's antiterrorist policies, the White House has entered into battle on another front with a letter to the chairman from Vice President Dick Cheney blasting the committee's record on confirming judges.

"As we near the end of the first session of the 107th Congress," Cheney writes in the letter dated December 4, "vacancies on the federal bench are occurring at a faster pace than the confirmations of new judges, and barely one in four of President Bush's nominees has received a hearing and a vote."

"In recent past administrations," Cheney continues, "well over 50 percent of judicial nominees have been confirmed in a new president's first year. In 1989, President George H.W. Bush had 62 percent of his nominees confirmed by the end of his first year. In 1993, President Clinton had 57 percent confirmed. To date, President Bush has only had 28 percent of his nominees confirmed."

Cheney tells Leahy that "the current record with respect to circuit court appointments is even worse." While Bush has nominated 28 candidates to federal appeals courts, Cheney says, just five have been confirmed. "Indeed, 75 percent of the president's circuit nominees are still awaiting a hearing before your committee. This poor record of confirmations is having a negative impact on a number of these vital courts." Cheney mentions two nominees to the District of Columbia circuit by name, Miguel Estrada and John Roberts, calling them "outstanding, widely praised nominations" who have not received a hearing before Leahy's committee.

"President Bush has fulfilled his constitutional responsibility to the federal judiciary," Cheney writes. "He announced his first nominees more than six months ago; eight of them have yet to receive a hearing." Cheney concludes, "I urge your committee to act so the Senate, in the remainder of this session and next year, can likewise fulfill its constitutional responsibility and fill the more than one hundred vacancies on the federal courts. It is time for the Senate to act."

The letter is the product of strategy sessions between Senate aides and the lawyers in the White House counsel's office, both of them frustrated by the slow pace of judicial confirmations. Although the letter calls for immediate action, in reality the administration has no hope for anything happening before January at the earliest. "It's meant to lay down a marker for next year," says one Hill aide. "Next year, you'll see a concerted effort from the Senate and the White House."

As happy as they are to receive high-profile help from the White House, some in the GOP worry that the timing of Cheney's letter is not particularly good. First, Leahy actually held a confirmation hearing on Wednesday, considering the nominations of five candidates for the federal district courts. Second, Leahy is engaged in a ongoing battle with the Justice Department and Attorney General John Ashcroft over military tribunals, detention of terrorist suspects and witnesses, waivers of attorney-client privilege, and other issues in the war on terrorism. Cheney's letter arrived a day before Ashcroft's much-anticipated appearance before the Judiciary Committee, and some in the GOP worry that it might divert attention from the anti-terrorism issue.

Still, Republicans hope the letter will convince Leahy that the White House and Senate GOP mean business. "As soon as we get back [from the year-end holidays]," says the Republican aide, "they better start moving some people or nothing will happen in the Senate. Or that's the plan."

EXCERPT

One last item, and then I'll be happy to take questions.

The president would like to commend the Senate for last night's confirmation of John Walters as the director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy. But the president would also like to remind the Senate of the important work that remains to be done this year. There are 153 individuals awaiting confirmation by the Senate. Some are like Eugene Scalia, nominated to be secretary -- solicitor of the Department of Labor, who have passed out of committee but simply await a vote on the floor of the Senate. Others, like Otto Reich, the president's nominee to be assistant secretary of State for the Western Hemisphere, has not even been given a fair committee hearing, while other nominations have languished in the Senate for months.

The rate of confirmation of federal judges, particularly circuit court judges, in the Senate is very, very troubling. Federal judicial seats are being vacated at a rate faster than the Senate is confirming new people to these positions, and despite a record number of nominees by President Bush, there are fewer federal judges today than at the beginning of the administration, because of the Senate's failure to act. President Bush has nominated 60 judges to the federal judiciary, and only 18, or 27 percent, have been confirmed. The Senate confirmed 57 percent of President Clinton's judicial nominations in his first year; 62 percent of President Bush's in his first year; and 91 percent of President Reagan's judicial nominations.

Vice President Cheney, earlier this week, sent a letter to Senator Leahy citing the slow pace of confirmations, and urged the Senate Judiciary Committee and the Senate to take action so that justice can be done.

The failure to confirm qualified individuals to serve in the federal government and the federal judiciary hurts the American people.

We are thinking that this meeting might be pretty long, now that we have a draft to work from. It might last a couple of hours. Bill Jordan and Robert McCallum from the Civil Division had a meeting at 6:00 w/ the Judge, Tim, Rachel, etc., so they were going to take the packet over there. I assume that they left them w/ a secretary or someone to give to you. I don't think that they are back yet, so I don't know who they gave it to.

We believe the property/casualty insurance industry (rated Market Outperform) will survive just fine if Congress fails to enact a federal terrorism reinsurance bill, but the U.S. economy will not. Increased understanding of this should yet produce legislation in December.

Federal Terrorism Reinsurance And Property/Casualty Insurers: Bailout Backlash Won't Threaten The Cycle

Charles A. Gabriel, Jr.,
Alice Cornish, CPCU

The entire insurance industry should not have to collapse before we decide to get to work and pass this legislation . . . This bill is a must-do before the end of the session.

—Senator Mike Enzi (R., Wyo.), in a November 30, 2001, written statement discussing competing temporary federal reinsurance programs that he and others have proposed.

Sometimes a quote from a politician tells all, in ways that politicians hardly intend. But impassioned rhetoric from Senator Mike Enzi aside, we believe that:

- The property/casualty insurance industry—which our Senior Insurance Analyst Alice Cornish rates Market Outperform—will survive just fine if Congress fails to enact proposed federal terrorism reinsurance legislation.
- Environments in which both political parties view a bill as “must pass” legislation often lead to hard-line miscalculations by lawmakers. And, at the end of a congressional session, these in fact can derail such legislation.

It Passed In The House, But The Insurance Bill Still Faces Tough Sledding... A measure that would create a temporary federal reinsurance program (H.R. 3210), co-sponsored by House Financial Services Committee Chairman Mike Oxley (R., Ohio) and Representative Richard Baker (R., La.), was passed in the House the week of November 26. The bill would provide the property/casualty insurance industry with a one- to three-year backstop as it writes and renews policies for the new year. The issue is soon expected to be taken up in the Senate, where action has been stymied for almost a month, and competing proposals are proliferating.

Major uncertainties are perceived to be brewing, among other reasons because the House legislation: 1) contains a provision requiring insurers to pay the federal government back for the first $20 billion in losses related to any terrorist event (beyond a $1 billion industry deductible) with the help of a federally administered loan program; and 2) would cap corporate legal liability (i.e., for punitive damages and attorneys' fees) from terrorist acts beyond companies' control—thus running afoul of the trial lawyers, who have nearly eclipsed organized labor as the principal benefactors of the Democratic party.

The Bush administration has signaled that it might veto any bill that passes without the liability relief provisions. Meanwhile, the notion of including such provisions in legislation that began to take shape in the Senate a month ago (negotiated by Senators Chris Dodd [D., Conn.], Phil Gramm [R., Tex.], and Banking Committee Chairman Paul Sarbanes [D., MD], along with Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill and Assistant Treasury Secretary Sheila Bair) led to the bill's being held up, as Commerce Committee Chairman Fritz Hollings (D., SC)—noted longtime friend of the trial lawyers—cited the relief provisions in trying to claim joint jurisdiction.

WASHINGTON

...Which Has Fostered (Misplaced, In Our View) Second Thoughts About Insurers And The Property/Casualty Cycle. We have three major points to make concerning the bill's prospects for enactment and what they may mean for the stocks of property/casualty insurers.

A 'Nothing Done' Result In Congress Wouldn't Be The End Of The World For Insurers...

While we still expect that Congress will pass a temporary federal reinsurance measure—and that it will be perceived as a constructive event for the property and casualty industry, we believe that failure to pass such a measure would not hurt insurers, but rather the U.S. economy itself.

Treasury Assistant Secretary Sheila Bair echoed this theme in a New York speech to thrift industry representatives on December 3, 2001:

Without insurance coverage for terrorism risk, the credit positions of all types of businesses will deteriorate in the market. . . . Borrowing costs will be driven up and new construction will be difficult to finance. Certain sectors, such as energy and transportation, may be particularly adversely affected, which in turn would drive up prices and reduce production across-the-board.

Insurers will still write policies—they'll just exclude terrorism, and all the huffing and puffing that might come from Washington as constituents feel the heat won't deflect the reality of who's really to blame.

We think it's important that investors keep this in mind, as one or two competing equity research firms have cited diminishing odds that the bill will be enacted (or concerns about mixed-bag industry implications if a bill is enacted) as a reason for curbing enthusiasm about property/casualty stocks. We wouldn't buy these early forecasts: It is conceivable, in our view, that legislation won't be enacted, that a "bad bill" might pass, or that the industry might ultimately face political/regulatory head winds (impeding the force behind the ongoing pricing power "cycle") as a consequence. But we view a troubling mixture of these results as highly improbable.

...And, In Fact, Might Be Better For The Industry Than The Alternative... To be sure, House passage of the payback and loan provisions has now raised the question of whether the industry will get what it needs from Washington, even if it does see legislation passed.

As Alice Cornish has pointed out, what insurers need (since they don't have much to go on in assessing newly heightened risk since September 11) is federal help in being enabled to offer insurance coverage without specific exclusions for terrorism, and, more importantly, a measure of certainty about how risks encountered as a result of future potential terrorist acts might affect them.

We are confident that the House-passed loan provisions will be dropped out of the final measure (and, in fact, co-author and Capital Markets and Insurance Subcommittee Chairman Baker hinted at his willingness to be flexible on the matter late last week).

...At Least Removing The Industry's 'Bailout' Onus. Nevertheless, passage of any bill that is cast in the media or on Capitol Hill as a "bailout" could generate future headaches for the industry—most notably, in our opinion, in the form of headline risk from pro-business lawmakers and regulators quick to point fingers in response to price increases or redoubled pressure from those who would try to force insurers to provide the same sort of costly consumer protection, disclosure and credit availability, and lending obligations that banks have been forced to accept as a quid pro quo for deposit insurance coverage.

For these reasons, we can come closer to matching forecasts by our competition of 50-50 odds when the question is framed in this way: Will Congress pass constructive legislation? Even so, our guess is still 60-40 that it will.

We are less than certain about how the liability-relief story will play out, although our gut tells us that the provisions will either have to be dropped out or seriously watered down.

The Republicans' perception that this is "must pass" legislation and that most Americans would agree that suing companies for terrorist acts in the wake of September 11 would be "immoral" (as AIG Chairman Hank Greenberg wrote in a November 26, 2001, Wall Street Journal editorial) has emboldened the GOP to threaten to take the Dems to the wall on the issue. Meanwhile, the Dems' well-documented and seemingly impenetrable "gag reflex" when it comes to swallowing anything harmful to the trial lawyers seems to be logical icing on the bears' cake.

As Congress Learns The Bill's True Significance, Partisanship Should Subside... Nevertheless, we believe that all of this raises an important and precipitous question: Since the industry is in a position to say that no bill is better than a bad bill, and a "bad bill" (i.e., with payback provisions and/or high deductibles) is definitely a possibility, why shouldn't insurers—at some point—pull back from the game-playing in Congress, shift the onus to elected officials (in our view, where it belongs), and put to rest the notion of a "bailout" in the process?

...And Last-Minute Action Should Be Facilitated. In subtle ways, that may be happening already (witness Shelia Bair's characterization of the insurance problem and the need for congressional action as anything but a bailout).^{*} But politicians will be politicians, and somebody's got to be held up to the light as being at risk in order for members to dramatize their arguments. Citing insurers—who are widely perceived on Capitol Hill to be in line to benefit from the legislation—is a whole lot simpler than explaining what might happen in a litigious, now terrorist-conscious underinsured society.

Longer term, the economic slowdown and short-circuiting of major, insurable projects could have obvious effects on the property/casualty industry. But in the interim, we believe the pro-cyclical impact that Washington inaction on this issue would have on the weak economy (and the further reduced earnings prospects for other industries that might result) could only increase the near-term relative luster of property/casualty insurance companies.

Thus, one optimistic rationalization for the proliferation of competing proposals materializing late in the process in the Senate (i.e., from Hollings, Gramm, and McCain), and the recent silence of expected reinsurance legislation master-craftsmen Dodd and Sarbanes, is this: The time is nearing for the White House to lead senior Hill lawmakers in effecting a temporary insurance fix for the sake of the economy; and as it comes, we believe that ambitious members increasingly will want to be perceived as being influential in the process—not as parties to the proposed legislation's death.

While insurers are at risk of suffering negative investment sentiment if a deal fails to materialize, or (if a bill passes) of being billed as "bailees" and taking on consumer-related "baggage" in future battles on Capitol Hill, we remain sanguine. Among other reasons for optimism, we would point to the high regard in which the industry's CEOs (led by AIG's Greenberg, the Hartford's Ramani Ayer, Chubb's Dean O'Hare, and General Re's Ron Ferguson) are held in Washington. Our advice to investors is to view any pullback in property/casualty insurance stocks (and away from the industry's "cycle" story) as a buying opportunity.

^{*} Ms. Bair sought to characterize terrorism reinsurance legislation as being pro-business—keeping insurance costs down and ensuring that terrorism coverage remains available.

December 5, 2001

We believe the property/casualty insurance industry (rated Market Outperform) will survive just fine if Congress fails to enact a federal terrorism reinsurance bill, but the U.S. economy will not. Increased understanding of this should yet produce legislation in December.

Federal Terrorism Reinsurance And Property/Casualty Insurers: Bailout Backlash Won't Threaten The Cycle

Charles A. Gabriel, Jr.,
Alice Cornish, CPCU

The entire insurance industry should not have to collapse before we decide to get to work and pass this legislation . . . This bill is a must-do before the end of the session.

—Senator Mike Enzi (R., Wyo.), in a November 30, 2001, written statement discussing competing temporary federal reinsurance programs that he and others have proposed.

Sometimes a quote from a politician tells all, in ways that politicians hardly intend. But impassioned rhetoric from Senator Mike Enzi aside, we believe that:

- The property/casualty insurance industry—which our Senior Insurance Analyst Alice Cornish rates Market Outperform—will survive just fine if Congress fails to enact proposed federal terrorism reinsurance legislation.
- Environments in which both political parties view a bill as “must pass” legislation often lead to hard-line miscalculations by lawmakers. And, at the end of a congressional session, these in fact can derail such legislation.

It Passed In The House, But The Insurance Bill Still Faces Tough Sledding... A measure that would create a temporary federal reinsurance program (H.R. 3210), co-sponsored by House Financial Services Committee Chairman Mike Oxley (R., Ohio) and Representative Richard Baker (R., La.), was passed in the House the week of November 26. The bill would provide the property/casualty insurance industry with a one- to three-year backstop as it writes and renews policies for the new year. The issue is soon expected to be taken up in the Senate, where action has been stymied for almost a month, and competing proposals are proliferating.

Major uncertainties are perceived to be brewing, among other reasons because the House legislation: 1) contains a provision requiring insurers to pay the federal government back for the first $20 billion in losses related to any terrorist event (beyond a $1 billion industry deductible) with the help of a federally administered loan program; and 2) would cap corporate legal liability (i.e., for punitive damages and attorneys' fees) from terrorist acts beyond companies' control—thus running afoul of the trial lawyers, who have nearly eclipsed organized labor as the principal benefactors of the Democratic party.

The Bush administration has signaled that it might veto any bill that passes without the liability relief provisions. Meanwhile, the notion of including such provisions in legislation that began to take shape in the Senate a month ago (negotiated by Senators Chris Dodd [D., Conn.], Phil Gramm [R., Tex.], and Banking Committee Chairman Paul Sarbanes [D., MD], along with Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill and Assistant Treasury Secretary Sheila Bair) led to the bill's being held up, as Commerce Committee Chairman Fritz Hollings (D., SC)—noted longtime friend of the trial lawyers—cited the relief provisions in trying to claim joint jurisdiction.

WASHINGTON

...Which Has Fostered (Misplaced, In Our View) Second Thoughts About Insurers And The Property/Casualty Cycle. We have three major points to make concerning the bill's prospects for enactment and what they may mean for the stocks of property/casualty insurers.

A 'Nothing Done' Result In Congress Wouldn't Be The End Of The World For Insurers...

While we still expect that Congress will pass a temporary federal reinsurance measure—and that it will be perceived as a constructive event for the property and casualty industry, we believe that failure to pass such a measure would not hurt insurers, but rather the U.S. economy itself.

Treasury Assistant Secretary Sheila Bair echoed this theme in a New York speech to thrift industry representatives on December 3, 2001:

Without insurance coverage for terrorism risk, the credit positions of all types of businesses will deteriorate in the market. . . . Borrowing costs will be driven up and new construction will be difficult to finance. Certain sectors, such as energy and transportation, may be particularly adversely affected, which in turn would drive up prices and reduce production across-the-board.

Insurers will still write policies—they'll just exclude terrorism, and all the huffing and puffing that might come from Washington as constituents feel the heat won't deflect the reality of who's really to blame.

We think it's important that investors keep this in mind, as one or two competing equity research firms have cited diminishing odds that the bill will be enacted (or concerns about mixed-bag industry implications if a bill is enacted) as a reason for curbing enthusiasm about property/casualty stocks. We wouldn't buy these early forecasts: It is conceivable, in our view, that legislation won't be enacted, that a "bad bill" might pass, or that the industry might ultimately face political/regulatory head winds (impeding the force behind the ongoing pricing power "cycle") as a consequence. But we view a troubling mixture of these results as highly improbable.

...And, In Fact, Might Be Better For The Industry Than The Alternative... To be sure, House passage of the payback and loan provisions has now raised the question of whether the industry will get what it needs from Washington, even if it does see legislation passed.

As Alice Cornish has pointed out, what insurers need (since they don't have much to go on in assessing newly heightened risk since September 11) is federal help in being enabled to offer insurance coverage without specific exclusions for terrorism, and, more importantly, a measure of certainty about how risks encountered as a result of future potential terrorist acts might affect them.

We are confident that the House-passed loan provisions will be dropped out of the final measure (and, in fact, co-author and Capital Markets and Insurance Subcommittee Chairman Baker hinted at his willingness to be flexible on the matter late last week).

...At Least Removing The Industry's 'Bailout' Onus. Nevertheless, passage of any bill that is cast in the media or on Capitol Hill as a "bailout" could generate future headaches for the industry—most notably, in our opinion, in the form of headline risk from pro-business lawmakers and regulators quick to point fingers in response to price increases or redoubled pressure from those who would try to force insurers to provide the same sort of costly consumer protection, disclosure and credit availability, and lending obligations that banks have been forced to accept as a quid pro quo for deposit insurance coverage.

For these reasons, we can come closer to matching forecasts by our competition of 50-50 odds when the question is framed in this way: Will Congress pass constructive legislation? Even so, our guess is still 60-40 that it will.

We are less than certain about how the liability-relief story will play out, although our gut tells us that the provisions will either have to be dropped out or seriously watered down.

The Republicans' perception that this is "must pass" legislation and that most Americans would agree that suing companies for terrorist acts in the wake of September 11 would be "immoral" (as AIG Chairman Hank Greenberg wrote in a November 26, 2001, Wall Street Journal editorial) has emboldened the GOP to threaten to take the Dems to the wall on the issue. Meanwhile, the Dems' well-documented and seemingly impenetrable "gag reflex" when it comes to swallowing anything harmful to the trial lawyers seems to be logical icing on the bears' cake.

As Congress Learns The Bill's True Significance, Partisanship Should Subside... Nevertheless, we believe that all of this raises an important and precipitous question: Since the industry is in a position to say that no bill is better than a bad bill, and a "bad bill" (i.e., with payback provisions and/or high deductibles) is definitely a possibility, why shouldn't insurers—at some point—pull back from the game-playing in Congress, shift the onus to elected officials (in our view, where it belongs), and put to rest the notion of a "bailout" in the process?

...And Last-Minute Action Should Be Facilitated. Meeting does (did) begin at 9:30. I talked to one of the Covington

We believe the property/casualty insurance industry (rated Market Outperform) will survive just fine if Congress fails to enact a federal terrorism reinsurance bill, but the U.S. economy will not. Increased understanding of this should yet produce legislation in December.

Federal Terrorism Reinsurance And Property/Casualty Insurers: Bailout Backlash Won't Threaten The Cycle

Charles A. Gabriel, Jr.,
Alice Cornish, CPCU

The entire insurance industry should not have to collapse before we decide to get to work and pass this legislation . . . This bill is a must-do before the end of the session.

—Senator Mike Enzi (R., Wyo.), in a November 30, 2001, written statement discussing competing temporary federal reinsurance programs that he and others have proposed.

Sometimes a quote from a politician tells all, in ways that politicians hardly intend. But impassioned rhetoric from Senator Mike Enzi aside, we believe that:

- The property/casualty insurance industry—which our Senior Insurance Analyst Alice Cornish rates Market Outperform—will survive just fine if Congress fails to enact proposed federal terrorism reinsurance legislation.
- Environments in which both political parties view a bill as “must pass” legislation often lead to hard-line miscalculations by lawmakers. And, at the end of a congressional session, these in fact can derail such legislation.

It Passed In The House, But The Insurance Bill Still Faces Tough Sledding... A measure that would create a temporary federal reinsurance program (H.R. 3210), co-sponsored by House Financial Services Committee Chairman Mike Oxley (R., Ohio) and Representative Richard Baker (R., La.), was passed in the House the week of November 26. The bill would provide the property/casualty insurance industry with a one- to three-year backstop as it writes and renews policies for the new year. The issue is soon expected to be taken up in the Senate, where action has been stymied for almost a month, and competing proposals are proliferating.

Major uncertainties are perceived to be brewing, among other reasons because the House legislation: 1) contains a provision requiring insurers to pay the federal government back for the first $20 billion in losses related to any terrorist event (beyond a $1 billion industry deductible) with the help of a federally administered loan program; and 2) would cap corporate legal liability (i.e., for punitive damages and attorneys' fees) from terrorist acts beyond companies' control—thus running afoul of the trial lawyers, who have nearly eclipsed organized labor as the principal benefactors of the Democratic party.

The Bush administration has signaled that it might veto any bill that passes without the liability relief provisions. Meanwhile, the notion of including such provisions in legislation that began to take shape in the Senate a month ago (negotiated by Senators Chris Dodd [D., Conn.], Phil Gramm [R., Tex.], and Banking Committee Chairman Paul Sarbanes [D., MD], along with Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill and Assistant Treasury Secretary Sheila Bair) led to the bill's being held up, as Commerce Committee Chairman Fritz Hollings (D., SC)—noted longtime friend of the trial lawyers—cited the relief provisions in trying to claim joint jurisdiction.

WASHINGTON

...Which Has Fostered (Misplaced, In Our View) Second Thoughts About Insurers And The Property/Casualty Cycle. We have three major points to make concerning the bill's prospects for enactment and what they may mean for the stocks of property/casualty insurers.

A 'Nothing Done' Result In Congress Wouldn't Be The End Of The World For Insurers...

While we still expect that Congress will pass a temporary federal reinsurance measure—and that it will be perceived as a constructive event for the property and casualty industry, we believe that failure to pass such a measure would not hurt insurers, but rather the U.S. economy itself.

Treasury Assistant Secretary Sheila Bair echoed this theme in a New York speech to thrift industry representatives on December 3, 2001:

Without insurance coverage for terrorism risk, the credit positions of all types of businesses will deteriorate in the market. . . . Borrowing costs will be driven up and new construction will be difficult to finance. Certain sectors, such as energy and transportation, may be particularly adversely affected, which in turn would drive up prices and reduce production across-the-board.

Insurers will still write policies—they'll just exclude terrorism, and all the huffing and puffing that might come from Washington as constituents feel the heat won't deflect the reality of who's really to blame.

We think it's important that investors keep this in mind, as one or two competing equity research firms have cited diminishing odds that the bill will be enacted (or concerns about mixed-bag industry implications if a bill is enacted) as a reason for curbing enthusiasm about property/casualty stocks. We wouldn't buy these early forecasts: It is conceivable, in our view, that legislation won't be enacted, that a "bad bill" might pass, or that the industry might ultimately face political/regulatory head winds (impeding the force behind the ongoing pricing power "cycle") as a consequence. But we view a troubling mixture of these results as highly improbable.

...And, In Fact, Might Be Better For The Industry Than The Alternative... To be sure, House passage of the payback and loan provisions has now raised the question of whether the industry will get what it needs from Washington, even if it does see legislation passed.

As Alice Cornish has pointed out, what insurers need (since they don't have much to go on in assessing newly heightened risk since September 11) is federal help in being enabled to offer insurance coverage without specific exclusions for terrorism, and, more importantly, a measure of certainty about how risks encountered as a result of future potential terrorist acts might affect them.

We are confident that the House-passed loan provisions will be dropped out of the final measure (and, in fact, co-author and Capital Markets and Insurance Subcommittee Chairman Baker hinted at his willingness to be flexible on the matter late last week).

...At Least Removing The Industry's 'Bailout' Onus. Nevertheless, passage of any bill that is cast in the media or on Capitol Hill as a "bailout" could generate future headaches for the industry—most notably, in our opinion, in the form of headline risk from pro-business lawmakers and regulators quick to point fingers in response to price increases or redoubled pressure from those who would try to force insurers to provide the same sort of costly consumer protection, disclosure and credit availability, and lending obligations that banks have been forced to accept as a quid pro quo for deposit insurance coverage.

For these reasons, we can come closer to matching forecasts by our competition of 50-50 odds when the question is framed in this way: Will Congress pass constructive legislation? Even so, our guess is still 60-40 that it will.

We are less than certain about how the liability-relief story will play out, although our gut tells us that the provisions will either have to be dropped out or seriously watered down.

The Republicans' perception that this is "must pass" legislation and that most Americans would agree that suing companies for terrorist acts in the wake of September 11 would be "immoral" (as AIG Chairman Hank Greenberg wrote in a November 26, 2001, Wall Street Journal editorial) has emboldened the GOP to threaten to take the Dems to the wall on the issue. Meanwhile, the Dems' well-documented and seemingly impenetrable "gag reflex" when it comes to swallowing anything harmful to the trial lawyers seems to be logical icing on the bears' cake.

As Congress Learns The Bill's True Significance, Partisanship Should Subside... Nevertheless, we believe that all of this raises an important and precipitous question: Since the industry is in a position to say that no bill is better than a bad bill, and a "bad bill" (i.e., with payback provisions and/or high deductibles) is definitely a possibility, why shouldn't insurers—at some point—pull back from the game-playing in Congress, shift the onus to elected officials (in our view, where it belongs), and put to rest the notion of a "bailout" in the process?

...And Last-Minute Action Should Be Facilitated. In subtle ways, that may be happening already (witness Shelia Bair's characterization of the insurance problem and the need for congressional action as anything but a bailout).^{*} But politicians will be politicians, and somebody's got to be held up to the light as being at risk in order for members to dramatize their arguments. Citing insurers—who are widely perceived on Capitol Hill to be in line to benefit from the legislation—is a whole lot simpler than explaining what might happen in a litigious, now terrorist-conscious underinsured society.

Longer term, the economic slowdown and short-circuiting of major, insurable projects could have obvious effects on the property/casualty industry. But in the interim, we believe the pro-cyclical impact that Washington inaction on this issue would have on the weak economy (and the further reduced earnings prospects for other industries that might result) could only increase the near-term relative luster of property/casualty insurance companies.

Thus, one optimistic rationalization for the proliferation of competing proposals materializing late in the process in the Senate (i.e., from Hollings, Gramm, and McCain), and the recent silence of expected reinsurance legislation master-craftsmen Dodd and Sarbanes, is this: The time is nearing for the White House to lead senior Hill lawmakers in effecting a temporary insurance fix for the sake of the economy; and as it comes, we believe that ambitious members increasingly will want to be perceived as being influential in the process—not as parties to the proposed legislation's death.

While insurers are at risk of suffering negative investment sentiment if a deal fails to materialize, or (if a bill passes) of being billed as "bailees" and taking on consumer-related "baggage" in future battles on Capitol Hill, we remain sanguine. Among other reasons for optimism, we would point to the high regard in which the industry's CEOs (led by AIG's Greenberg, the Hartford's Ramani Ayer, Chubb's Dean O'Hare, and General Re's Ron Ferguson) are held in Washington. Our advice to investors is to view any pullback in property/casualty insurance stocks (and away from the industry's "cycle" story) as a buying opportunity.

^{*} Ms. Bair sought to characterize terrorism reinsurance legislation as being pro-business—keeping insurance costs down and ensuring that terrorism coverage remains available.

Gateway wins White House
By John G. Spooner
Special to CNET News.com

Gateway has won another term in the White House.
The PC maker announced Tuesday that it has signed a deal to provide systems to the Office of Administration, whose duties include managing PC hardware for the White House.
The deal is a blanket purchase agreement--valued at $1.7 million--to place
Gateway PCs and other equipment throughout the White House, including the president's office.

Gateway PCs are already used inside the West Wing, along with hardware from other manufacturers. This time the company was able to win top spot in an open bidding process against Dell Computer, a source familiar with the bidding process said.

Although the contract dollar amount isn't large by industry standards, the deal is a big win for Gateway. The PC maker has struggled along with the rest of the industry, suffering with low sales and a volatile stock market.

"Our proposal was the best proposal," Shirley Menish, director of field sales for Gateway Federal, said. "That would mean two things: that it was a reasonable price...and that we had an excellent track record for past performance."

REV_00137510

Menish mentioned that Gateway's local presence in Country Stores may have helped close the deal. As anthrax scares have wreaked havoc with the mail systems in the nation's capital, Gateway plans to have shipments sent to local stores, where administration officials can arrange to have them picked up.

Dell, which focuses primarily on direct PC sales, apparently could not match this type of service in its bid, sources said.

Under the deal, Gateway will deliver desktop PCs, notebook PCs and 18-inch flat-panel displays, the company said. Specific product lines were not disclosed. Additional hardware can be added on an as-needed basis, under the contract.

Apparently Jennifer Braceras is being very helpful. Kirsanow tried to proffer his credentials and was refused. Jennifer requested that the record reflect what Kirsanow's votes would have been, which is the strategy we discussed last night. Not sure whether Berry's letting him do that. Jennifer asked if he could make a statement. Berry ruled him out of order and they were debating on whether an audience member could make a statement.

HEADLINE: Insurers asking states to let them opt out of terrorism coverage

BYLINE: BARBARA De LOLLIIS; Gannett News Service

DATELINE: WASHINGTON

BODY:
WASHINGTON -- Believing the risk of attacks on U.S. soil to be higher than ever, scores of insurers are seeking to exclude terrorism coverage from their commercial policies nationwide.

In the past few weeks, insurance companies of all sizes have filed paperwork with state insurance regulators in all 50 states to keep from paying terrorist-related claims.

The companies say they no longer can buy protection themselves to cover those possible losses, making the prospects of selling the coverage to customers too risky.

"This is a very difficult situation," said Iowa Insurance Commissioner Terri Vaughan, vice president of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. "We are looking at two unattractive options. "One is requiring companies to expose themselves to insolvency from terrorism and therefore place at risk the insurance coverage of all the other policyholders they insure," he said. "The other alternative is allowing insurers to exclude terrorism and leave policyholders exposed. Neither of those are attractive and we are very hopeful Congress will act."

The association plans to take up the issue at its national meeting to begin Saturday in Chicago, and Vaughan said staff and commissioners are on Capitol Hill every day lobbying lawmakers about the need for federal intervention.

But consumer advocates Wednesday attacked state regulators for even thinking about approving the filings, saying approval would put consumers -- businesses in this case -- at far too great a risk.

"The states are choosing to sit on their hands," said Robert Hunter, a former Texas insurance commissioner who now represents the Consumer Federation of America on insurance matters. "States should not just sit back and wait for Congress to act."

Hunter called on Congress to add several provisions to any plan it approves, such as requiring insurers to justify rates and requiring the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, to review state efforts to keep rates reasonable.

Congress this week continues to work on legislation that would help the industry in the event of future terrorist attacks. The hope is to pass a law before the session ends so insurance companies can have a plan in place.

Within days of Sept. 11's attacks, influential insurance executives had flocked to Capitol Hill to lobby for financial aid. They said they did not want a bailout like the airline industry but needed some type of assistance to help spread the risk until the private market figured out how to sell terrorism insurance.

Last week, the House passed a bill that offers companies loans if the industry sustains $ 1 billion in losses or a lesser amount for individual companies. Talks in the Senate, however, are focusing on a plan that would put the government more in the role of providing insurance to the industry.

Until now, terrorism insurance has been included in commercial policies. Insurers never had collected special premiums for what had been perceived to be a far-fetched risk. Sept. 11's attacks -- which could cost as much as $ 70 billion -- made everyone re-examine the likelihood of terrorism.

Ohio Casualty, a mid-sized insurer based in Fairfield, Ohio, is one company that hopes Congress acts quickly. While it doesn't insure high-profile buildings considered possible terrorist targets, it did have about $ 7 million in losses from businesses near the World Trade Center. The company filed exclusions in case it is unable to buy protection for terrorist claims from its reinsurer.

"We're just trying to protect ourselves in the event that terrorism is excluded in our treaties," said Jeff Haniewich, Ohio Casualty's chief operating officer for commercial lines. "We're filing them. It doesn't mean we're going to use them."

(REST OPTIONAL)

While Congress continues debating the structure of its help, some business owners say terrorism insurance is the furthest thing from their mind.

Art dealer Patti Bell, who started Gallery at Studio B in Lancaster, Ohio, 20 years ago, said she probably would not pay the extra money to buy terrorism insurance if it were made available.

"Just what I need -- more insurance," said Bell, who now is displaying French painters in her gallery on Main Street. "Being a small business, I have so many expenses anyway, it would just be an added strain."

You may receive requests for meetings from representatives or advocates for America West or similar airlines. It is recommended that such requests be courteously declined.

The following is additional information from Brett Kavanaugh in Counsel's office:

Our policy has been for WH officials to avoid contacts with the Air Transportation Stabilization Board regarding applications pending before it. The proceedings before it are in the nature of an agency adjudication, and our general policy has been for WH officials to avoid contacts with agencies regarding agency adjudications. If an outside entity calling the White House says it merely is seeking a "status check," we can suggest that the outside entity contact the Board directly. The bottom line is that ...[it] is probably best ... [to] politely declin[e] meeting[s] on the advice of WH Counsel.

I'm checking with Sheila. I'll let you know as soon as I hear back from her. I think it has something to do with the timing of the DOD appropriations bill.

Brett: The AG has signed the letter and it is being faxed to you now.
How would you like me to deliver the original? And when can we expect to get a presidential decision? The hearing is currently scheduled for Thursday morning.

When the Executive Clerk's office receives notice that a judicial nominee has been confirmed by the Senate they (the Clerk's office) will check with Counsel's office before finalizing the paperwork by having the President sign the commission.

When you receive a forward from me with a inquiry from Tim Saunders or someone else in the Clerk's office attached we are looking for you to give the final approval for the signing of a commission for the now confirmed individual.

If you are not the counsel member who should be signing off please let me know which one should be so that I can contact them.

Thanks!

The memo looks fine. That said, I for one am not a fan of the compensation model because it does not include a hard cap and in my view is too generous on non-economic damages, retirement ages, and minimum payments. I also would do more to make sure the program is not a windfall for the wealthy claimants by flattening the grid. Of course, the model has gotten a LOT better over the last few weeks, but I still think it is out of line. (I tried the 25-year-old-single hypo out on some WHC people at lunch, who were floored and outraged by the amounts being floated.)

Subject: victims' fund -will you review

I sat in on a constructive mtg between Jay, DOJ (Phil Perry), Feinberg and WHC on the draft regs. The compensation model they've developed -- which seems like a pretty good one -- will provide an average payment of over $1 million, but is fairly stingy with respect to high wage earners and especially high-earning single victims.

Specifically, the model would:
Make generous assumptions with respect to retirement age (generally 65);
Provide a minimum payment of $150K, even for victims who were fully compensated by collateral sources;
Provide non-economic damages of roughly $250K, with additional amounts for dependent children.

There are still a few remaining big issues:
How to deal with non-traditional families. They will likely defer to state law on the question of who is entitled to represent the estate. The state law that applies would be determined by the victim's domicile.
How to deal with victims with no dependents who, under ordinary tort rules, would not be entitled to non-economic damages. The goal is to compensate them without providing the estate with a windfall.

It might be helpful to have Jay give a quick briefing to relevant members of WH staff (Margaret, Judge, Karen, Ari, etc.) If you think that they need to sign off on decisions before regs get finalized, the briefing would have to be this week. Otherwise, he could give an informational briefing next week.

Kit Seely is working on part of a piece to run on Sunday about all the controversial decisions that have been made related to the investigation and prosecution of the Sept. 11 attacks. She is writing the military tribunals part of the piece, but it will encompass the other decisions made at DOJ since the attacks - monitoring phone calls, etc.

She is looking for more detail about the genesis of the military tribunal idea.

My strong view on the latter is that we wouldn't want him raising any money even if it were legal, because it would politicize the museum.

So that's what I would tell him. Still, it would be nice to know for certain what the law might require.

thanks

Partial answer -- basically in line with my initial impression. You can tell him today that the preliminary answer is he can donate money but we're checking into whether he can raise money, which would include, e.g., being the co-host of a fundraising dinner.

He/she could donate money. Don't know as to raising money (answer for full-time federal employees, including WH officials, would be no). Let me check further on that with OSC.

Moose:

Can someone appointed by the President to be chair of the Holocaust Memorial Commission continue to be active in partisan politics, specifically in donating to and raising money for election campaigns?

This is a presidential appointment, not Senate-confirmed, and is a part-time federal commission.

This person is coming in this afternoon for discussions with Jay, so a preliminary answer by early afternoon would be appreciated if you have a moment. Thanks!

From a Law Review article on Exec Priv:

"President Kennedy expanded the scope of the privilege mostly in the area of foreign policy. When a House Subcommittee on Defense Appropriations requested that the President's military supervisor testify regarding the Bay of Pigs invasion, Kennedy ordered him not to do so. President Kennedy later ordered the Secretary of Defense not to testify to the House relating to military Cold War education and speech review policies. The chairman of the Subcommittee ruled in favor of Kennedy's invocation of executive privilege and the Subcommittee subsequently upheld that ruling. President Kennedy effectively expanded the use of the privilege in the realm of foreign policy decision-making."

Senator Kennedy on Exec Priv:
United States Senator Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass) stated, "[g]overnment secrecy breeds government deceit, that executive privilege nurtures executive arrogance, that national security is frequently the cover for political embarrassment, and that the best antidote to official malfeasance, misfeasance, and nonfeasance is the sunshine and fresh air of full public disclosure of official activities."

I have drafted a speech for Judge Gonzales for him to give tomorrow at Fed Society. Any chance you have time to review briefly before I submit the draft to him? One key issue was identified in this morning's discussion after Jay and Garry left. It has to do with the way that claims will be processed and the standard that will be applied if a claimant chooses to ask for an individual hearing.

Under the regs that have been drafted, claimants will be able either to opt (1) for a determination of a presumptive award, with a right to ask for an individualized hearing after the presumptive award is determined; or (2) for an individualized hearing. The regs give no guidance on the evidence that will be submitted to the SM if the claimant asks for a hearing, nor do they state a standard for the Special Master to apply in conducting the individualized hearing. The regs simply say that claimants may request the SM to review any evidence relevant to the determination of the award, and they do not say anything about the weight that should be accorded to the presumptive award.

Brett and I suggested that the regs should spell out clearly that, even if the claimant asks for a hearing, they should expect to receive the presumptive award, unless the claimant could show "by clear and convincing evidence" it should not apply, or there were "extraordinary circumstances" that warranted a departure from that amount.

Feinberg's group, however, was reluctant to incorporate any additional guidance into the regs regarding the presumptive nature of the award - they are afraid that victims will not feel that they have been adequately heard if they are told that they are going to have their damages assessed on a non-individualized basis.

DOJ seemed reluctant to spell out the legal standard applicable to the award b/c they think that giving the SM broad discretion to depart from the presumptive award insulated the regs from APA challenge.

DOJ is going to draft additional language that they say will address the concerns, but I wanted to flag this for people in advance of their recirculation of the draft.

The Straw Demon (WSJ)

By ALBERT R. HUNT

The Wall Street Journal - Opinion; December 13, 2001

Republicans, desperate for a demon since Bill Clinton left town, are targeting Tom Daschle. Like the proverbial blackbirds leaving a wire, the GOP hitmen are flying in unison. Rep. Bill Thomas has impugned Sen. Daschle's patriotism; Sen. Rick Santorum has likened him to a "rabid dog"; White House economic guru Larry Lindsey charges he abdicated his "responsibility"; and top Bush political adviser Karl Rove suggests the South Dakotan reneged on a budget deal.

The Senate Democratic leader won't let Republicans get their way. Senate GOP Leader Trent Lott, on four occasions this past week, said the chamber has become a "black hole," and Vice President Dick Cheney said Mr. Daschle was an "obstructionist." They object to Democrats sitting on too many nominations and the leader's refusal to schedule action on bills that don't have the support of most of his caucus.

These attacks are duplicitous and hypocritical. What this concerted campaign has in shrillness -- one conservative group even ran ads in South Dakota linking the majority leader to Saddam Hussein -- it lacks in substance. Sen. Daschle is not a mean-spirited partisan. Just watch him. It is instructive to examine the facts of the specific GOP charges. They are gross exaggerations and display a double standard that is egregious even for Washington.

For starters, Daschle critics should answer two simple questions: Is Mr. Daschle's aversion to bringing up bills that aren't supported by most of his Democrats any different from the approach taken by the House Republican leadership? Were any of these critics offended with the more pervasive "obstructionism" congressional Republicans displayed against Bill Clinton? The answer to both questions is no.

Implicit in the Daschle attacks is that not going along with a Bush domestic agenda is unpatriotic in a time of war. Sixty years ago, when there was a declared war and sacrifice was being asked of Americans, Senate GOP Leader Robert Taft declared: "Criticism in a time of war is essential to the maintenance of any kind of democratic government." The great Ohio conservative continued to assail President Roosevelt's domestic policies through much of World War II and was one of the few politicians with the courage to speak out against the internment of Japanese-Americans. (Surely John Ashcroft would have accused him of giving aid and comfort to the enemy.)

Republicans rail that Senate Democrats are thwarting their remake of the federal judiciary. There's some truth to that. Yet Bush judicial nominations have fared better than some comparable Clinton nominees. The number of judicial vacancies, which rose steadily in the final Clinton years, is actually declining.

Beyond judges are complaints that a few foreign policy nominations -- the prime example is Otto Reich, the right-winger tapped to head Latin American affairs -- are languishing. In reality there are Senate Republicans, even on the foreign relations panel, who privately are encouraging Democrats to scuttle a bad nominee that they believe was foisted on Secretary of State Colin Powell.

Moreover, where were those who decry this lack of fairness when Senate Republican leaders would not permit a vote on the Clinton nominations of William Weld (a Republican) to be ambassador to Mexico or James Hormel (who is openly gay) to be ambassador to Luxembourg? Both could have passed the Senate easily.

Then there's the question of holding up a highly qualified top legal appointee because the senators don't like his ideology: Eugene Scalia is the Bush nominee to be solicitor general of the Labor Department. But how about Bill Lann Lee, whom President Clinton tapped to be the assistant attorney general for civil rights? Hopefully Sen. Daschle will give the Scalia nomination the courtesy that Trent Lott did not afford Mr. Lee: an actual vote in the full Senate.

When it comes to legislative bills the Republicans get confused over numbers. They want a vote on the Bush energy bill, especially the right to drill for oil in the Arctic. They might enjoy a majority but lack the 60 required to break a filibuster. Mr. Cheney decries this, claiming the "last time I checked to pass something [in] the Senate [took] 51 votes." Let's remember that Democrats recently mustered a majority to pass more generous health benefits for the unemployed and collective bargaining rights for firefighters. But facing a Republican filibuster both times they lacked the necessary 60 votes. Where was Mr. Cheney's outrage? Indeed a majority of senators supported the Daschle-led economic stimulus package, but Mr. Cheney and the Republicans blocked it, opposing majority rule in that instance, too. The last thing the White House and some congressional allies desire is a serious debate over the rival economic stimulus plans. It's much easier and politically safer to falsely accuse Tom Daschle of creating a "black hole" than to expose the merits of this position.

At the top of the critics' talking points is that Mr. Daschle won't even consider legislation unless it has the backing of two-thirds of the Senate Democrats, thereby thwarting majority rule. Actually, he doesn't use that figure but has openly declared that, as majority leader, he wants to avoid legislation that doesn't command the support of a clear majority of his members.

That's the same philosophy practiced by Lyndon Johnson, Bob Dole and every other successful legislative leader. If you ignore the wishes of your caucus, you won't be party leader for long. In this session, the only major bill that Republican Speaker Dennis Hastert brought to the floor that didn't command overwhelming support among GOP rank-and-file was campaign-finance reform legislation. His hand was forced on that measure and GOP leaders successfully worked to sandbag the bill once it got to the floor.

Tom Daschle's real sin, in the eyes of his increasingly venomous Republican critics, is that he's effective. He shrewdly -- and correctly -- cooperated with the White House in the national security and anti-terrorism initiatives post-Sept. 11. Now he wants to draw lines and delineate differences on domestic issues. That may drive Republicans crazy. But he's doing precisely what Mr. Republican, Bob Taft, called for 60 years ago.

FYI: I attended today's Burton hearing, and it is clear that we have a problem brewing with various House Republicans on two privilege issues: (i) the Presidential Records Act executive order; and (ii) today's assertion of executive privilege with respect to prosecutorial memoranda recommending whether to seek indictments. The problem members are Burton, Horn, and Ose -- and perhaps a few others as well. Judge Gonzales and I are meeting with Chairman Horn Friday at 2:00 on the PRA executive order.

Hopefully the bill is not too goo-goo, and only slashes the number of political appointees subject to Senate confirmation -- not the number of political appointees.

My contact at GAO alerted me to the following in today's Government Executive. I haven't seen the bill yet:

Bill aims to slash number of political appointees
By Kellie Lunney

REV_00137660

Agencies would have to submit plans to reduce their number of political appointees under a Senate bill aimed at streamlining the presidential appointments process.

Sens. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., and Fred Thompson, R-Tenn., introduced legislation Wednesday that would require agency heads to report to the Office of Government Ethics on the number of presidential appointees in their agencies and outline a plan for reducing those positions requiring Senate confirmation. Lieberman and Thompson are the chairman and ranking member of the Governmental Affairs Committee, respectively.

There are about 3,000 political appointees working in the executive branch, but <they account for 25 percent to 40 percent of the formal and informal bureaucratic layers that are interposed between the President and the front lines of government,= Paul C. Light, director of governmental studies and the Presidential Appointee Initiative at the Brookings Institution, told National Journal in June.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REAL ESTATE INVESTMENT TRUSTS®

December 11, 2001

The Honorable Don Nickles
United States Senate
133 Hart Senate Office Building
Washington, DC 20510

Dear Senator Nickles:

The National Association of Real Estate Investment Trusts (NAREIT), representing REITs and publicly traded real estate companies, urges you to quickly enact legislation to ensure that affordable insurance coverage is available to businesses to cover future financial losses related to terrorist attacks. It is critical that this legislation be passed prior to the conclusion of this Congressional session.

It is estimated that over 70 percent of businesses and owners of commercial and residential properties renew their insurance coverage on January 1 each year. Many of these owners have been advised that their policies will not be renewed or that their new policies will exclude risks associated with terrorist acts. Unless Congress acts now to ensure the availability of affordable terrorism coverage in the marketplace, the real estate industry's ability to finance, construct, sell or buy properties across the country will be at risk and significant economic dislocation will likely occur.

The House of Representatives has taken an important step toward crafting a workable solution to this problem through the passage of H.R. 3210, the Terrorism Risk Protection Act. It is crucial that the Senate act quickly to pass similar legislation. Ultimately, NAREIT supports a compromise package that creates a workable temporary federal program that ensures the availability of affordable terrorism insurance coverage for businesses. Also included should be reasonable liability reform provisions designed to benefit the victims of a terrorist attack so that all affected parties will receive appropriate damages.

Thank you in advance for your consideration of this important legislation.

Sincerely,

Steven A. Wechsler
President and CEO

RE: Terrorism Risk Protection Legislation

To Members of the U.S. Senate:

As bi-partisan negotiations with the Bush Administration continue over features of a Senate version of the House-passed Terrorism Risk Protection Act, I am writing to urge you to expedite introduction and enactment of legislation to create a workable solution in the marketplace for the renewed availability of terrorism insurance coverage.

The events of September 11th dislocated reinsurance markets and eliminated the availability of primary terrorist insurance coverage at virtually any price. As a result, the real estate and construction industries, which account for over a quarter of the nation's gross domestic product, could face severe economic dislocation in the coming months if the Federal government does not immediately address insurance-related issues tied to terrorism.

Without Federal action, the ability to finance, construct, buy or sell commercial properties across the nation will be at risk – affecting not only real estate owners and lenders but the tenants who lease facilities, their employees and customers, as well as anyone who rents an apartment. While many commercial property owners are already affected, a significant percentage of properties, including apartments, shopping centers, offices and hotels are scheduled to renew their insurance coverage on January 1st. Many of these owners have already been advised that their policies will not be renewed or that their new policies will exclude exposures currently insured including terrorism.

As the current policies expire, there is tremendous uncertainty about the status of real estate debt, with some $700 billion in commercial bank debt, $350 billion of commercial mortgage-backed securities (CMBS) loans, and $220 billion of loans held by life insurance companies that run the risk of being in non-monetary default without the availability of terrorism coverage. This lack of coverage raises profound liquidity concerns not only the $1.7 trillion of existing real estate loans and the institutions that hold them but on the ability of borrowers to secure any type of financing going forward.

Any characterization of this legislation as a “bail out” for the insurance industry is inaccurate. The Federal government needs to help ensure that commercial property owners and other businesses can continue to obtain insurance coverage for losses related to terrorism in the future. It is important to act as soon as possible because there are policies expiring every day, and new transactions pending which are being impacted by the lack of resolution of this issue.

As the organization that represents the nation's principal public and privately held commercial property owners, investors and lenders we would like to thank the Senate for its leadership in attempting to provide a mechanism to ensure that our nation's properties are able to maintain terrorism insurance coverage. Again, we urge you to act expeditiously to enact terrorist insurance legislation prior to adjournment this year.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey D. DeBoer
President & Chief Operating Officer

Legislative Alert

* * * Urgent Action Item * * *

Senate negotiators continue to work on the final details of a terrorism insurance bill. They are very close to a deal, and Senate floor action could occur THIS WEEK. At this point, it is critical to contact key Senators involved in the negotiations and impress upon them the urgent need for legislation to create a federal backstop to ensure that companies can get and/or renew workers compensation and property and casualty insurance policies so they can continue doing business.

Listed on the back of this page are the names of the key Senate members who need to be contacted. Time is of the essence and we need your help! Please call them ASAP and tell them:

- Urgency. Since 70 percent of reinsurance treaties are renewable on a calendar-year basis, these policies will need to be renewed by January 1, 2002. Reinsurers provide coverage for front-line insurance carriers and are no longer offering coverage for terrorism losses. A federal backstop would allow reinsurers to come back into the market with more assurance that this coverage would not bankrupt them. It would also allow businesses to retain affordable insurance against risk of terrorism losses.
- Workers Compensation. In 35 states, companies can self-insure for workers compensation claims. However, even self-insured companies need to reinsure. Reinsurance for workers compensation claims related to terrorism losses is virtually unavailable, and what is available is generally unaffordable.
- Transportation. The trucking and railroad industries are having difficulty finding any insurance at all, regardless of cost. These companies cannot operate without insurance. Manufacturers rely on common carriers to deliver components for just-in-time manufacturing and to deliver finished product to market. Without needed transportation, these companies will be effectively out of business.
- Liability. A federal backstop for terrorism insurance claims places a potential burden on American taxpayers. Therefore, we also support reasonable limits on the liability of non-terrorists for damages caused by an act of terrorism, so long as all businesses are treated equally. Those who are truly injured or damaged by an act of terrorism should receive fair and fast compensation—but not a windfall, especially at a cost to the U.S. government.

(over)

Senate leaders and the Administration have largely agreed on a workable solution to avoid the dire economic consequences of the lack of terrorism insurance. This solution would ensure that terrorism insurance is available and affordable, but only if it is considered on the Senate floor right away! The short-term program provides economic stability without costing taxpayers a dime unless there is another major terrorist act in the near future. Without this temporary program, insurers are unable to price and therefore cannot offer terrorism coverage. A federal backstop for terrorism insurance is not an insurance industry bailout or merely an “insurance” issue. It is an economic issue. Given the current economic recession, it is especially important to ensure that the economy has the means it needs to recover. The American economy will suffer if Congress fails to act.

Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., chairman of the Committee on Government Reform, has been rebuffed by President Bush as he tries to get Justice Department memoranda.

Bush invokes executive privilege doctrine

President in battle over confidentiality with GOP Rep. Dan Burton

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dec. 13 * President Bush invoked executive privilege for the first time Thursday to keep Congress from seeing documents of prosecutors, decision-making in cases ranging from a decades-old Boston murder to the Clinton-era fund-raising probe.

bart, could you do tues and wed? if so, i think we'll have a plan, as bk has indicated he is willing to consider sunday and monday night, though he is not committed.

the instant plan would be a second-choice alternative to expansion of the the instant plan would be a second-choice alternative to expansion of the pool, as suggested by bk's prior email.

ok--I guess it's standard to get dispensation for an entire week because your birthday falls on one day during it (a day, I might add, that is not either Thursday or Friday). In accord with well-established American tradition, therefore, I will accede. Happy Birthday.

TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE COMPARISON

Issue	12/13/01 cob Draft Senate Bill	House-Passed Bill
Loss Sharing Program	One-year program with one-year extension at the Secretary of the Treasury's (Secretary) discretion. Program administered by the Secretary. Per Company Deductible: Each participating primary P&C company has a deductible established as its market share of gross premiums multiplied by $10 billion. Once the company has paid insured losses equal to its deductible, it the Government pays 80% of additional losses incurred by that company and the company pays the remaining 20 percent. Once aggregate losses have reached $10 billion, the loss sharing formula converts to 90/10. president has the right to determine the politics of his judicial nominees. The Senate's job is to pass on their character and credentials."

Dayton said he hopes that despite his criticism of the process, his relationship with Ramstad "will continue intact."

Saying he has "great respect" for the congressman, he said they both have "important work to do together."

White House officials informed Ramstad, Dayton and Sen. Paul Wellstone early last week of Bush's choice, but asked them to keep it confidential pending completion of an FBI background check. Dayton said his office was informed on Dec. 4, but he would not say who the White House selected.

Last week, as Ramstad publicly defended his recommendation of his sister, he knew that the White House had already passed her over.

Ramstad said Wednesday that all three of his candidates were "highly qualified" and that "any announcement concerning the president's nomination will come from the White House."

Feminist Groups Target Bush Judicial Nominees

By Audrey Hudson
The Washington Times
Tuesday, December 11, 2001

Liberal and feminist groups are gearing up for a "nasty and contentious fight" against President Bush's judicial nominees who do not support abortion, according to documents obtained by The Washington Times.

The Ms. Foundation, National Organization for Women and Alliance for Justice are holding press conferences this week to criticize nominees and coordinate their activities with Democratic senators.

Beginning today, "Democratic Senators will take to the floor of the Senate to press the importance of scrutinizing and reviewing nominees," a circulating memo says. The groups are encouraging their members to e-mail letters to those senators echoing their support.

A senate aide said Republicans are surprised at the extent of coordination among the groups and Democratic leaders to stall nominees.

"This is unbelievable coordination at its worst against President Bush's judicial and administrative nominations, who need to be confirmed as soon as possible to help us fight the war on terrorism and serve Americans," the aide said.

The memo detailing a Dec. 6 conference call also cited the groups' displeasure with the American Bar Association for reviewing only a judicial candidate's legal background, "not their stand on choice or their temperament."

The group's first major battle will be over the nomination of Charles Pickering Sr. to the 5th Circuit Court. Mr. Pickering was first appointed to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi by President Bush's father.

"We can win on that fight, but it will be nasty and contentious," the memo says. It contends that Mr. Pickering has a "troubling record on civil and reproductive rights" and "wants to ban abortion."

Also targeted for delay are the nominations of John Roberts for the D.C. Circuit Court, Michael McConnell to the 10th Circuit and Carolyn Kuhl to the 9th Circuit.

The groups are planning letter-writing campaigns to senators, visits to newspaper editorial boards and a letter-writing campaign to national newspapers.

Senate Republicans have been complaining about the slow pace of the confirmation process over the past several weeks. Minority Leader Trent Lott, Mississippi Republican, has said the Senate under Democratic rule has become a "black hole of inactivity."

Mr. Bush has nominated 64 district and circuit court judges, of which 21 have been confirmed by the Senate.

That's a 33 percent confirmation rate compared to the 57 percent first-year rate for President Clinton, 63 percent for Mr. Bush's father, and 91 percent for President Reagan. Yesterday, Mr. Bush's only judicial nominee rated "unqualified" by the American Bar Association (ABA) skated through his Senate confirmation hearing with no opposition from Democrats. However, a committee or full Senate vote has not been scheduled.

Assistant U.S. Attorney David L. Bunning, son of Republican Kentucky Sen. Jim Bunning, is nominated to the Eastern District Court of Kentucky.

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, Judicial Committee chairman and the only Democrat to attend the hearing, highlighted the ABA's concerns but did not hammer the issue.

"Mr. Bunning comes highly recommended by his home state senators, and that has always been a matter that people on both sides of the aisles have looked at, but the ABA finds him not qualified, which means a closer look [is needed]," Mr. Leahy said.

The ABA ranking does not automatically disqualify Mr. Bunning but means "every senator has to make up their mind," Mr. Leahy said.

Two members of the ABA's standing committee on the federal judiciary testified about its rating.

David Weiner of the ABA said his negative conclusion was based on interviews with circuit judges and other anonymous interviews, along with a study of Mr. Bunning's legal writing style, which he called "plain."

He said Mr. Bunning's 10 years of experience is two years short of the ABA rule, and he has limited experience working only for the government — as opposed to private practice — in civil matters.

"I have had only one client, the United States, but that client has taught me to respect the rule of law," Mr. Bunning said.

Mr. Weiner drew the ire of Sen. Mitch McConnell, Kentucky Republican, and other judges on the District Court testifying on behalf of Mr. Bunning, by suggesting Mr. Bunning was not qualified because he attended the University of Kentucky law school, rather than an Ivy League school, and graduated with an average ranking.

"As another UK graduate who graduated in the middle of his class, I thought that stung a little bit," Mr. McConnell said. "First of all, Mr. Weiner, I would not hold my breath on being invited to address the University of Kentucky's alumni law association."

State Legal Figures Support David Bunning

By Frank Lockwood
The Lexington Herald Leader
Tuesday, December 11, 2001

Assistant U.S. Attorney David Bunning doesn't have enough experience, intellect and "legal enthusiasm" to merit a lifetime appointment to the federal bench, an American Bar Association official told senators yesterday.

But Kentucky judges and lawyers told the Senate Judiciary Committee that U.S. Sen. Jim Bunning's son has the right work ethic, talents and temperament to be a successful federal district judge.

The ABA, the nation's most influential legal group, has called Bunning "not qualified" -- the only one of George W. Bush's 64 judicial nominees the group has rejected.

Under ABA guidelines, nominees for district judge should have a minimum of 12 years of legal experience. Bunning, 35, has 10. At yesterday's hearing, ABA investigator David Weiner, a Cleveland attorney, said David Bunning has "limited and shallow" experience handling civil cases. Weiner said Bunning's writing style "revealed little advocacy or elegance."

Weiner, a Georgetown University graduate, also criticized Bunning for being a B student at the University of Kentucky College of Law, saying the "law school is not highly ranked" and Bunning's "middle-of-the-class law school record does not speak well for him."

Weiner's assessment wasn't shared by everyone on the ABA panel, however.

A second ABA investigator, Judah Best of Washington, D.C., recommended that Bunning be declared qualified.

Best told the committee the ABA panel had been distracted by "background chatter" -- unhappiness with David Bunning's age and family ties -- instead of looking at Bunning's "competence, temperament and integrity."

Best said Bunning is respected by his colleagues in the Kentucky legal community.

"He stands above the crowd -- that's the message that comes through from all the interviews that I undertook," he said.

Three federal judges from Kentucky, Henry Wilhoit, Karl Forester and Joseph Hood, also came to Washington to vouch for Bunning.

"I can say to you, without hesitation, that David Bunning has what it takes," said Wilhoit. "If he does not become a great district court judge, his mother's going to kill him."

Hood said Bunning is "a man of substance."

Former U.S. Attorney Joseph Famularo, a Clinton appointee, asked the committee to approve Bunning's nomination.

Kentucky Attorney General Albert B. Chandler III, another Democrat, also sent a letter of support, calling Bunning "an exceptionally knowledgeable, skilled and hard-working attorney."

Yesterday, David Bunning, who has worked for 10 years with the U.S. attorney's office, first in Lexington and now in Covington, asked lawmakers to consider his accomplishments as a federal prosecutor and his commitment to justice.

"I believe that the nature and depth of a nominee's experience are more relevant than the amount of time I've been a lawyer," he said. "I took an oath in 1991 to uphold the Constitution and I've worked diligently and tirelessly over the past 10 years to do that."

A failing grade from the ABA isn't necessarily fatal. During the Clinton administration, the group declared four judicial picks to be "unqualified." Three of those four became judges anyway.

Two other judicial nominees for Kentucky, Karen Caldwell and Danny Reeves, already have been approved. To join them, Bunning will first need to be approved by the committee, then be confirmed by the Democratic-controlled Senate.

During yesterday's hearing, Republican lawmakers lauded Bunning and occasionally lambasted the ABA, which has rated judicial nominees since the Eisenhower administration.

U.S. Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, warned of "a growing public perception that the ABA's evaluation is arbitrary and capricious and may be tainted by politics."

U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell, a UK College of Law graduate, accused the ABA of "elitism" and blasted ABA officials for making derogatory remarks about his alma mater.

As committee members quizzed David Bunning and the other witnesses, his father sat silently on the second row, listening intently to the debate.

"I was kind of emotional ... I was nervous," Jim Bunning said afterward. "I wanted him to do extremely well and I thought he handled himself extremely well."

Complaint Filed Over Justice's Travel Expenses

By Andrew Welsh-Huggins
The Associated Press
Tuesday, December 11, 2001

A legal complaint says Justice Deborah Cook of the Ohio Supreme Court improperly requested travel expenses from her Akron home, but Cook said court officials signed off on her plan to give up a state car and bill for mileage instead.

David Palmer, a self-proclaimed judicial watchdog from suburban Powell, filed the complaint Tuesday. A Franklin County Municipal Court judge scheduled a hearing for Wednesday. Palmer said Cook improperly billed the state $2,105 for mileage from Akron to Columbus from November 1999 to May. He says court rules prohibit justices from receiving mileage reimbursement.

Cook is the only justice who doesn't use a state car, court spokesman Jay Wuebbold said Tuesday.

"If you're simply going to file for mileage, it's going to be a considerable savings for the court and the budget," Wuebbold said.

Cook, a Republican, said she gave up her state car about three years ago, saying there were too many restrictions on its use. Even when she had the state car, she paid for her own gas, she said.

Court officials told her she had the option to receive mileage reimbursement if she gave the car up, she said.

"The most important thing to me is that I take matters of the public trust very seriously and so the fact that something's even questioned is a concern to me," she said.

Palmer's complaint covers the most recent reporting periods. Cook said she has continued to drive her own car since May.

Palmer has filed more than 60 felony theft-in-office charges since April, accusing nine visiting judges of intentionally overbilling counties for daily pay, meals and lodging. Several of the judges attributed discrepancies in their bills to clerical errors.

Since Palmer first accused the judges of overbilling, more than $8,700 has been collected from appointed judges who were overpaid by the Supreme Court.

President Bush nominated Cook to a vacancy on the U.S. 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in May.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has yet to examine most of Bush's judicial nominations.

Johnson Approved to Serve on U.S. District Court

The Associated Press

Thursday, December 13, 2001

William "Chip" Johnson of Roswell was confirmed by the Senate Thursday to serve as a U.S. District judge in New Mexico.

Congressional action on the matter is now complete and Johnson is expected to be sworn in. "Judge Johnson has built a solid record in New Mexico as a fair and compassionate judge," Sen. Pete Domenici said.

Domenici recommended Johnson for the position and the nomination was supported by Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M.

"William Johnson has been given high marks for the time he has spent as a state district judge and before that he earned a solid reputation in private legal practice," Bingaman said.

Johnson has served as a state district judge since 1995.

Johnson graduated from Washington and Lee University School of Law in 1985 and spent nearly a decade working as an associate and partner at Hinkle, Cox, Eaton, Coffield & Hensley in Roswell. He currently serves on the New Mexico Juvenile Justice Advisory Committee and the state Drug Enforcement Advisory Committee.

The nomination of M. Christina Armijo of Las Vegas was confirmed last month.

Justice Cook Charged with Illegal Billing for Mileage

By T.C. Brown

The Plain Dealer

Wednesday, December 13, 2001

Ohio Supreme Court Justice Deborah Cook improperly billed the state for more than $2,100 in mileage expenses, according to complaints filed yesterday.

A judge will hold a probable cause hearing today in Franklin County Common Pleas Court, where nine separate charges were filed by a citizen.

The misdemeanor allegations come at a critical point in Cook's career. President George W. Bush nominated Cook in May for a seat on the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and just last week scolded the Senate for failing to hold confirmation hearings on Cook and other nominees. Cook said she has done nothing wrong and, while she was surprised, she was not concerned that the allegations would taint her nomination.

"I take this very seriously, but I am disappointed that this is being made into an issue where it seems this matter was handled entirely appropriately," Cook said.

The charges were filed by self-appointed judicial watchdog David Palmer, of Powell, a Columbus suburb. They cover a series of payments to Cook from November 1999 until May for reimbursement for travel from her Akron home to the Supreme Court.

Judicial rules prohibit travel reimbursement in such instances. "It's pretty nickel-and-dime, but she is not entitled to this," Palmer said. "She knew they were not going to move the Supreme Court to Akron when she got elected."

Cook, first elected in 1995, said she gave up her state car in 1998. The court administrator approved her reimbursement for mileage, she said.

Cook said she is aware of the travel regulations but believes it refers to judges who commute locally.

Palmer said he faxed letters of his findings to Bush and senators on the Judiciary Committee, which has hearings on federal judicial candidates.

Mike Dawson, a spokesman for Ohio Sen. Mike DeWine, said the senator was not concerned about Cook's nomination based on the information available.

Mimi Devlin, a spokeswoman for the Senate Judiciary Committee, had no comment.

Cook earns $102,750 annually.

Hearing Ends Case Against Justice Cook; Prosecutor Cites a Lack of Evidence

By T.C. Brown

The Plain Dealer

Thursday, December 13, 2001

A Franklin County judge yesterday dismissed complaints filed by a citizen that Ohio Supreme Court Justice Deborah Cook had improperly billed the state for mileage expenses.

Common Pleas Judge James Green dismissed the complaint after Ted Barrows, a Columbus assistant city prosecutor, told Green that a lack of evidence would force him to seek a dismissal if the judge found probable cause to proceed.

Self-appointed judicial watchdog David Palmer had filed nine complaints against Cook, saying she had been compensated by the state for $2,100 in travel expenses between her home in Akron and Columbus between November 1999 and May. Court regulations prohibit travel expenses for commuting. Barrows said that Cook did not violate state regulations by receiving reimbursement for travel, so the complaint was flawed. He also pointed out that Cook had administrative approval for the expenses after she gave up a state car, and she could have included travel from her Akron office to the Supreme Court, which would be legal.

"The state does not have grounds to ask the court to find probable cause," Barrows said.

Columbus lawyer John Zeiger, representing Cook, called Palmer's allegations unfair. Cook is awaiting a confirmation hearing by the Senate Judiciary Committee for a seat on the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"This was all approved consistent with the Supreme Court rules," Zeiger said. "The complaining witness just did not understand."

Palmer said he based his complaint, in part, on a letter he received from a court administrator, Richard Dove, which said that Cook was reimbursed for travel between her home and court sessions in Columbus. The regulations require a waiver from the court for reimbursement, Palmer said.

Dove said he had presumed Cook was traveling from home. No waiver memo has been found since Cook started using her car, Dove said.

"But Administrator Steve Hollon has signed off on those travel vouchers, and that is an implicit waiver," Dove said.

GOP vs. ABA; The Old Fight Flares Again

By Byron York

The National Review

Tuesday, December 11, 2001

Although it has been out of sight since President Bush took away the American Bar Association's formal role in assessing judicial nominees, the long-running feud between Republicans and the ABA hasn't gone away. And on Capitol Hill Monday, it came roaring back into view.

The issue was the nomination of David Bunning, son of Kentucky senator Jim Bunning, to a seat on the U.S. District Court in Kentucky. After the younger Bunning was nominated by the White House in August, the ABA began an investigation into his qualifications (after Bush took away its formal role in the judicial-selection process, the ABA continued doing candidate evaluations, only without the traditional early notification from the White House). Recently, Bunning became the first Bush-administration nominee to receive a "not qualified" rating from a majority of the ABA's committee on the federal judiciary.

Bunning, 35, has been an assistant United States Attorney for ten years and has prosecuted hundreds of cases. The ABA said his ten years of experience fell short of the 12 years of experience it feels is best for judicial candidates. ABA evaluators also said the nature and quality of Bunning's experience did not meet its standards.

Members of the ABA evaluating committee appeared before the Judiciary Committee Monday to explain their decision. In a harsh assessment of Bunning's qualifications, David Weiner, a member of the ABA committee, told the panel that Bunning's experience in civil cases was "very limited and very shallow." Weiner said Bunning's criminal-case experience was "not of the type that calls for particularly challenging lawyering," and that Bunning's writings "read very much like the work of a young associate."

In addition, Weiner was unimpressed with Bunning's decision to attend the University of Kentucky for both undergraduate and law-school training. Weiner cited what he called Bunning's "lack of academic achievement" and said his "middle-of-the-class law school record does not speak well for him." Finally, Weiner said Bunning showed "no intellectual spark or legal enthusiasm that carried the day with our committee."

On the other side, Republicans presented a panel of three federal judges from Kentucky who had presided over dozens of cases in which Bunning represented the United States. "I think he possesses a strong intellectual capacity and very good writing skills," said U.S. District Court chief judge Karl

Forester. "His professional character is beyond reproach." "Can the candidate recognize legal issues? How is his analysis?" asked retired judge Henry Wilhoit, who heard more than 60 cases involving Bunning. "David Bunning has what it takes."

The committee also heard from an ABA investigator who did a second review of Bunning's work. In a few cases in which the ABA committee finds a candidate not qualified, officials call in another investigator to assess the assessment. In Bunning's case, they asked Judah Best, a former chairman of the ABA committee, to take another look at Bunning's qualifications. Best told the committee that he found Bunning to be qualified and discovered that several "distracting issues" — including resentment over Bunning's influential father and questions of whether Bunning was too young to take the bench — played a role in the ABA's original negative assessment. (Bunning was sponsored by Kentucky senator Mitch McConnell and by ranking Republican Orrin Hatch, while his father sat in the audience.)

Beyond Bunning's qualifications, the hearing re-opened public debate over the ABA's methods. Republicans are particularly unhappy with the ABA's practice of providing the committee with a one-sentence, qualified/not qualified evaluation of each nominee. In addition, the bar association does not allow senators to see the files from its investigation. Hatch wondered why the Senate, which regularly requests and receives files from FBI background investigations of judicial nominees, is not allowed a look at material from the ABA investigation.

"If the FBI can trust us here with the most sensitive information, then why can't the ABA?" Hatch asked. "Is the ABA information more sensitive than the critically sensitive FBI files?" The ABA's "one-line, cursory conclusion," Hatch said, "feeds the growing public perception that the ABA's evaluations are arbitrary and capricious or tainted by politics."

There was also significant Republican ire at the ABA's apparent disdain for lawyers, like Bunning, who do not possess degrees from top universities. "They're so damned elitist," says one GOP aide. "Mitch McConnell went to the University of Kentucky, and all the judges on that

Conservatives set Sights on Sen. Leahy

By Noelle Straub
The Hill
Tuesday, December 12, 2001

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) has become the target of strong attacks from conservatives since his criticism of the Bush administration's plan to try accused alien terrorists in military tribunals and otherwise undermine their civil liberties.

One conservative publication vilified Leahy as "enabling" Osama bin Laden and terrorists. Leahy's office has been flooded with angry and hateful calls in recent weeks.

"Someone in Washington pushed the button to activate the far-right political network," said David Carle, Leahy's spokesman. "Thousands of folks were given scripts and asked to call, and there also were many hate calls and messages, including those in print."

Leahy has himself been a terrorist target. He has had security with him at all times since a letter

panel had gone there."

Indeed, McConnell did not hide his unhappiness with David Weiner's critique of Bunning's record. "As another UK graduate who graduated in the middle of his class, I thought that stung a little bit," McConnell told the committee. "Mr. Weiner, I would not hold my breath on being invited to address the University of Kentucky's alumni law association."

Hispanic Judges: Bush Should get Chance to Seat his Choices

The Dallas Morning News

Tuesday, December 11, 2001

In a speech last week, former New York Gov. Mario Cuomo did what you would expect a Democratic Party consigliere to do: He gave advice. The interesting part is that he gave it to a Republican President George W. Bush.

Mr. Cuomo told a gathering of the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund that he thinks that

President Bush should nominate a Hispanic to the Supreme Court, thus breaking a barrier that should have been broken long ago. That is good advice. In fact, one wonders if Mr. Cuomo gave similar counsel to President Bill Clinton, who had two opportunities to appoint a Hispanic to the Supreme Court.

In any case, President Bush does not need coaching. He has repeatedly expressed his intention of putting a qualified Hispanic judge on the court, and we trust that he will follow through on that promise.

If Mr. Cuomo really wants to see a Hispanic on the Supreme Court, he should lecture fellow Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee who are blocking President Bush's attempt to put a qualified Hispanic judge in the pipeline. Of the 11 individuals whom Mr. Bush nominated to the federal court of appeals, eight have been denied hearings. Among the hostages is Miguel Estrada, a 40-year-old Honduran immigrant who rode the American dream all the way to Harvard Law School, and who is now Mr. Bush's choice to preside on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Senate Democrats have confirmed just 28 percent of President Bush's judicial nominees in his first year in office, compared to the 57 percent of nominees confirmed in the first year of the Clinton presidency. That is a shameful record.

Miguel Estrada and the other Bush nominees deserve better. They deserve hearings.

Judging Bunning; Nepotism, Not Experience, Hurts Bid By Senator's Son

The Lexington Herald Leader

Wednesday, December 12, 2001

Compared to some other personnel decisions made by President George W. Bush, the nomination of David Bunning to a federal judgeship in Kentucky's Eastern District would be a hands-down winner.

For instance, Bush picked J. Strom Thurmond to be U.S. attorney for South Carolina just three years after Thurmond completed law school.

With 10 years of experience as an assistant U.S. attorney in Kentucky, Bunning's qualifications for the federal bench look far superior to Thurmond's qualifications to be a U.S. attorney. Still, it is Bunning's experience level that is most often cited as a reason his nomination shouldn't be approved by the U.S. Senate. The American Bar Association says U.S. district judges should have at least 12 years experience in practicing law. That's two more years of practice than Bunning has.

Bunning would argue, and we would agree, that he's spent more time in federal courtrooms during those 10 years than many lawyers who have practiced 20 or 30 years. But 10 isn't 12, so he's unqualified by the ABA's standards.

Members of the ABA committee who found Bunning unfit for the job testified to the Senate Judiciary Committee the other day that lack the requisite 12 years in practice was just one factor in their opposition his nomination.

They cited his average academic performance in law school at the University of Kentucky, even taking a dig at UK in the process. They questioned his writing ability, his minimal experience with civil cases, even his lack of "an intellectual spark or legal enthusiasm."

Maybe Bunning's ABA critics are right. Maybe they're wrong. But we suspect lack of qualifications is not the real issue for the ABA.

Although Bunning may be the only one of Bush's 64 judicial nominees to have less than 12 years of practice on his resume, we doubt that he's the only one to have been average in law school or to lack some ill-defined "intellectual spark."

We suspect the ABA's opposition to Bunning may derive from the same concern we have about this nomination. It's not his qualifications, or lack thereof, that bother us; it's the aroma of nepotism that accompanies his nomination.

In that, he has much in common with the new U.S. attorney for South Carolina. Both are the sons

of

Republican senators from their respective states. And both, we suspect, got their nominations because of their daddies' positions.

Family ties are important in the Bush administration, too much so to our mind. President Bush has found good jobs for close relatives of Vice President Dick Cheney, Secretary of State Colin Powell, Chief Justice William Rehnquist, Justice Antonin Scalia and several other well-placed Republicans.

It's all too reminiscent of the "family affair" approach to governing that has a long tradition in Kentucky courthouses.

If the Democratic-controlled Senate wants to vote down David Bunning's nomination, it should do so because the nepotism needs to be stopped -- not because of the ABA's evaluation of his qualifications.

Short Circuit; Senate Feud Hurts Cincinnati Appeals Court

The Columbus Dispatch

Thursday, December 13, 2001

At the end of the month, when another retirement occurs, the 16-seat U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati will have a grand total of eight judges. The other eight positions will be vacant.

While the court struggles at half-strength to handle all federal appeals cases for the 31 million people in Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee, the U.S. Senate plays politics with appointments to the bench.

Though the 6th Circuit is the most depleted federal court in the country, the problem also is serious elsewhere. There are 100 vacancies in the 862-judge federal court system, 29 of them in circuit courts, which in importance are second only to the U.S. Supreme Court. Imagine the effect a similar staff cut would have on any business or organization. For most, the loss of one of every eight top staffers would be a serious blow. Four of the seven vacancies on the 6th Circuit have been declared "judicial emergencies," according to the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts. Judicial emergencies are declared based on the length of time a seat has been empty and the number of cases pressing on the court. One of the Cincinnati court's judicial emergencies involves a seat that has gone unfilled since 1995.

But rather than do something for the 11 percent of Americans who depend on the overburdened, understaffed 6th Circuit Court for rulings involving their liberty and livelihoods, the Senate prefers to play partisan games.

The problem is twofold. The Democrat- controlled Senate Judiciary Committee deliberately is stalling confirmation hearings for President Bush's nominees for the 6th Circuit bench because they don't pass a Democratic litmus test for political correctness.

At the same time, Michigan's two Democratic senators are trying to turn back the clock by forcing Bush to nominate two of President Clinton's unsuccessful court nominees.

All six Bush nominees for the 6th Circuit, including two from Ohio, three from Michigan and one from Tennessee, have been cooling their heels while the Senate pretends to be discharging its duty by processing nominees for lower federal courts.

But the real goal is to delay as long as possible the consideration of nominees whose commitment to judicial restraint is anathema to Democrats, who prefer judges who can be relied on to engage in the kind of judicial activism pleasing to the Democratic Party and its special interests.

Two victims of this stalemate are Columbus attorney Jeffrey Sutton and Ohio Supreme Court Justice Deborah Cook, both of whom have been nominated for seats on the court but have yet to have a hearing before the Senate.

Sutton in particular has aroused the ire of liberal special interests who rightly fear that his commitment to limited constitutional government will impede their efforts to use activist federal courts to institute policies they cannot persuade Congress or state legislatures to adopt.

Another nominee of unusual interest is Henry W. Saad, a judge on the Michigan Court of Appeals. If the Senate gets around to considering his nomination, he could become the first judge of Arab descent appointed to the 6th Circuit.

Politically, this nomination couldn't come at a better time, because the United States is at some pains to underline that its war against terrorism is not motivated by ethnic or religious bigotry.

Without a doubt, if a Republican-controlled Senate was blocking an Arab-American nominee, Democratic senators would be tarring the GOP majority as racist. Of course, Democrats are simply doing to Republican nominees what the GOP in the past has done to Democratic nominees. This is a tit-for-tat spat that goes back at least two decades.

But it does no one any good. Both parties should call a truce and agree on some basic ground rules. A president should be able to pick nominees who reflect his governing philosophy, contingent upon the nominee's suitability in ability, experience and character. With reasonable speed, all nominees should receive a hearing and a vote by the Judiciary Committee. If the committee vote is affirmative, the nomination should be forwarded to the full Senate for a vote without delay.

This is hardly a radical idea. In fact, it is precisely the one laid out by Sen. Patrick Leahy back on June 16, 1997, when he made the following remarks during a seven-page lecture on the topic to his colleagues:

"A president should be given a great deal of latitude on who he nominates to the federal court. If we disagree with a nomination, then we can vote against it. But, frankly . . . not only does it damage the integrity and the independence of the federal judiciary by just holding judicial nominations hostage where nobody ever even votes on them, but I think it damages the integrity of the U.S. Senate."

In the same speech, the Vermont Democrat had this to say about the situation of the 6th Circuit four years ago:

"Now, the sixth circuit desperately needs help in managing a growing backlog of cases. They have three vacancies, two of which have been designated judicial emergencies by the Judicial Conference of the United States. I mention the judicial emergencies . . . because this is not a case of some mere debating point; this is the Federal judiciary of this country with emergencies, where they need judges, where we could confirm the judges, and, frankly, the U.S. Senate is not doing its job."

Leahy's observations carry even more weight now, when the court in Cincinnati faces not three but eight vacancies. And since Leahy today is chairman of the Judiciary Committee, he should put his philosophy into effect immediately. He can begin by putting the six nominees for the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at the top of his agenda.

News Conference with Sens. Specter, Nickles, Gregg and Santorum

Federal News Service

Thursday, December 13, 2001

SEN. SPECTER: Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen. We are here to comment about the deplorable situation in the United States Senate on confirmations. With respect to the Judiciary Committee, there are currently 97 judicial vacancies, and a large number of those are in emergency situations. And I would cite at the outset the nomination of Judge Brook Smith, who is the chief judge on the Western District of Pennsylvania, whose nomination has been pending on the Judiciary Committee for confirmation to the Third Circuit for months now.

The Third Circuit consists of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, more than 20 million people. There is a judicial emergency there. Chief Judge Edward R. Becker talks to me about this situation almost weekly. There had been an expectation that Judge Smith would have been confirmed before we broke at the end of this session. And that now looks to be an impossibility. And I talked to the chief judge just last week, who has to rearrange the calendar for the Third Circuit going into '02, because Judge Smith will not be available. The situation has gotten so serious with respect to Judge Smith and the Third Circuit that I took the unusual stand of filing a resolution with the committee calling for a vote, because I have a sense that the other nine members on the committee that were Democrats would be reluctant, perhaps unwilling, to follow Senator Leahy on his chairmanship. And when I filed that resolution two weeks ago, I told the chairman, I told Senator Leahy, that he was looking for a scorched-earth policy. Senator Leahy is not going to be chairman of the Judiciary Committee forever. That's a very tenuous situation, and I am right behind. And not to have a basic measure of fairness is candidly insulting to people like Judge Smith and others who are waiting for confirmation.

This is a chart -- are favorites in the Senate, as you know -- would show a comparison between President Bush's tenure in 1989 to 1993, with President Clinton from 1993, and President Bush this year. First year confirmations on the Court of Appeals. And you see that President Bush has one third of those which were confirmed during the tenure of President Clinton and the first President Bush.

Here is a sampling of editorials, and it's unusual to have such a concurrence with the Washington Post -- not noted for criticizing Senator Leahy -- saying that Judiciary Committee chairman, Democrat Senator Patrick Leahy, has offered no reasonable justification for stalling on these nominations. And going on through a list of editorials which are available for your copying. But I don't want to take up too much time because there are many other speakers.

But the federal courts have a very, very heavy burden, and there's an expectation of even a heavier burden after September 11. We have already had the first defendant suspected charged with terrorism indicted; there may well be others. The federal judiciary should be at full strength, and Senator Leahy should stop playing politics and start confirming federal judges.

SEN. NICKLES: Let me kind of echo a few of the things Senator Specter said. Some of these nominees for judges and circuit court nominees are outstanding individuals, many of which have not been able to get the time of day. They haven't been able to get a hearing -- many of which -- we actually have one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight were nominated on May the 9th -- have yet to have a hearing -- not even have a hearing. They are more than qualified.

Some are outstanding in every respect. I'll just mention a couple of them. Miguel Estrada. Miguel Estrada is a fine outstanding attorney. Many of us feel so strongly about him -- all Republicans senators sent a letter to Senator Leahy, urging that he have a hearing to consider his nomination. Mr. Estrada was rated unanimously well qualified by ABA. When he came to the country, he spoke basically no English. He went on to graduate Phi Beta Kappa from Columbia, and went to graduate at the top of Harvard Law School. He's argued 14 cases before the Supreme Court -- he won 10 of those. He has done a lot of pro bono work. He's an outstanding Hispanic American, and he deserves a hearing. And despite the fact that we have had the vice president ask for a hearing, the president ask for a hearing -- all Republican members of the Senate ask for a hearing -- we have yet to get him a hearing. And he was nominated back in May. That's not fair to Mr. Estrada.

I'll mention another one, John Roberts. John Roberts is -- again, was rated unanimously well qualified by the ABA. He was principal deputy solicitor general in the United States from 1989 to '93. He's argued 34 cases before the Supreme Court. He is so well qualified. And yet he's yet to get a hearing before the committee.

Several of these nominees, as Senator Specter mentioned for the Circuit Court of Appeals just haven't been able to get anything. Only 21 percent. We have actually 21 circuit court nominees that are not moving in the Senate in any way, shape or form. We have had some progress on district court nominees, and I thank Senator Leahy and the Democrats for their cooperation for district court nominees. Circuit court nominees are very important, and yet we have only confirmed six out of 28, and in all of the six two were Democrats.

One was left over basically from the Clinton administration. And several that President Bush has asked for, and the vice president and the Republican Senate have been asking for hearings, and we have got no cooperation whatsoever. That's not fair to these outstanding individuals. They were nominated by the president for very prestigious life-time positions. They are entitled to have a hearing. They have yet to receive a hearing. We call upon Senator Leahy and our colleagues on the Democrats to recognize we wish for them to treat us fairly, and vice versa. And hopefully they'll reconsider and start giving some fair treatment to some outstanding individuals who deserve a hearing, deserve to be confirmed by the U.S. Senate.

SEN. SPECTER: May I just supplement a thing or two, Rick? I feel particularly strongly about the way Judge Smith is treated on the Third Circuit. After Senator Leahy came to me last year, when he was the ranking member, and I helped him with Judge Berzon, was confirmed in the Ninth Circuit; Judge Paez, who was confirmed in the Ninth Circuit; Judge Gregory, who was appointed in the Fourth Circuit; and Bill Lann Lee, a controversial issue of assistant attorney general for the Civil Rights Division. And some basic reciprocity requires that somebody like Judge Smith get a hearing and a confirmation vote.

SEN. SANTORUM: Thank you, Arlen. I also want to say that this is not just about judicial nominations. What we are seeing is also partisan politics being played in areas outside the judiciary.

You know, a lot was written about what was the Congress going to be like after September 11th --

was there going to be a change in the way that business was conducted? Were we going to see more of an atmosphere of bipartisanship? In particular, were the Democrats, and particularly Senator Daschle, going to support the president in his ability to execute the war and to fight what is the war here at home, both from national security perspective, domestic security perspective, but also from an economic growth perspective, as a result of the actions of September 11th? To do that, he needs to have his team in place -- not just on the judiciary, but also on the executive branch. And we would have thought that some of these nominations as you see here -- these are nominees who have been held for anywhere from five weeks all the way up to 32 weeks -- you would think that after the events that occurred this fall that we would see an air of bipartisanship, at least allowing the president to put his team in place to help this country that's facing a war, a diplomatic crisis, as well as an economic crisis here at home. The least they could do was allow the president the opportunity to put his people on the ground to meet the needs of the American public. And that has not happened. Partisanship, and in some cases petty vendettas, have prevailed. And that to me is really something that I think the American public should be outraged about. The American public expects us to work together when this country is in a pinch. We are in a pinch, and what's happening is the majority, Senator Daschle, is blocking nomination after nomination -- not just on the Judiciary Committee, but also here on the floor with respect to a variety of other appointments that this president needs to run this country.

SEN. JUDD GREGG (R-NH): A lot's been said. The great Scottish wars, if you all remember, of the 18th and 17th century -- I know Arlen remembers --

SEN. SPECTER: Strom does. (Laughter.)

SEN. JUDD GREGG: Strom does. I think he referred to them during the impeachment process. In the great Scottish wars of the 17th and 18th century, the king would prescribe a name, and if you had that last name you were subject to be hung. It appears that Senator Daschle has prescribed a name, and the name is Scalia. If you have that name, you shall not come up for confirmation.

The fact is the only thing that is holding Scalia from being -- Eugene Scalia from being nominated and confirmed is the fact that he is the son of his father, who is Judge Scalia. This is petty, it's vindictive, and it's below the purpose of the Senate. But it's the way the Senate is being operated right now by the majority party. For my part, I find it inexcusable obviously. Eugene Scalia, during our hearing process, established himself as an extremely talented individual, who had speaking on his behalf from both parties who represent a broad spectrum of political thought, and five of whom who had been solicitor generals prior to his nomination. They all wrote us and said he would be an exceptional solicitor general; in fact, they said he would probably be better than they were. William Coleman (ph), former secretary of transportation, civil rights leader for many years here in Washington -- a strong advocate for Eugene Scalia.

The only item of disagreement with Gene Scalia seemed to be over the issue of ergonomics, where he came down on the side of the majority of the Congress. So members on the other side disagreed with that. You can hardly hold someone up because he supported the majority position of the Congress when he was being nominated for a position in the government. No, he's only being held up because he's his father's son. He is Scalia the younger. And therefore in order to get to Scalia the older, the Democratic leader and his minions have decided not to give him the opportunity to serve in the government, where he would do an extraordinary job, and it's totally inappropriate.

Q (Off mike)?

SEN. GREGG: Well, it's time for the majority leader to bring these names to the floor. We still are going to be here next week, for some unknown reason, but we are going to be here. And if we are going to be here next weekend, we are going to be standing around the way we are today, and have been for the last few weeks. There's no reason you can't for example do the Scalia nomination. We are not asking that they vote for him. We're simply saying, give us a vote, up or down, on his nomination. And I'm willing to do it in 15 minutes. I'm willing to do it in 10 minutes. I'm willing to do it without any debate. I'm willing to take it right to a vote. So it's not going to take any time. So it's time to have a vote. That's our job as the Senate, to bring these nominations up and have votes on them. Recess nominations -- that's up to the administration, but we don't need to discuss that, because we have time on our agenda to take all these nominations.

Q Senator Specter, could I ask -- could you elaborate a little on what you meant by -- in reference to the court's -- (off mike)?

SEN. SPECTER: Sure. The Senate does not function unless there is cooperation. And the attitude of Senator Leahy in the way he is handling judicial nominations is simply insulting. I searched for a long time to find the right word -- outrageous, reprehensible, terrible -- those are all overused words. But Senator Leahy one day, and perhaps soon, will be the ranking member on judiciary, and he's going to need some consideration from the majority. And even as the chairman, he needs consideration from the minority. And the Senate has a long, proud historical record of comity. And what Senator Leahy is now doing is to invite a scorched-earth policy of absolutely no cooperation by the minority, which he needs as chairman, and absolutely no cooperation when he's in the minority.

Q (Off mike) -- Democratic president and a Republican Senate. We are hearing the arguments from the Republicans now under a Democratic Senate and a Republican president. Is it time to start talking about maybe blanket confirmations of all nominees to solve this problem, because it seems like it's just back and forth with each party whenever the president changes?

SEN. SPECTER: That is a possibility to establish some rule so you couldn't have the current tyranny. But the practices were not the same when we had President Clinton in and a Republican majority in the Senate. And I already gave you a number of illustrations -- very controversial judges. Marcia Berzon was a very controversial nominee in the Ninth Circuit. And it did take her time. And I was one of the leaders who tried to get the matter up and voted on, and she was confirmed. Judge Paez, also of the Ninth Circuit, was very controversial -- a Democratic nominee of President Clinton, a Republican-controlled Senate. And, again, I was one of the leaders to bring Paez up. And Judge Gregory in the Fourth Circuit was controversial. He's one of the judges who has been confirmed by -- this time. President Bush nominated him because it was really thought unfair to have him -- I believe he was an interim appointment -- I am pretty sure about that -- and he has been confirmed. But Republicans helped him. Bill Lann Lee was a highly controversial nominee. He finally ended up tied, and was a beneficiary of an interim appointment. But I helped Senator Leahy with Bill Lann Lee. And this Judge Smith issue is just disgraceful, just insulting that he is not confirmed. When you raise a question about whether we ought to redraft the rules to stop these maneuverings, that's something I'd certainly be fore.

SEN. SANTORUM: I take issue with equating the two arguments. There's a big difference, a huge difference between the last year of an eight-year term, on which he had a record number of judicial nominations approved, most of which during a Republican Senate -- a huge difference with us taking exception to a group, and they were a group, of very, very controversial nominees at the end of a presidential eight-year swing, when he already had more nominees I think on -- maybe one short -- of the record number of people on the court. And equating that argument to a new president who is not getting -- who is getting virtually none of his nominees to the court -- certainly none to the circuit court, of which they are not controversial. These people, if they come to the floor -- and you have seen the ones that have come -- they pass overwhelming votes. There are very, very few. I mean, there's a list of some of the folks who are up there -- there's very, very few who are rated -- who are not rated well qualified. They're unanimously rated qualified. These people are not controversial. This is the first year of his term. He's had very few appointments to the court.

What we are seeing here -- and I know your question -- and that's the other side planting that in you -- but you can't equate the two. And to equate the two, accept their assumption as a valid one -- and it is not a valid assumption. You do not treat the first year of the president the same as you treat -- no Congress historically treats the first year of the president the way you treat the last year of a president after an eight-year role. The last year of a president it's always a situation where there's, you know, you are going to sort of wait to see what happens in the election when you're at the end of the term. That's not the case here. And so I just would hope that people would understand -- to say, well, there was contention before, contention now -- it's just a matter of who is in charge -- wrong. Let's understand that. Let's put it in context. Let's be accurate about it.

SEN. SPECTER: Thank you.

addressed to him was found filled with anthrax spores, similar to the one opened in the office of Majority Leader Tom Daschle (D-S.D.).

Leahy has drawn the ire of the conservative community for not moving more rapidly on President Bush's judicial and departmental nominees and for calling Attorney General John Ashcroft and other Department of Justice officials before his panel to answer questions about administration initiatives.

Human Events, a national conservative weekly publication, ran an article about Leahy in its Dec. 3 issue with a prominent headline, "Osama's Enabler in Congress."

"It is Leahy who would put Americans at greater risk of terrorism," the Human Events article alleges. "Why? Not because he has legitimate complaints — he doesn't — but because he has a partisan and ideological axe to grind into John Ashcroft's back."

John Gizzi, the political editor of Human Events, explained the headline by saying that Leahy has left the administration understaffed by confirming too few nominees, and that he "repeatedly has dogged the administration at every turn."

Gizzi said he didn't know of any American who wants to put another person in danger from terrorists. But he added, "I'm saying that by his actions, not just on the appointments but the way he has been an obstructionist with the anti-terrorist bill, that, as they say in Hollywood, that if he's not, he's doing a great job of faking it. ... His actions are shooting craps with destiny."

Other prominent conservative groups said they also could see some justification for the headline.

"I wouldn't phrase it that way, but I understand what their level of frustration is, too," said Damon Ansell, vice president for policy at Americans for Tax Reform. "I think you'll find that our organization and most organizations are getting tired of these hearings."

Ansell was referring to Judiciary Committee hearings in which Department of Justice officials testified, including a highly publicized hearing last week featuring Ashcroft.

But Carle defended his boss' oversight role.

"Whether or not the administration's military order on tribunals and all the other unilateral actions are popular or unpopular right now, oversight hearings are important in helping the public and the Congress understand what they mean," Carle said. "The hearings already have led the administration to clarify and scale back its intentions for using these broad new powers."

Ansell's group also targets the issue that Democrats and Republicans have traded barbs over for months now — whether Leahy is moving judicial and departmental nominees quickly enough.

"Sen. Leahy has one job and one job only right now in this new era of fighting a war — chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee and therefore to make sure our judicial system is well-stocked," Ansell said. "To date he has done an abhorrent job of that."

Minority Leader Trent Lott (D-Miss.) appealed to his base's concern about the issue when he held a press briefing Monday with a chart labeled "Leahy's Quicksand" prominently displayed behind him, showing that some nominees have been before the Judiciary Committee for as long as 31 weeks without a hearing.

But Democrats strongly disagree with the criticism, arguing they are bringing up a large number of nominees. "We will be exceeding by some degree the record set in other congresses for six months of work on nominations," Daschle said last week.

Both sides are expected to hold dueling press conferences on the issue Wednesday, the one-year anniversary of the Bush v. Gore Supreme Court decision. Several liberal women's groups have been planning a media blitz in support of Leahy.

Tripp Baird, director of Senate relations with the conservative think-tank The Heritage Foundation, also refused to condemn the "Osama's enabler" headline. "I didn't read it so I really couldn't comment on it, but I think Osama bin Laden and terrorists laugh at us when they see us bickering over a military tribunal, whether it's good or bad," he said.

Baird explained the harsh criticism from conservatives as stemming from Leahy's association with liberal groups.

"The strategies seem right out of the playbook of the ACLU [American Civil Liberties Union]," Baird said. "I think that's why a lot of conservatives and Republicans in the Senate are critical of him right now."

Thomas Jipping, director of the Judicial Selection Monitoring Project of the politically and culturally conservative Free Congress Foundation, said his group has long been criticizing Leahy for obstruction on judicial nominees.

"We work with about 900 grassroots groups," Jipping said. "To those groups, to the media and to the Senate, we've tried to expose the tricks that he's using."

Senate Considers Judicial Nominees

By Jesse Holland
The Associated Press
Thursday, December 13, 2001

The Senate moved Thursday toward confirming its last judges of the year, as Republicans renewed their complaints about Democratic treatment of President Bush's judicial and non-judicial nominees.

The Senate confirmed three U.S. District Court judges, while the Senate Judiciary Committee

sent five more District Court nominees to the full chamber for confirmation in what senators expect to be its last hearing of the year.

Senators approved 97-0 the judicial nomination of Frederick Martone of Arizona, and approved the nominations of Clay Land of Georgia and William Johnson of New Mexico by voice vote. The committee sent to the Senate the nominations of five more U.S. District Court candidates by 19-0 votes: Callie V. Granade of Alabama, Marcia S. Krieger of Colorado, James C. Mahan of Nevada, Philip R. Martinez of Texas and C. Ashley Royal of Georgia.

If the Senate approves those five judges before the end of the year, 32 of Bush's first 64 judicial nominations - or 50 percent - would have been approved by the Democrat-controlled Senate. Separately, the Senate would have approved 26 of 36 District Court nominations - 76 percent - and six of 28 U.S. Appeals Court nominations - 21 percent.

Republicans on Thursday continued to complain about the number of nominees the Democrat-controlled Senate has completed so far, saying the lowest number of Circuit judges confirmed in a president's first year since President Reagan was the 60 percent confirmed by the Senate under President Clinton.

Senate Judiciary Chairman Patrick Leahy "should stop playing politics and start confirming judges," said Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., who has threatened a "scorched earth" policy if Republicans regain control of the Senate and there are Democratic nominees.

"We're trying to get through these as quickly as we can," Leahy said.

Other senators complained about other stalled presidential nominations, including that of Eugene Scalia as the Labor Department's top lawyer. GOP senators accused Democrats of holding Scalia up because his father is Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia.

"He's only been held up because he's his father's son," said Sen. Judd Gregg, R-N.H.

Democrats say their disagreement with Scalia is with his views, not with his father.

Dunn, Senators Wrestle Over How Commission Should Recommend Judges

By Katherine Pfleger
The Associated Press
Thursday, December 13, 2001

The jury is still out on whether three Washington state lawmakers will come to a peaceful resolution about how to find a new federal judge for Tacoma.

In a disagreement brewing since February, Democratic Sens. Patty Murray and Maria Cantwell have been clashing with Republican Rep. Jennifer Dunn and the president's legal counsel over how to form a bipartisan panel to select candidates for a vacancy in Western Washington's U.S. District Court in Tacoma.

The parties have exchanged letters, held meetings and dispatched their staffs for negotiations. When they couldn't make a deal, Dunn sent Bush the names of four candidates in November, gathered by a commission she created. Dunn's office says an intern hand-delivered to the senators the four candidates' resumes with a note welcoming their thoughts, which was ignored. The White House intends to announce a nominee, most likely in January.

Murray and Cantwell were amazed Dunn moved ahead without any meaningful contribution from them.

The senators say as late as last week White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales promised to include them in the process. Without that, the two have threatened to block Senate confirmation of the president's nominee.

"We will not have a judge out of the Senate unless Senator Cantwell and I have say naming the judge,"
Murray said.

The Constitution allows the president to nominate judges with the "advice and consent" of the Senate. The president historically has listened to the wishes of home-state senators from his party to fill vacancies. Other elected officials and attorneys often add input.

Under more recent practices, Washington state, California and Wisconsin have set up bipartisan commissions to help fill judicial openings.

Gonzales called the states "isolated exceptions" in a letter to Murray and Cantwell. He has said Bush generally is not supportive of these bipartisan commissions. However, Bush was willing to bow to them - under certain conditions.

Gonzales' August offer: establish a Washington state commission - with equal representation from both parties - to choose at least three candidates. The president would consider its recommendations but could choose someone that the commission didn't suggest.

Gonzales also wanted a commitment from the senators that they would support the president's choice, if he selected one of the commission's candidates, barring a later problem that arises from background checks.

Dunn said Murray and Cantwell weren't willing to compromise and the discussions broke down. She had to move ahead to help get the opening filled, she said.

"The president has gone further than he needs to on this. ... The senators have painted themselves into a corner," said Dunn, who as the state's top Republican serves as a liaison to the White House. "Yet they have the right to put a hold on the nomination of a very good judge."

The senators said they didn't want to be obligated to support the commission's decision if the president could still choose any candidate he desired. Murray said she also wanted an opportunity to look the candidates in their eyes and interview them, which the White House wasn't offering.

Now, Murray and Cantwell want a commission - with even representation - to draw up a new list.

The dispute is reminiscent of some tense discussions Murray had with former Sen. Slade Gorton during the Clinton administration. Then Murray found herself on the other side of the argument, trying to curb the role of a dominating Republican senator as a Democratic White House nominated judges. The two worked out their differences and eventually agreed on judicial candidates.

Cantwell said she was most concerned about continuing the custom of Republican-Democratic commissions that Murray and Gorton established.

"This has been a hard-worked-out process between Patty and Slade," said Cantwell, a member of the Judiciary Committee, tasked with screening and approving judicial candidates. "Why not stick with it?"

Elsewhere, bipartisan commissions have done their work with fewer bumps. In California, names have gone to the White House to fill some openings.

In Wisconsin, Democratic Sens. Herb Kohl and Russ Feingold didn't like the list of candidates submitted to the White House and stripped three of the names - much to the chagrin of Rep. Jim Sensenbrenner, R-Wis. But the process is moving.

Bush's spokesman Ken Lisaius said the White House will continue to communicate with appropriate Congress members regarding judicial nominees.

In Washington state, he said, "the conversations are ongoing."

The opening in Tacoma was created a year ago when Judge Robert Bryan took "senior status," a type of semi-retirement that allows the judge to significantly limit his caseload. He is carrying a full load until a successor is named.

Dunn's committee chose four candidates to replace him: M. Wayne Blair, a King County lawyer; Bryan Chushcoff, a Pierce County Superior Court judge; and two Tacoma lawyers, Beth Jensen and Ron Leighton.

Dunn said they are the four best candidates. Murray and Cantwell both said they had no comment on Dunn's choices.

"I have been contacted by people both Republican and Democrat who never knew about the (selection) process," Murray said.

Forrest Maltzman, George Washington University political science professor, said the question is whether the Democrats are willing to leave vacancies in the court or the Republicans are willing to back down to get people to the bench.

"At the end of the day, what we are going to end up with is a game of chicken," he said.

Dayton Says Judge Selection Process Needs Revamping; He'll Write to Ramstad

By Greg Gordon
The Star Tribune
Thursday, December 13, 2001

Sen. Mark Dayton, D-Minn., said Wednesday that when the next federal judgeship opens in Minnesota, he hopes a different process will be followed to ensure selection of an "extremely well qualified" candidate.

Dayton said he intends to put his request in writing to Republican Rep. Jim Ramstad, who this week found himself in a political mini-tempest for urging President Bush to nominate his sister to a judgeship.

Bush instead settled on Ramstad's third choice for the coveted lifetime job: Minnesota Supreme Court Justice Joan Ericksen Lancaster, two people with direct knowledge of the nomination told the Star Tribune on Tuesday.

Steven Schier, a Carleton College political science professor, said Bush "is saving Jim Ramstad from his own mistakes" by choosing Lancaster over the congressman's sister, Minnesota Corrections Commissioner Sheryl Ramstad Hvass. Given the appearance of a conflict, Schier said, "Ramstad should be very grateful to the administration that they did not select his sister, because this would be an issue that would last for a very long time."

Republican Bill Frenzel, Ramstad's predecessor as Minnesota's Third District congressman, agreed that

"whatever risk [Ramstad] was running is reduced" if his sister is not selected.

Senators normally get the privilege of recommending judicial candidates for their state when their party holds the White House. But because Minnesota's senators are both Democrats, Ramstad, the senior Republican in the House delegation, gets that perk.

A 1967 anti-nepotism law bars members of Congress from hiring relatives, and another statute prohibits nepotism in the judiciary. But no law bars legislators from recommending relatives for judgeships.

Frenzel said he "would have been shocked" if Ramstad, his former aide, had not recommended Ramstad Hvass, to whom he is "fiercely loyal."

"That is an exceedingly close family . . . ," Frenzel said. "It seems to me that she was a pretty qualified person and had a shot at it."

But Frenzel also said he was not surprised that Bush picked a different candidate. Unlike senators, who can block home-state judicial nominations, House members have little leverage over the White House on judicial nominations, he said. Judicial nominees must be confirmed by the Senate.

"It is really hard to get the White House to pay attention to House members on judges," Frenzel said.

"Without mentioning any names, I got stiffed on three judges. I was madder than hell."

Dayton, during a teleconference with reporters, stressed his concern about the process in which Ramstad appointed a three-member judicial-selection panel, which screened 19 candidates and then sent Ramstad five names.

Dayton said that before the next opening is filled, he will urge Ramstad to involve both senators "at least to the extent that we have some more knowledge and an opportunity to encourage applicants."

"The president has a right to make these appointments," Dayton said. "I expect they'll be people with strong Republican credentials, and that's the way the process works. What I will insist on, is that anyone appointed to the federal bench for life is someone who is extremely well qualified and among the very best people in Minnesota."

But Doug Kelley, a member of Ramstad's judicial-screening committee, countered that "it's not the Democratic senators' job to pick judges for a Republican administration. My view is that the president has the right to determine the politics of his judicial nominees. The Senate's job is to pass on their character and credentials."

Dayton said he hopes that despite his criticism of the process, his relationship with Ramstad "will continue intact."

Saying he has "great respect" for the congressman, he said they both have "important work to do together."

White House officials informed Ramstad, Dayton and Sen. Paul Wellstone early last week of Bush's choice, but asked them to keep it confidential pending completion of an FBI background check. Dayton said his office was informed on Dec. 4, but he would not say who the White House selected.

Last week, as Ramstad publicly defended his recommendation of his sister, he knew that the White House had already passed her over.

Ramstad said Wednesday that all three of his candidates were "highly qualified" and that "any announcement concerning the president's nomination will come from the White House."

Feminist Groups Target Bush Judicial Nominees

By Audrey Hudson
The Washington Times
Tuesday, December 11, 2001

Liberal and feminist groups are gearing up for a "nasty and contentious fight" against President Bush's judicial nominees who do not support abortion, according to documents obtained by The Washington Times.

The Ms. Foundation, National Organization for Women and Alliance for Justice are holding press conferences this week to criticize nominees and coordinate their activities with Democratic senators.

Beginning today, "Democratic Senators will take to the floor of the Senate to press the importance of scrutinizing and reviewing nominees," a circulating memo says. The groups are encouraging their members to e-mail letters to those senators echoing their support.

A senate aide said Republicans are surprised at the extent of coordination among the groups and Democratic leaders to stall nominees.

"This is unbelievable coordination at its worst against President Bush's judicial and administrative nominations, who need to be confirmed as soon as possible to help us fight the war on terrorism and serve Americans," the aide said.

The memo detailing a Dec. 6 conference call also cited the groups' displeasure with the American Bar Association for reviewing only a judicial candidate's legal background, "not their stand on choice or their temperament."

The group's first major battle will be over the nomination of Charles Pickering Sr. to the 5th Circuit Court. Mr. Pickering was first appointed to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi by President Bush's father.

"We can win on that fight, but it will be nasty and contentious," the memo says. It contends that Mr. Pickering has a "troubling record on civil and reproductive rights" and "wants to ban abortion."

Also targeted for delay are the nominations of John Roberts for the D.C. Circuit Court, Michael McConnell to the 10th Circuit and Carolyn Kuhl to the 9th Circuit.

The groups are planning letter-writing campaigns to senators, visits to newspaper editorial boards and a letter-writing campaign to national newspapers.

Senate Republicans have been complaining about the slow pace of the confirmation process over the past several weeks. Minority Leader Trent Lott, Mississippi Republican, has said the Senate under Democratic rule has become a "black hole of inactivity."

Mr. Bush has nominated 64 district and circuit court judges, of which 21 have been confirmed by the Senate.

That's a 33 percent confirmation rate compared to the 57 percent first-year rate for President Clinton, 63 percent for Mr. Bush's father, and 91 percent for President Reagan. Yesterday, Mr. Bush's only judicial nominee rated "unqualified" by the American Bar Association (ABA) skated through his Senate confirmation hearing with no opposition from Democrats. However, a committee or full Senate vote has not been scheduled.

Assistant U.S. Attorney David L. Bunning, son of Republican Kentucky Sen. Jim Bunning, is nominated to the Eastern District Court of Kentucky.

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, Judicial Committee chairman and the only Democrat to attend the hearing, highlighted the ABA's concerns but did not hammer the issue.

"Mr. Bunning comes highly recommended by his home state senators, and that has always been a matter that people on both sides of the aisles have looked at, but the ABA finds him not qualified, which means a closer look [is needed]," Mr. Leahy said.

The ABA ranking does not automatically disqualify Mr. Bunning but means "every senator has to make up their mind," Mr. Leahy said.

Two members of the ABA's standing committee on the federal judiciary testified about its rating.

David Weiner of the ABA said his negative conclusion was based on interviews with circuit judges and other anonymous interviews, along with a study of Mr. Bunning's legal writing style, which he called "plain."

He said Mr. Bunning's 10 years of experience is two years short of the ABA rule, and he has limited experience working only for the government — as opposed to private practice — in civil matters.

"I have had only one client, the United States, but that client has taught me to respect the rule of law," Mr. Bunning said.

Mr. Weiner drew the ire of Sen. Mitch McConnell, Kentucky Republican, and other judges on the District Court testifying on behalf of Mr. Bunning, by suggesting Mr. Bunning was not qualified because he attended the University of Kentucky law school, rather than an Ivy League school, and graduated with an average ranking.

"As another UK graduate who graduated in the middle of his class, I thought that stung a little bit," Mr. McConnell said. "First of all, Mr. Weiner, I would not hold my breath on being invited to address the University of Kentucky's alumni law association."

State Legal Figures Support David Bunning

By Frank Lockwood
The Lexington Herald Leader
Tuesday, December 11, 2001

Assistant U.S. Attorney David Bunning doesn't have enough experience, intellect and "legal enthusiasm" to merit a lifetime appointment to the federal bench, an American Bar Association official told senators yesterday.

But Kentucky judges and lawyers told the Senate Judiciary Committee that U.S. Sen. Jim Bunning's son has the right work ethic, talents and temperament to be a successful federal district judge.

The ABA, the nation's most influential legal group, has called Bunning "not qualified" -- the only one of George W. Bush's 64 judicial nominees the group has rejected.

Under ABA guidelines, nominees for district judge should have a minimum of 12 years of legal experience. Bunning, 35, has 10. At yesterday's hearing, ABA investigator David Weiner, a Cleveland attorney, said David Bunning has "limited and shallow" experience handling civil cases. Weiner said Bunning's writing style "revealed little advocacy or elegance."

Weiner, a Georgetown University graduate, also criticized Bunning for being a B student at the University of Kentucky College of Law, saying the "law school is not highly ranked" and Bunning's "middle-of-the-class law school record does not speak well for him."

Weiner's assessment wasn't shared by everyone on the ABA panel, however.

A second ABA investigator, Judah Best of Washington, D.C., recommended that Bunning be declared qualified.

Best told the committee the ABA panel had been distracted by "background chatter" -- unhappiness with David Bunning's age and family ties -- instead of looking at Bunning's "competence, temperament and integrity."

Best said Bunning is respected by his colleagues in the Kentucky legal community.

"He stands above the crowd -- that's the message that comes through from all the interviews that I undertook," he said.

Three federal judges from Kentucky, Henry Wilhoit, Karl Forester and Joseph Hood, also came to Washington to vouch for Bunning.

"I can say to you, without hesitation, that David Bunning has what it takes," said Wilhoit. "If he does not become a great district court judge, his mother's going to kill him."

Hood said Bunning is "a man of substance."

Former U.S. Attorney Joseph Famularo, a Clinton appointee, asked the committee to approve Bunning's nomination.

Kentucky Attorney General Albert B. Chandler III, another Democrat, also sent a letter of support, calling Bunning "an exceptionally knowledgeable, skilled and hard-working attorney."

Yesterday, David Bunning, who has worked for 10 years with the U.S. attorney's office, first in Lexington and now in Covington, asked lawmakers to consider his accomplishments as a federal prosecutor and his commitment to justice.

"I believe that the nature and depth of a nominee's experience are more relevant than the amount of time I've been a lawyer," he said. "I took an oath in 1991 to uphold the Constitution and I've worked diligently and tirelessly over the past 10 years to do that."

A failing grade from the ABA isn't necessarily fatal. During the Clinton administration, the group declared four judicial picks to be "unqualified." Three of those four became judges anyway.

Two other judicial nominees for Kentucky, Karen Caldwell and Danny Reeves, already have been approved. To join them, Bunning will first need to be approved by the committee, then be confirmed by the Democratic-controlled Senate.

During yesterday's hearing, Republican lawmakers lauded Bunning and occasionally lambasted the ABA, which has rated judicial nominees since the Eisenhower administration.

U.S. Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, warned of "a growing public perception that the ABA's evaluation is arbitrary and capricious and may be tainted by politics."

U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell, a UK College of Law graduate, accused the ABA of "elitism" and blasted ABA officials for making derogatory remarks about his alma mater.

As committee members quizzed David Bunning and the other witnesses, his father sat silently on the second row, listening intently to the debate.

"I was kind of emotional ... I was nervous," Jim Bunning said afterward. "I wanted him to do extremely well and I thought he handled himself extremely well."

Complaint Filed Over Justice's Travel Expenses

By Andrew Welsh-Huggins
The Associated Press
Tuesday, December 11, 2001

A legal complaint says Justice Deborah Cook of the Ohio Supreme Court improperly requested travel expenses from her Akron home, but Cook said court officials signed off on her plan to give up a state car and bill for mileage instead.

David Palmer, a self-proclaimed judicial watchdog from suburban Powell, filed the complaint Tuesday. A Franklin County Municipal Court judge scheduled a hearing for Wednesday. Palmer said Cook improperly billed the state $2,105 for mileage from Akron to Columbus from November 1999 to May. He says court rules prohibit justices from receiving mileage reimbursement.

Cook is the only justice who doesn't use a state car, court spokesman Jay Wuebbold said Tuesday.

"If you're simply going to file for mileage, it's going to be a considerable savings for the court and the budget," Wuebbold said.

Cook, a Republican, said she gave up her state car about three years ago, saying there were too many restrictions on its use. Even when she had the state car, she paid for her own gas, she said.

Court officials told her she had the option to receive mileage reimbursement if she gave the car up, she said.

"The most important thing to me is that I take matters of the public trust very seriously and so the fact that something's even questioned is a concern to me," she said.

Palmer's complaint covers the most recent reporting periods. Cook said she has continued to drive her own car since May.

Palmer has filed more than 60 felony theft-in-office charges since April, accusing nine visiting judges of intentionally overbilling counties for daily pay, meals and lodging. Several of the judges attributed discrepancies in their bills to clerical errors.

Since Palmer first accused the judges of overbilling, more than $8,700 has been collected from appointed judges who were overpaid by the Supreme Court.

President Bush nominated Cook to a vacancy on the U.S. 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in May.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has yet to examine most of Bush's judicial nominations.

Johnson Approved to Serve on U.S. District Court

The Associated Press

Thursday, December 13, 2001

William "Chip" Johnson of Roswell was confirmed by the Senate Thursday to serve as a U.S. District judge in New Mexico.

Congressional action on the matter is now complete and Johnson is expected to be sworn in. "Judge Johnson has built a solid record in New Mexico as a fair and compassionate judge," Sen. Pete Domenici said.

Domenici recommended Johnson for the position and the nomination was supported by Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M.

"William Johnson has been given high marks for the time he has spent as a state district judge and before that he earned a solid reputation in private legal practice," Bingaman said.

Johnson has served as a state district judge since 1995.

Johnson graduated from Washington and Lee University School of Law in 1985 and spent nearly a decade working as an associate and partner at Hinkle, Cox, Eaton, Coffield & Hensley in Roswell. He currently serves on the New Mexico Juvenile Justice Advisory Committee and the state Drug Enforcement Advisory Committee.

The nomination of M. Christina Armijo of Las Vegas was confirmed last month.

Justice Cook Charged with Illegal Billing for Mileage

By T.C. Brown

The Plain Dealer

Wednesday, December 13, 2001

Ohio Supreme Court Justice Deborah Cook improperly billed the state for more than $2,100 in mileage expenses, according to complaints filed yesterday.

A judge will hold a probable cause hearing today in Franklin County Common Pleas Court, where nine separate charges were filed by a citizen.

The misdemeanor allegations come at a critical point in Cook's career. President George W. Bush nominated Cook in May for a seat on the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and just last week scolded the Senate for failing to hold confirmation hearings on Cook and other nominees. Cook said she has done nothing wrong and, while she was surprised, she was not concerned that the allegations would taint her nomination.

"I take this very seriously, but I am disappointed that this is being made into an issue where it seems this matter was handled entirely appropriately," Cook said.

The charges were filed by self-appointed judicial watchdog David Palmer, of Powell, a Columbus suburb. They cover a series of payments to Cook from November 1999 until May for reimbursement for travel from her Akron home to the Supreme Court.

Judicial rules prohibit travel reimbursement in such instances. "It's pretty nickel-and-dime, but she is not entitled to this," Palmer said. "She knew they were not going to move the Supreme Court to Akron when she got elected."

Cook, first elected in 1995, said she gave up her state car in 1998. The court administrator approved her reimbursement for mileage, she said.

Cook said she is aware of the travel regulations but believes it refers to judges who commute locally.

Palmer said he faxed letters of his findings to Bush and senators on the Judiciary Committee, which has hearings on federal judicial candidates.

Mike Dawson, a spokesman for Ohio Sen. Mike DeWine, said the senator was not concerned about Cook's nomination based on the information available.

Mimi Devlin, a spokeswoman for the Senate Judiciary Committee, had no comment.

Cook earns $102,750 annually.

Hearing Ends Case Against Justice Cook; Prosecutor Cites a Lack of Evidence

By T.C. Brown

The Plain Dealer

Thursday, December 13, 2001

A Franklin County judge yesterday dismissed complaints filed by a citizen that Ohio Supreme Court Justice Deborah Cook had improperly billed the state for mileage expenses.

Common Pleas Judge James Green dismissed the complaint after Ted Barrows, a Columbus assistant city prosecutor, told Green that a lack of evidence would force him to seek a dismissal if the judge found probable cause to proceed.

Self-appointed judicial watchdog David Palmer had filed nine complaints against Cook, saying she had been compensated by the state for $2,100 in travel expenses between her home in Akron and Columbus between November 1999 and May. Court regulations prohibit travel expenses for commuting. Barrows said that Cook did not violate state regulations by receiving reimbursement for travel, so the complaint was flawed. He also pointed out that Cook had administrative approval for the expenses after she gave up a state car, and she could have included travel from her Akron office to the Supreme Court, which would be legal.

"The state does not have grounds to ask the court to find probable cause," Barrows said.

Columbus lawyer John Zeiger, representing Cook, called Palmer's allegations unfair. Cook is awaiting a confirmation hearing by the Senate Judiciary Committee for a seat on the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"This was all approved consistent with the Supreme Court rules," Zeiger said. "The complaining witness just did not understand."

Palmer said he based his complaint, in part, on a letter he received from a court administrator, Richard Dove, which said that Cook was reimbursed for travel between her home and court sessions in Columbus. The regulations require a waiver from the court for reimbursement, Palmer said.

Dove said he had presumed Cook was traveling from home. No waiver memo has been found since Cook started using her car, Dove said.

"But Administrator Steve Hollon has signed off on those travel vouchers, and that is an implicit waiver," Dove said.

GOP vs. ABA; The Old Fight Flares Again

By Byron York

The National Review

Tuesday, December 11, 2001

Although it has been out of sight since President Bush took away the American Bar Association's formal role in assessing judicial nominees, the long-running feud between Republicans and the ABA hasn't gone away. And on Capitol Hill Monday, it came roaring back into view.

The issue was the nomination of David Bunning, son of Kentucky senator Jim Bunning, to a seat on the U.S. District Court in Kentucky. After the younger Bunning was nominated by the White House in August, the ABA began an investigation into his qualifications (after Bush took away its formal role in the judicial-selection process, the ABA continued doing candidate evaluations, only without the traditional early notification from the White House). Recently, Bunning became the first Bush-administration nominee to receive a "not qualified" rating from a majority of the ABA's committee on the federal judiciary.

Bunning, 35, has been an assistant United States Attorney for ten years and has prosecuted hundreds of cases. The ABA said his ten years of experience fell short of the 12 years of experience it feels is best for judicial candidates. ABA evaluators also said the nature and quality of Bunning's experience did not meet its standards.

Members of the ABA evaluating committee appeared before the Judiciary Committee Monday to explain their decision. In a harsh assessment of Bunning's qualifications, David Weiner, a member of the ABA committee, told the panel that Bunning's experience in civil cases was "very limited and very shallow." Weiner said Bunning's criminal-case experience was "not of the type that calls for particularly challenging lawyering," and that Bunning's writings "read very much like the work of a young associate."

In addition, Weiner was unimpressed with Bunning's decision to attend the University of Kentucky for both undergraduate and law-school training. Weiner cited what he called Bunning's "lack of academic achievement" and said his "middle-of-the-class law school record does not speak well for him." Finally, Weiner said Bunning showed "no intellectual spark or legal enthusiasm that carried the day with our committee."

On the other side, Republicans presented a panel of three federal judges from Kentucky who had presided over dozens of cases in which Bunning represented the United States. "I think he possesses a strong intellectual capacity and very good writing skills," said U.S. District Court chief judge Karl

Forester. "His professional character is beyond reproach." "Can the candidate recognize legal issues? How is his analysis?" asked retired judge Henry Wilhoit, who heard more than 60 cases involving Bunning. "David Bunning has what it takes."

The committee also heard from an ABA investigator who did a second review of Bunning's work. In a few cases in which the ABA committee finds a candidate not qualified, officials call in another investigator to assess the assessment. In Bunning's case, they asked Judah Best, a former chairman of the ABA committee, to take another look at Bunning's qualifications. Best told the committee that he found Bunning to be qualified and discovered that several "distracting issues" — including resentment over Bunning's influential father and questions of whether Bunning was too young to take the bench — played a role in the ABA's original negative assessment. (Bunning was sponsored by Kentucky senator Mitch McConnell and by ranking Republican Orrin Hatch, while his father sat in the audience.)

Beyond Bunning's qualifications, the hearing re-opened public debate over the ABA's methods. Republicans are particularly unhappy with the ABA's practice of providing the committee with a one-sentence, qualified/not qualified evaluation of each nominee. In addition, the bar association does not allow senators to see the files from its investigation. Hatch wondered why the Senate, which regularly requests and receives files from FBI background investigations of judicial nominees, is not allowed a look at material from the ABA investigation.

"If the FBI can trust us here with the most sensitive information, then why can't the ABA?" Hatch asked. "Is the ABA information more sensitive than the critically sensitive FBI files?" The ABA's "one-line, cursory conclusion," Hatch said, "feeds the growing public perception that the ABA's evaluations are arbitrary and capricious or tainted by politics."

There was also significant Republican ire at the ABA's apparent disdain for lawyers, like Bunning, who do not possess degrees from top universities. "They're so damned elitist," says one GOP aide. "Mitch McConnell went to the University of Kentucky, and all the judges on that

Conservatives set Sights on Sen. Leahy

By Noelle Straub
The Hill
Tuesday, December 12, 2001

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) has become the target of strong attacks from conservatives since his criticism of the Bush administration's plan to try accused alien terrorists in military tribunals and otherwise undermine their civil liberties.

One conservative publication vilified Leahy as "enabling" Osama bin Laden and terrorists. Leahy's office has been flooded with angry and hateful calls in recent weeks.

"Someone in Washington pushed the button to activate the far-right political network," said David Carle, Leahy's spokesman. "Thousands of folks were given scripts and asked to call, and there also were many hate calls and messages, including those in print."

Leahy has himself been a terrorist target. He has had security with him at all times since a letter

panel had gone there."

Indeed, McConnell did not hide his unhappiness with David Weiner's critique of Bunning's record. "As another UK graduate who graduated in the middle of his class, I thought that stung a little bit," McConnell told the committee. "Mr. Weiner, I would not hold my breath on being invited to address the University of Kentucky's alumni law association."

Hispanic Judges: Bush Should get Chance to Seat his Choices

The Dallas Morning News

Tuesday, December 11, 2001

In a speech last week, former New York Gov. Mario Cuomo did what you would expect a Democratic Party consigliere to do: He gave advice. The interesting part is that he gave it to a Republican President George W. Bush.

Mr. Cuomo told a gathering of the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund that he thinks that

President Bush should nominate a Hispanic to the Supreme Court, thus breaking a barrier that should have been broken long ago. That is good advice. In fact, one wonders if Mr. Cuomo gave similar counsel to President Bill Clinton, who had two opportunities to appoint a Hispanic to the Supreme Court.

In any case, President Bush does not need coaching. He has repeatedly expressed his intention of putting a qualified Hispanic judge on the court, and we trust that he will follow through on that promise.

If Mr. Cuomo really wants to see a Hispanic on the Supreme Court, he should lecture fellow Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee who are blocking President Bush's attempt to put a qualified Hispanic judge in the pipeline. Of the 11 individuals whom Mr. Bush nominated to the federal court of appeals, eight have been denied hearings. Among the hostages is Miguel Estrada, a 40-year-old Honduran immigrant who rode the American dream all the way to Harvard Law School, and who is now Mr. Bush's choice to preside on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Senate Democrats have confirmed just 28 percent of President Bush's judicial nominees in his first year in office, compared to the 57 percent of nominees confirmed in the first year of the Clinton presidency. That is a shameful record.

Miguel Estrada and the other Bush nominees deserve better. They deserve hearings.

Judging Bunning; Nepotism, Not Experience, Hurts Bid By Senator's Son

The Lexington Herald Leader

Wednesday, December 12, 2001

Compared to some other personnel decisions made by President George W. Bush, the nomination of David Bunning to a federal judgeship in Kentucky's Eastern District would be a hands-down winner.

For instance, Bush picked J. Strom Thurmond to be U.S. attorney for South Carolina just three years after Thurmond completed law school.

With 10 years of experience as an assistant U.S. attorney in Kentucky, Bunning's qualifications for the federal bench look far superior to Thurmond's qualifications to be a U.S. attorney. Still, it is Bunning's experience level that is most often cited as a reason his nomination shouldn't be approved by the U.S. Senate. The American Bar Association says U.S. district judges should have at least 12 years experience in practicing law. That's two more years of practice than Bunning has.

Bunning would argue, and we would agree, that he's spent more time in federal courtrooms during those 10 years than many lawyers who have practiced 20 or 30 years. But 10 isn't 12, so he's unqualified by the ABA's standards.

Members of the ABA committee who found Bunning unfit for the job testified to the Senate Judiciary Committee the other day that lack the requisite 12 years in practice was just one factor in their opposition his nomination.

They cited his average academic performance in law school at the University of Kentucky, even taking a dig at UK in the process. They questioned his writing ability, his minimal experience with civil cases, even his lack of "an intellectual spark or legal enthusiasm."

Maybe Bunning's ABA critics are right. Maybe they're wrong. But we suspect lack of qualifications is not the real issue for the ABA.

Although Bunning may be the only one of Bush's 64 judicial nominees to have less than 12 years of practice on his resume, we doubt that he's the only one to have been average in law school or to lack some ill-defined "intellectual spark."

We suspect the ABA's opposition to Bunning may derive from the same concern we have about this nomination. It's not his qualifications, or lack thereof, that bother us; it's the aroma of nepotism that accompanies his nomination.

In that, he has much in common with the new U.S. attorney for South Carolina. Both are the sons

of

Republican senators from their respective states. And both, we suspect, got their nominations because of their daddies' positions.

Family ties are important in the Bush administration, too much so to our mind. President Bush has found good jobs for close relatives of Vice President Dick Cheney, Secretary of State Colin Powell, Chief Justice William Rehnquist, Justice Antonin Scalia and several other well-placed Republicans.

It's all too reminiscent of the "family affair" approach to governing that has a long tradition in Kentucky courthouses.

If the Democratic-controlled Senate wants to vote down David Bunning's nomination, it should do so because the nepotism needs to be stopped -- not because of the ABA's evaluation of his qualifications.

Short Circuit; Senate Feud Hurts Cincinnati Appeals Court

The Columbus Dispatch

Thursday, December 13, 2001

At the end of the month, when another retirement occurs, the 16-seat U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati will have a grand total of eight judges. The other eight positions will be vacant.

While the court struggles at half-strength to handle all federal appeals cases for the 31 million people in Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee, the U.S. Senate plays politics with appointments to the bench.

Though the 6th Circuit is the most depleted federal court in the country, the problem also is serious elsewhere. There are 100 vacancies in the 862-judge federal court system, 29 of them in circuit courts, which in importance are second only to the U.S. Supreme Court. Imagine the effect a similar staff cut would have on any business or organization. For most, the loss of one of every eight top staffers would be a serious blow. Four of the seven vacancies on the 6th Circuit have been declared "judicial emergencies," according to the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts. Judicial emergencies are declared based on the length of time a seat has been empty and the number of cases pressing on the court. One of the Cincinnati court's judicial emergencies involves a seat that has gone unfilled since 1995.

But rather than do something for the 11 percent of Americans who depend on the overburdened, understaffed 6th Circuit Court for rulings involving their liberty and livelihoods, the Senate prefers to play partisan games.

The problem is twofold. The Democrat- controlled Senate Judiciary Committee deliberately is stalling confirmation hearings for President Bush's nominees for the 6th Circuit bench because they don't pass a Democratic litmus test for political correctness.

At the same time, Michigan's two Democratic senators are trying to turn back the clock by forcing Bush to nominate two of President Clinton's unsuccessful court nominees.

All six Bush nominees for the 6th Circuit, including two from Ohio, three from Michigan and one from Tennessee, have been cooling their heels while the Senate pretends to be discharging its duty by processing nominees for lower federal courts.

But the real goal is to delay as long as possible the consideration of nominees whose commitment to judicial restraint is anathema to Democrats, who prefer judges who can be relied on to engage in the kind of judicial activism pleasing to the Democratic Party and its special interests.

Two victims of this stalemate are Columbus attorney Jeffrey Sutton and Ohio Supreme Court Justice Deborah Cook, both of whom have been nominated for seats on the court but have yet to have a hearing before the Senate.

Sutton in particular has aroused the ire of liberal special interests who rightly fear that his commitment to limited constitutional government will impede their efforts to use activist federal courts to institute policies they cannot persuade Congress or state legislatures to adopt.

Another nominee of unusual interest is Henry W. Saad, a judge on the Michigan Court of Appeals. If the Senate gets around to considering his nomination, he could become the first judge of Arab descent appointed to the 6th Circuit.

Politically, this nomination couldn't come at a better time, because the United States is at some pains to underline that its war against terrorism is not motivated by ethnic or religious bigotry.

Without a doubt, if a Republican-controlled Senate was blocking an Arab-American nominee, Democratic senators would be tarring the GOP majority as racist. Of course, Democrats are simply doing to Republican nominees what the GOP in the past has done to Democratic nominees. This is a tit-for-tat spat that goes back at least two decades.

But it does no one any good. Both parties should call a truce and agree on some basic ground rules. A president should be able to pick nominees who reflect his governing philosophy, contingent upon the nominee's suitability in ability, experience and character. With reasonable speed, all nominees should receive a hearing and a vote by the Judiciary Committee. If the committee vote is affirmative, the nomination should be forwarded to the full Senate for a vote without delay.

This is hardly a radical idea. In fact, it is precisely the one laid out by Sen. Patrick Leahy back on June 16, 1997, when he made the following remarks during a seven-page lecture on the topic to his colleagues:

"A president should be given a great deal of latitude on who he nominates to the federal court. If we disagree with a nomination, then we can vote against it. But, frankly . . . not only does it damage the integrity and the independence of the federal judiciary by just holding judicial nominations hostage where nobody ever even votes on them, but I think it damages the integrity of the U.S. Senate."

In the same speech, the Vermont Democrat had this to say about the situation of the 6th Circuit four years ago:

"Now, the sixth circuit desperately needs help in managing a growing backlog of cases. They have three vacancies, two of which have been designated judicial emergencies by the Judicial Conference of the United States. I mention the judicial emergencies . . . because this is not a case of some mere debating point; this is the Federal judiciary of this country with emergencies, where they need judges, where we could confirm the judges, and, frankly, the U.S. Senate is not doing its job."

Leahy's observations carry even more weight now, when the court in Cincinnati faces not three but eight vacancies. And since Leahy today is chairman of the Judiciary Committee, he should put his philosophy into effect immediately. He can begin by putting the six nominees for the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at the top of his agenda.

News Conference with Sens. Specter, Nickles, Gregg and Santorum

Federal News Service

Thursday, December 13, 2001

SEN. SPECTER: Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen. We are here to comment about the deplorable situation in the United States Senate on confirmations. With respect to the Judiciary Committee, there are currently 97 judicial vacancies, and a large number of those are in emergency situations. And I would cite at the outset the nomination of Judge Brook Smith, who is the chief judge on the Western District of Pennsylvania, whose nomination has been pending on the Judiciary Committee for confirmation to the Third Circuit for months now.

The Third Circuit consists of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, more than 20 million people. There is a judicial emergency there. Chief Judge Edward R. Becker talks to me about this situation almost weekly. There had been an expectation that Judge Smith would have been confirmed before we broke at the end of this session. And that now looks to be an impossibility. And I talked to the chief judge just last week, who has to rearrange the calendar for the Third Circuit going into '02, because Judge Smith will not be available. The situation has gotten so serious with respect to Judge Smith and the Third Circuit that I took the unusual stand of filing a resolution with the committee calling for a vote, because I have a sense that the other nine members on the committee that were Democrats would be reluctant, perhaps unwilling, to follow Senator Leahy on his chairmanship. And when I filed that resolution two weeks ago, I told the chairman, I told Senator Leahy, that he was looking for a scorched-earth policy. Senator Leahy is not going to be chairman of the Judiciary Committee forever. That's a very tenuous situation, and I am right behind. And not to have a basic measure of fairness is candidly insulting to people like Judge Smith and others who are waiting for confirmation.

This is a chart -- are favorites in the Senate, as you know -- would show a comparison between President Bush's tenure in 1989 to 1993, with President Clinton from 1993, and President Bush this year. First year confirmations on the Court of Appeals. And you see that President Bush has one third of those which were confirmed during the tenure of President Clinton and the first President Bush.

Here is a sampling of editorials, and it's unusual to have such a concurrence with the Washington Post -- not noted for criticizing Senator Leahy -- saying that Judiciary Committee chairman, Democrat Senator Patrick Leahy, has offered no reasonable justification for stalling on these nominations. And going on through a list of editorials which are available for your copying. But I don't want to take up too much time because there are many other speakers.

But the federal courts have a very, very heavy burden, and there's an expectation of even a heavier burden after September 11. We have already had the first defendant suspected charged with terrorism indicted; there may well be others. The federal judiciary should be at full strength, and Senator Leahy should stop playing politics and start confirming federal judges.

SEN. NICKLES: Let me kind of echo a few of the things Senator Specter said. Some of these nominees for judges and circuit court nominees are outstanding individuals, many of which have not been able to get the time of day. They haven't been able to get a hearing -- many of which -- we actually have one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight were nominated on May the 9th -- have yet to have a hearing -- not even have a hearing. They are more than qualified.

Some are outstanding in every respect. I'll just mention a couple of them. Miguel Estrada. Miguel Estrada is a fine outstanding attorney. Many of us feel so strongly about him -- all Republicans senators sent a letter to Senator Leahy, urging that he have a hearing to consider his nomination. Mr. Estrada was rated unanimously well qualified by ABA. When he came to the country, he spoke basically no English. He went on to graduate Phi Beta Kappa from Columbia, and went to graduate at the top of Harvard Law School. He's argued 14 cases before the Supreme Court -- he won 10 of those. He has done a lot of pro bono work. He's an outstanding Hispanic American, and he deserves a hearing. And despite the fact that we have had the vice president ask for a hearing, the president ask for a hearing -- all Republican members of the Senate ask for a hearing -- we have yet to get him a hearing. And he was nominated back in May. That's not fair to Mr. Estrada.

I'll mention another one, John Roberts. John Roberts is -- again, was rated unanimously well qualified by the ABA. He was principal deputy solicitor general in the United States from 1989 to '93. He's argued 34 cases before the Supreme Court. He is so well qualified. And yet he's yet to get a hearing before the committee.

Several of these nominees, as Senator Specter mentioned for the Circuit Court of Appeals just haven't been able to get anything. Only 21 percent. We have actually 21 circuit court nominees that are not moving in the Senate in any way, shape or form. We have had some progress on district court nominees, and I thank Senator Leahy and the Democrats for their cooperation for district court nominees. Circuit court nominees are very important, and yet we have only confirmed six out of 28, and in all of the six two were Democrats.

One was left over basically from the Clinton administration. And several that President Bush has asked for, and the vice president and the Republican Senate have been asking for hearings, and we have got no cooperation whatsoever. That's not fair to these outstanding individuals. They were nominated by the president for very prestigious life-time positions. They are entitled to have a hearing. They have yet to receive a hearing. We call upon Senator Leahy and our colleagues on the Democrats to recognize we wish for them to treat us fairly, and vice versa. And hopefully they'll reconsider and start giving some fair treatment to some outstanding individuals who deserve a hearing, deserve to be confirmed by the U.S. Senate.

SEN. SPECTER: May I just supplement a thing or two, Rick? I feel particularly strongly about the way Judge Smith is treated on the Third Circuit. After Senator Leahy came to me last year, when he was the ranking member, and I helped him with Judge Berzon, was confirmed in the Ninth Circuit; Judge Paez, who was confirmed in the Ninth Circuit; Judge Gregory, who was appointed in the Fourth Circuit; and Bill Lann Lee, a controversial issue of assistant attorney general for the Civil Rights Division. And some basic reciprocity requires that somebody like Judge Smith get a hearing and a confirmation vote.

SEN. SANTORUM: Thank you, Arlen. I also want to say that this is not just about judicial nominations. What we are seeing is also partisan politics being played in areas outside the judiciary.

You know, a lot was written about what was the Congress going to be like after September 11th --

was there going to be a change in the way that business was conducted? Were we going to see more of an atmosphere of bipartisanship? In particular, were the Democrats, and particularly Senator Daschle, going to support the president in his ability to execute the war and to fight what is the war here at home, both from national security perspective, domestic security perspective, but also from an economic growth perspective, as a result of the actions of September 11th? To do that, he needs to have his team in place -- not just on the judiciary, but also on the executive branch. And we would have thought that some of these nominations as you see here -- these are nominees who have been held for anywhere from five weeks all the way up to 32 weeks -- you would think that after the events that occurred this fall that we would see an air of bipartisanship, at least allowing the president to put his team in place to help this country that's facing a war, a diplomatic crisis, as well as an economic crisis here at home. The least they could do was allow the president the opportunity to put his people on the ground to meet the needs of the American public. And that has not happened. Partisanship, and in some cases petty vendettas, have prevailed. And that to me is really something that I think the American public should be outraged about. The American public expects us to work together when this country is in a pinch. We are in a pinch, and what's happening is the majority, Senator Daschle, is blocking nomination after nomination -- not just on the Judiciary Committee, but also here on the floor with respect to a variety of other appointments that this president needs to run this country.

SEN. JUDD GREGG (R-NH): A lot's been said. The great Scottish wars, if you all remember, of the 18th and 17th century -- I know Arlen remembers --

SEN. SPECTER: Strom does. (Laughter.)

SEN. JUDD GREGG: Strom does. I think he referred to them during the impeachment process. In the great Scottish wars of the 17th and 18th century, the king would prescribe a name, and if you had that last name you were subject to be hung. It appears that Senator Daschle has prescribed a name, and the name is Scalia. If you have that name, you shall not come up for confirmation.

The fact is the only thing that is holding Scalia from being -- Eugene Scalia from being nominated and confirmed is the fact that he is the son of his father, who is Judge Scalia. This is petty, it's vindictive, and it's below the purpose of the Senate. But it's the way the Senate is being operated right now by the majority party. For my part, I find it inexcusable obviously. Eugene Scalia, during our hearing process, established himself as an extremely talented individual, who had speaking on his behalf from both parties who represent a broad spectrum of political thought, and five of whom who had been solicitor generals prior to his nomination. They all wrote us and said he would be an exceptional solicitor general; in fact, they said he would probably be better than they were. William Coleman (ph), former secretary of transportation, civil rights leader for many years here in Washington -- a strong advocate for Eugene Scalia.

The only item of disagreement with Gene Scalia seemed to be over the issue of ergonomics, where he came down on the side of the majority of the Congress. So members on the other side disagreed with that. You can hardly hold someone up because he supported the majority position of the Congress when he was being nominated for a position in the government. No, he's only being held up because he's his father's son. He is Scalia the younger. And therefore in order to get to Scalia the older, the Democratic leader and his minions have decided not to give him the opportunity to serve in the government, where he would do an extraordinary job, and it's totally inappropriate.

Q (Off mike)?

SEN. GREGG: Well, it's time for the majority leader to bring these names to the floor. We still are going to be here next week, for some unknown reason, but we are going to be here. And if we are going to be here next weekend, we are going to be standing around the way we are today, and have been for the last few weeks. There's no reason you can't for example do the Scalia nomination. We are not asking that they vote for him. We're simply saying, give us a vote, up or down, on his nomination. And I'm willing to do it in 15 minutes. I'm willing to do it in 10 minutes. I'm willing to do it without any debate. I'm willing to take it right to a vote. So it's not going to take any time. So it's time to have a vote. That's our job as the Senate, to bring these nominations up and have votes on them. Recess nominations -- that's up to the administration, but we don't need to discuss that, because we have time on our agenda to take all these nominations.

Q Senator Specter, could I ask -- could you elaborate a little on what you meant by -- in reference to the court's -- (off mike)?

SEN. SPECTER: Sure. The Senate does not function unless there is cooperation. And the attitude of Senator Leahy in the way he is handling judicial nominations is simply insulting. I searched for a long time to find the right word -- outrageous, reprehensible, terrible -- those are all overused words. But Senator Leahy one day, and perhaps soon, will be the ranking member on judiciary, and he's going to need some consideration from the majority. And even as the chairman, he needs consideration from the minority. And the Senate has a long, proud historical record of comity. And what Senator Leahy is now doing is to invite a scorched-earth policy of absolutely no cooperation by the minority, which he needs as chairman, and absolutely no cooperation when he's in the minority.

Q (Off mike) -- Democratic president and a Republican Senate. We are hearing the arguments from the Republicans now under a Democratic Senate and a Republican president. Is it time to start talking about maybe blanket confirmations of all nominees to solve this problem, because it seems like it's just back and forth with each party whenever the president changes?

SEN. SPECTER: That is a possibility to establish some rule so you couldn't have the current tyranny. But the practices were not the same when we had President Clinton in and a Republican majority in the Senate. And I already gave you a number of illustrations -- very controversial judges. Marcia Berzon was a very controversial nominee in the Ninth Circuit. And it did take her time. And I was one of the leaders who tried to get the matter up and voted on, and she was confirmed. Judge Paez, also of the Ninth Circuit, was very controversial -- a Democratic nominee of President Clinton, a Republican-controlled Senate. And, again, I was one of the leaders to bring Paez up. And Judge Gregory in the Fourth Circuit was controversial. He's one of the judges who has been confirmed by -- this time. President Bush nominated him because it was really thought unfair to have him -- I believe he was an interim appointment -- I am pretty sure about that -- and he has been confirmed. But Republicans helped him. Bill Lann Lee was a highly controversial nominee. He finally ended up tied, and was a beneficiary of an interim appointment. But I helped Senator Leahy with Bill Lann Lee. And this Judge Smith issue is just disgraceful, just insulting that he is not confirmed. When you raise a question about whether we ought to redraft the rules to stop these maneuverings, that's something I'd certainly be fore.

SEN. SANTORUM: I take issue with equating the two arguments. There's a big difference, a huge difference between the last year of an eight-year term, on which he had a record number of judicial nominations approved, most of which during a Republican Senate -- a huge difference with us taking exception to a group, and they were a group, of very, very controversial nominees at the end of a presidential eight-year swing, when he already had more nominees I think on -- maybe one short -- of the record number of people on the court. And equating that argument to a new president who is not getting -- who is getting virtually none of his nominees to the court -- certainly none to the circuit court, of which they are not controversial. These people, if they come to the floor -- and you have seen the ones that have come -- they pass overwhelming votes. There are very, very few. I mean, there's a list of some of the folks who are up there -- there's very, very few who are rated -- who are not rated well qualified. They're unanimously rated qualified. These people are not controversial. This is the first year of his term. He's had very few appointments to the court.

What we are seeing here -- and I know your question -- and that's the other side planting that in you -- but you can't equate the two. And to equate the two, accept their assumption as a valid one -- and it is not a valid assumption. You do not treat the first year of the president the same as you treat -- no Congress historically treats the first year of the president the way you treat the last year of a president after an eight-year role. The last year of a president it's always a situation where there's, you know, you are going to sort of wait to see what happens in the election when you're at the end of the term. That's not the case here. And so I just would hope that people would understand -- to say, well, there was contention before, contention now -- it's just a matter of who is in charge -- wrong. Let's understand that. Let's put it in context. Let's be accurate about it.

SEN. SPECTER: Thank you.

addressed to him was found filled with anthrax spores, similar to the one opened in the office of Majority Leader Tom Daschle (D-S.D.).

Leahy has drawn the ire of the conservative community for not moving more rapidly on President Bush's judicial and departmental nominees and for calling Attorney General John Ashcroft and other Department of Justice officials before his panel to answer questions about administration initiatives.

Human Events, a national conservative weekly publication, ran an article about Leahy in its Dec. 3 issue with a prominent headline, "Osama's Enabler in Congress."

"It is Leahy who would put Americans at greater risk of terrorism," the Human Events article alleges. "Why? Not because he has legitimate complaints — he doesn't — but because he has a partisan and ideological axe to grind into John Ashcroft's back."

John Gizzi, the political editor of Human Events, explained the headline by saying that Leahy has left the administration understaffed by confirming too few nominees, and that he "repeatedly has dogged the administration at every turn."

Gizzi said he didn't know of any American who wants to put another person in danger from terrorists. But he added, "I'm saying that by his actions, not just on the appointments but the way he has been an obstructionist with the anti-terrorist bill, that, as they say in Hollywood, that if he's not, he's doing a great job of faking it. ... His actions are shooting craps with destiny."

Other prominent conservative groups said they also could see some justification for the headline.

"I wouldn't phrase it that way, but I understand what their level of frustration is, too," said Damon Ansell, vice president for policy at Americans for Tax Reform. "I think you'll find that our organization and most organizations are getting tired of these hearings."

Ansell was referring to Judiciary Committee hearings in which Department of Justice officials testified, including a highly publicized hearing last week featuring Ashcroft.

But Carle defended his boss' oversight role.

"Whether or not the administration's military order on tribunals and all the other unilateral actions are popular or unpopular right now, oversight hearings are important in helping the public and the Congress understand what they mean," Carle said. "The hearings already have led the administration to clarify and scale back its intentions for using these broad new powers."

Ansell's group also targets the issue that Democrats and Republicans have traded barbs over for months now — whether Leahy is moving judicial and departmental nominees quickly enough.

"Sen. Leahy has one job and one job only right now in this new era of fighting a war — chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee and therefore to make sure our judicial system is well-stocked," Ansell said. "To date he has done an abhorrent job of that."

Minority Leader Trent Lott (D-Miss.) appealed to his base's concern about the issue when he held a press briefing Monday with a chart labeled "Leahy's Quicksand" prominently displayed behind him, showing that some nominees have been before the Judiciary Committee for as long as 31 weeks without a hearing.

But Democrats strongly disagree with the criticism, arguing they are bringing up a large number of nominees. "We will be exceeding by some degree the record set in other congresses for six months of work on nominations," Daschle said last week.

Both sides are expected to hold dueling press conferences on the issue Wednesday, the one-year anniversary of the Bush v. Gore Supreme Court decision. Several liberal women's groups have been planning a media blitz in support of Leahy.

Tripp Baird, director of Senate relations with the conservative think-tank The Heritage Foundation, also refused to condemn the "Osama's enabler" headline. "I didn't read it so I really couldn't comment on it, but I think Osama bin Laden and terrorists laugh at us when they see us bickering over a military tribunal, whether it's good or bad," he said.

Baird explained the harsh criticism from conservatives as stemming from Leahy's association with liberal groups.

"The strategies seem right out of the playbook of the ACLU [American Civil Liberties Union]," Baird said. "I think that's why a lot of conservatives and Republicans in the Senate are critical of him right now."

Thomas Jipping, director of the Judicial Selection Monitoring Project of the politically and culturally conservative Free Congress Foundation, said his group has long been criticizing Leahy for obstruction on judicial nominees.

"We work with about 900 grassroots groups," Jipping said. "To those groups, to the media and to the Senate, we've tried to expose the tricks that he's using."

Senate Considers Judicial Nominees

By Jesse Holland
The Associated Press
Thursday, December 13, 2001

The Senate moved Thursday toward confirming its last judges of the year, as Republicans renewed their complaints about Democratic treatment of President Bush's judicial and non-judicial nominees.

The Senate confirmed three U.S. District Court judges, while the Senate Judiciary Committee

sent five more District Court nominees to the full chamber for confirmation in what senators expect to be its last hearing of the year.

Senators approved 97-0 the judicial nomination of Frederick Martone of Arizona, and approved the nominations of Clay Land of Georgia and William Johnson of New Mexico by voice vote. The committee sent to the Senate the nominations of five more U.S. District Court candidates by 19-0 votes: Callie V. Granade of Alabama, Marcia S. Krieger of Colorado, James C. Mahan of Nevada, Philip R. Martinez of Texas and C. Ashley Royal of Georgia.

If the Senate approves those five judges before the end of the year, 32 of Bush's first 64 judicial nominations - or 50 percent - would have been approved by the Democrat-controlled Senate. Separately, the Senate would have approved 26 of 36 District Court nominations - 76 percent - and six of 28 U.S. Appeals Court nominations - 21 percent.

Republicans on Thursday continued to complain about the number of nominees the Democrat-controlled Senate has completed so far, saying the lowest number of Circuit judges confirmed in a president's first year since President Reagan was the 60 percent confirmed by the Senate under President Clinton.

Senate Judiciary Chairman Patrick Leahy "should stop playing politics and start confirming judges," said Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., who has threatened a "scorched earth" policy if Republicans regain control of the Senate and there are Democratic nominees.

"We're trying to get through these as quickly as we can," Leahy said.

Other senators complained about other stalled presidential nominations, including that of Eugene Scalia as the Labor Department's top lawyer. GOP senators accused Democrats of holding Scalia up because his father is Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia.

"He's only been held up because he's his father's son," said Sen. Judd Gregg, R-N.H.

Democrats say their disagreement with Scalia is with his views, not with his father.

Dunn, Senators Wrestle Over How Commission Should Recommend Judges

By Katherine Pfleger
The Associated Press
Thursday, December 13, 2001

The jury is still out on whether three Washington state lawmakers will come to a peaceful resolution about how to find a new federal judge for Tacoma.

In a disagreement brewing since February, Democratic Sens. Patty Murray and Maria Cantwell have been clashing with Republican Rep. Jennifer Dunn and the president's legal counsel over how to form a bipartisan panel to select candidates for a vacancy in Western Washington's U.S. District Court in Tacoma.

The parties have exchanged letters, held meetings and dispatched their staffs for negotiations. When they couldn't make a deal, Dunn sent Bush the names of four candidates in November, gathered by a commission she created. Dunn's office says an intern hand-delivered to the senators the four candidates' resumes with a note welcoming their thoughts, which was ignored. The White House intends to announce a nominee, most likely in January.

Murray and Cantwell were amazed Dunn moved ahead without any meaningful contribution from them.

The senators say as late as last week White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales promised to include them in the process. Without that, the two have threatened to block Senate confirmation of the president's nominee.

"We will not have a judge out of the Senate unless Senator Cantwell and I have say naming the judge,"
Murray said.

The Constitution allows the president to nominate judges with the "advice and consent" of the Senate. The president historically has listened to the wishes of home-state senators from his party to fill vacancies. Other elected officials and attorneys often add input.

Under more recent practices, Washington state, California and Wisconsin have set up bipartisan commissions to help fill judicial openings.

Gonzales called the states "isolated exceptions" in a letter to Murray and Cantwell. He has said Bush generally is not supportive of these bipartisan commissions. However, Bush was willing to bow to them - under certain conditions.

Gonzales' August offer: establish a Washington state commission - with equal representation from both parties - to choose at least three candidates. The president would consider its recommendations but could choose someone that the commission didn't suggest.

Gonzales also wanted a commitment from the senators that they would support the president's choice, if he selected one of the commission's candidates, barring a later problem that arises from background checks.

Dunn said Murray and Cantwell weren't willing to compromise and the discussions broke down. She had to move ahead to help get the opening filled, she said.

"The president has gone further than he needs to on this. ... The senators have painted themselves into a corner," said Dunn, who as the state's top Republican serves as a liaison to the White House. "Yet they have the right to put a hold on the nomination of a very good judge."

The senators said they didn't want to be obligated to support the commission's decision if the president could still choose any candidate he desired. Murray said she also wanted an opportunity to look the candidates in their eyes and interview them, which the White House wasn't offering.

Now, Murray and Cantwell want a commission - with even representation - to draw up a new list.

The dispute is reminiscent of some tense discussions Murray had with former Sen. Slade Gorton during the Clinton administration. Then Murray found herself on the other side of the argument, trying to curb the role of a dominating Republican senator as a Democratic White House nominated judges. The two worked out their differences and eventually agreed on judicial candidates.

Cantwell said she was most concerned about continuing the custom of Republican-Democratic commissions that Murray and Gorton established.

"This has been a hard-worked-out process between Patty and Slade," said Cantwell, a member of the Judiciary Committee, tasked with screening and approving judicial candidates. "Why not stick with it?"

Elsewhere, bipartisan commissions have done their work with fewer bumps. In California, names have gone to the White House to fill some openings.

In Wisconsin, Democratic Sens. Herb Kohl and Russ Feingold didn't like the list of candidates submitted to the White House and stripped three of the names - much to the chagrin of Rep. Jim Sensenbrenner, R-Wis. But the process is moving.

Bush's spokesman Ken Lisaius said the White House will continue to communicate with appropriate Congress members regarding judicial nominees.

In Washington state, he said, "the conversations are ongoing."

The opening in Tacoma was created a year ago when Judge Robert Bryan took "senior status," a type of semi-retirement that allows the judge to significantly limit his caseload. He is carrying a full load until a successor is named.

Dunn's committee chose four candidates to replace him: M. Wayne Blair, a King County lawyer; Bryan Chushcoff, a Pierce County Superior Court judge; and two Tacoma lawyers, Beth Jensen and Ron Leighton.

Dunn said they are the four best candidates. Murray and Cantwell both said they had no comment on Dunn's choices.

"I have been contacted by people both Republican and Democrat who never knew about the (selection) process," Murray said.

Forrest Maltzman, George Washington University political science professor, said the question is whether the Democrats are willing to leave vacancies in the court or the Republicans are willing to back down to get people to the bench.

"At the end of the day, what we are going to end up with is a game of chicken," he said.

Dayton Says Judge Selection Process Needs Revamping; He'll Write to Ramstad

By Greg Gordon
The Star Tribune
Thursday, December 13, 2001

Sen. Mark Dayton, D-Minn., said Wednesday that when the next federal judgeship opens in Minnesota, he hopes a different process will be followed to ensure selection of an "extremely well qualified" candidate.

Dayton said he intends to put his request in writing to Republican Rep. Jim Ramstad, who this week found himself in a political mini-tempest for urging President Bush to nominate his sister to a judgeship.

Bush instead settled on Ramstad's third choice for the coveted lifetime job: Minnesota Supreme Court Justice Joan Ericksen Lancaster, two people with direct knowledge of the nomination told the Star Tribune on Tuesday.

Steven Schier, a Carleton College political science professor, said Bush "is saving Jim Ramstad from his own mistakes" by choosing Lancaster over the congressman's sister, Minnesota Corrections Commissioner Sheryl Ramstad Hvass. Given the appearance of a conflict, Schier said, "Ramstad should be very grateful to the administration that they did not select his sister, because this would be an issue that would last for a very long time."

Republican Bill Frenzel, Ramstad's predecessor as Minnesota's Third District congressman, agreed that

"whatever risk [Ramstad] was running is reduced" if his sister is not selected.

Senators normally get the privilege of recommending judicial candidates for their state when their party holds the White House. But because Minnesota's senators are both Democrats, Ramstad, the senior Republican in the House delegation, gets that perk.

A 1967 anti-nepotism law bars members of Congress from hiring relatives, and another statute prohibits nepotism in the judiciary. But no law bars legislators from recommending relatives for judgeships.

Frenzel said he "would have been shocked" if Ramstad, his former aide, had not recommended Ramstad Hvass, to whom he is "fiercely loyal."

"That is an exceedingly close family . . . ," Frenzel said. "It seems to me that she was a pretty qualified person and had a shot at it."

But Frenzel also said he was not surprised that Bush picked a different candidate. Unlike senators, who can block home-state judicial nominations, House members have little leverage over the White House on judicial nominations, he said. Judicial nominees must be confirmed by the Senate.

"It is really hard to get the White House to pay attention to House members on judges," Frenzel said.

"Without mentioning any names, I got stiffed on three judges. I was madder than hell."

Dayton, during a teleconference with reporters, stressed his concern about the process in which Ramstad appointed a three-member judicial-selection panel, which screened 19 candidates and then sent Ramstad five names.

Dayton said that before the next opening is filled, he will urge Ramstad to involve both senators "at least to the extent that we have some more knowledge and an opportunity to encourage applicants."

"The president has a right to make these appointments," Dayton said. "I expect they'll be people with strong Republican credentials, and that's the way the process works. What I will insist on, is that anyone appointed to the federal bench for life is someone who is extremely well qualified and among the very best people in Minnesota."

But Doug Kelley, a member of Ramstad's judicial-screening committee, countered that "it's not the Democratic senators' job to pick judges for a Republican administration. My view is that the

Yes.

Linda, pls. schedule in OLA conf room: Monday @ 10 am - AAG's Bryant, Chertoff, and Bybee (w/staff) and PDAG Chris Wray or his designee (we'll probably patch in Herbert and possibly Durham by conf. call for that meeting). Same group for Tuesday @ 8 am but include Tim Flannigan and Brett Kavanaugh from WH Counsel (contact Alison @ 456-2632).

Thanks.

TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE COMPARISON

Issue	12/13/01 cob Draft Senate Bill	House-Passed Bill
Loss Sharing Program	One-year program with one-year extension at the Secretary of the Treasury's (Secretary) discretion. Program administered by the Secretary. Per Company Deductible: Each participating primary P&C company has a deductible established as its market share of gross premiums multiplied by $10 billion. Once the company has paid insured losses equal to its deductible, it the Government pays 80% of additional losses incurred by that company and the company pays the remaining 20 percent. Once aggregate losses have reached $10 billion, the loss sharing formula converts to 90/10. If aggregate losses exceed $10 billion, the Secretary is responsible for determining each company's pro rata share of the government's loss-sharing payments.	One-year program administered by Secretary of the Treasury (Secretary) in which government provides "financial assistance" to commercial P&C insurance companies based on one of two "triggering events." (1) Industry-wide trigger: If there is an "industry-wide triggering event" (described below), each insurer receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of the insurer's net losses (net of reinsured losses) and $5 million. Individual insurer trigger: If there is an "individual insurer triggering event," each insurer eligible to receive financial assistance under the triggering determination receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of its insured losses and 10% of its net P&C premiums (net of reinsurance premiums) in force at the time of the insured losses. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • If the Secretary subsequently determines that an industry-wide trigger has occurred, 10% of premium deductible is refunded, and the deductible under the industry-wide trigger is applied. • Coverage under the (individual insurer?) trigger applies only to those commercial insurers who were providing commercial P&C coverage prior to 9/11.

Issue	12/13/01 cob Draft Senate Bill	House-Passed Bill
Legal Procedures (cont'd)	Provides U.S. right of subrogation for any payment made by U.S. through program. No statute of limitations provision No limited damages provision. Provisions apply only while program is effective. No settlement provision No judgment satisfaction provision. No protective order provision. No arbitration provision. No attorney fees provision.	Provides U.S. right of subrogation for claims U.S. pays. No statute of limitations provision. Damages limited to insured party. Provisions apply only with respect to triggering determinations and do not in any way limit actions against terrorists or their conspirators. No settlement provision. Makes terrorist assets seized or frozen by U.S. liable to satisfy judgments for acts of terrorism. President may waive this requirement. Authorizes U.S. or Secretary of the Treasury to seek protective orders for classified information. Preserves contractual arbitration rights. The Court will decide on reasonable attorneys fees so that the fees will not exceed 20 percent of total damages.

Issue	12/13/01 cob Draft Senate Bill	House-Passed Bill
Disclosure to policyholders	At time of offer, purchase, or renewal of each policy, insurance company must disclose to the policyholder the premium charged for losses covered by the program and the Federal share of compensation under the program. For in-force contracts, disclosure required within 90 days.	Sense of Congress that states should require disclosure of the price of any P&C insurance for acts of terrorism, including costs of terrorism related assessments or surcharges. If states do not enact disclosure guidelines, the Secretary of the Treasury and the NAIC should adopt guidelines requiring the disclosure.
Ability to sue terrorist or terrorist's country	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person, government, or other entity that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.
Insurance Industry Build-Up	Sense of Congress that insurance industry should build up its capacity to provide affordable coverage for terrorism risk.	No provision.
Tax Provision	No provision.	Secretary shall issue a study within 4 months on issues relating to permitting P&C companies to establish tax-deductible reserves against future acts of terrorism.
Participating Insurer's Reports	Every 6 months participating insurance companies must report to the NAIC the premium rates charged for insured losses, including an explanation of and justification for those rates. The NAIC must forward copies of those reports to the Secretary, the Commerce Secretary, the FTC, and GAO.	Each insurer may be required by the Secretary to submit to the Secretary or the NAIC a statement specifying the net premium amount of coverage written under each line of commercial P&C sold by the insurer during a specified period.

Issue	12/13/01 cob Draft Senate Bill	House-Passed Bill
Reports to Congress	Secretary must report to Congress within 9 months the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage. No report on railroad and trucking insurance Secretary must report to Congress promptly on reasons for any extension of the program. No report on pooling. . The Secretary, the Secretary of Commerce, and the FTC shall submit joint reports to Congress and GAO summarizing and evaluating the reports received every 6 months on premium rates (see row above). These reports are due after 9 months and then 12 months later. The GAO shall evaluate these reports for Congress.	Presidentially appointed commission must report to Congress on life insurance within 120 days. Secretary must report to Congress on railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism within 120 days. Reporting on extensions same as Senate bill. Secretary of Treasury, Federal Reserve Board, and GAO must report to Congress within 6 months of enactment on (1) the advisability of establishing a reinsurance pool for acts of terrorism to replace the Act's financial assistance program, and (2) the potential effects of the Internal Revenue Code amendments and any further changes to federal law that might be appropriate to encourage pooling. No report on premium rates.

Issue	12/13/01 cob Draft Senate Bill	House-Passed Bill
Sunset Provisions	The program sunsets on December 31, 2002. Secretary may extend to a second year. One-Year Extension: The Secretary may determine, based on the findings of a mandated report, that the program should be extended for one year, to Dec. 31, 2003. In that event, the loss-sharing is the same as in the first year.	The program sunsets on January 1, 2003. Secretary may extend the program by not more than 2 years. Program Extension: Aggregate industry obligation amount for assessments will be the lesser of (1) Difference between $10 billion and aggregate amount of assessments made in the prior 12 months or, (2) the amount of financial assistance made available.
Triggering Event	Coverage commences when an individual participating insurance company's insured losses exceed its deductible.	Secretary makes a "triggering determination" that commercial P&C losses from one or more acts of terrorism exceed (1) $1 billion industry-wide or (2) $100 million industry-wide and losses for any single insurer exceed 10% of the insurer's capital surplus and 10% of its commercial P&C net premiums.
Coverage Requirements	Participating insurer must offer terrorism coverage in all its commercial P&C policies and may, within 21 days, opt-in to participate with respect to its personal lines. Terrorism coverage must not differ materially from its other P&C coverage. Policyholder must file claim with participating insurer, which processes the claim and submits it to the Secretary along with (1) verification of the claim and payments made to policyholder and (2) certification of compliance with the program.	None

Issue	12/13/01 cob Draft Senate Bill	House-Passed Bill
Cap on Coverage	$100 billion annual losses, after which Congress decides the procedures for and source of any excess payments. TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE COMPARISON

Issue	12/13/01 cob Draft Senate Bill	House-Passed Bill
Loss Sharing Program	One-year program with one-year extension at the Secretary of the Treasury's (Secretary) discretion. Program administered by the Secretary. Per Company Deductible: Each participating primary P&C company has a deductible established as its market share of gross premiums multiplied by $10 billion. Once the company has paid insured losses equal to its deductible, it the Government pays 80% of additional losses incurred by that company and the company pays the remaining 20 percent. Once aggregate losses have reached $10 billion, the loss sharing formula converts to 90/10. If aggregate losses exceed $10 billion, the Secretary is responsible for determining each company's pro rata share of the government's loss-sharing payments.	One-year program administered by Secretary of the Treasury (Secretary) in which government provides "financial assistance" to commercial P&C insurance companies based on one of two "triggering events." (1) Industry-wide trigger: If there is an "industry-wide triggering event" (described below), each insurer receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of the insurer's net losses (net of reinsured losses) and $5 million. Individual insurer trigger: If there is an "individual insurer triggering event," each insurer eligible to receive financial assistance under the triggering determination receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of its insured losses and 10% of its net P&C premiums (net of reinsurance premiums) in force at the time of the insured losses. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • If the Secretary subsequently determines that an industry-wide trigger has occurred, 10% of premium deductible is refunded, and the deductible under the industry-wide trigger is applied. • Coverage under the (individual insurer?) trigger applies only to those commercial insurers who were providing commercial P&C coverage prior to 9/11.

Legal Procedures (cont'd)	Provides U.S. right of subrogation for any payment made by U.S. through program. No statute of limitations provision No limited damages provision. Provisions apply only while program is effective. No settlement provision No judgment satisfaction provision. No protective order provision. No arbitration provision. No attorney fees provision.	Provides U.S. right of subrogation for claims U.S. pays. No statute of limitations provision. Damages limited to insured party. Provisions apply only with respect to triggering determinations and do not in any way limit actions against terrorists or their conspirators. No settlement provision. Makes terrorist assets seized or frozen by U.S. liable to satisfy judgments for acts of terrorism. President may waive this requirement. Authorizes U.S. or Secretary of the Treasury to seek protective orders for classified information. Preserves contractual arbitration rights. The Court will decide on reasonable attorneys fees so that the fees will not exceed 20 percent of total damages.

Disclosure to policyholders	At time of offer, purchase, or renewal of each policy, insurance company must disclose to the policyholder the premium charged for losses covered by the program and the Federal share of compensation under the program. For in-force contracts, disclosure required within 90 days.	Sense of Congress that states should require disclosure of the price of any P&C insurance for acts of terrorism, including costs of terrorism related assessments or surcharges. If states do not enact disclosure guidelines, the Secretary of the Treasury and the NAIC should adopt guidelines requiring the disclosure.
Ability to sue terrorist or terrorist's country	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person, government, or other entity that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.
Insurance Industry Build-Up	Sense of Congress that insurance industry should build up its capacity to provide affordable coverage for terrorism risk.	No provision.
Tax Provision	No provision.	Secretary shall issue a study within 4 months on issues relating to permitting P&C companies to establish tax-deductible reserves against future acts of terrorism.
Participating Insurer's Reports	Every 6 months participating insurance companies must report to the NAIC the premium rates charged for insured losses, including an explanation of and justification for those rates. The NAIC must forward copies of those reports to the Secretary, the Commerce Secretary, the FTC, and GAO.	Each insurer may be required by the Secretary to submit to the Secretary or the NAIC a statement specifying the net premium amount of coverage written under each line of commercial P&C sold by the insurer during a specified period.

Reports to Congress	Secretary must report to Congress within 9 months the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage. No report on railroad and trucking insurance Secretary must report to Congress promptly on reasons for any extension of the program. No report on pooling. . The Secretary, the Secretary of Commerce, and the FTC shall submit joint reports to Congress and GAO summarizing and evaluating the reports received every 6 months on premium rates (see row above). These reports are due after 9 months and then 12 months later. The GAO shall evaluate these reports for Congress.	Presidentially appointed commission must report to Congress on life insurance within 120 days. Secretary must report to Congress on railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism within 120 days. Reporting on extensions same as Senate bill. Secretary of Treasury, Federal Reserve Board, and GAO must report to Congress within 6 months of enactment on (1) the advisability of establishing a reinsurance pool for acts of terrorism to replace the Act's financial assistance program, and (2) the potential effects of the Internal Revenue Code amendments and any further changes to federal law that might be appropriate to encourage pooling. No report on premium rates.

Sunset Provisions	The program sunsets on December 31, 2002. Secretary may extend to a second year. One-Year Extension: The Secretary may determine, based on the findings of a mandated report, that the program should be extended for one year, to Dec. 31, 2003. In that event, the loss-sharing is the same as in the first year.	The program sunsets on January 1, 2003. Secretary may extend the program by not more than 2 years. Program Extension: Aggregate industry obligation amount for assessments will be the lesser of (1) Difference between $10 billion and aggregate amount of assessments made in the prior 12 months or, (2) the amount of financial assistance made available.
Triggering Event	Coverage commences when an individual participating insurance company's insured losses exceed its deductible.	Secretary makes a "triggering determination" that commercial P&C losses from one or more acts of terrorism exceed (1) $1 billion industry-wide or (2) $100 million industry-wide and losses for any single insurer exceed 10% of the insurer's capital surplus and 10% of its commercial P&C net premiums.
Coverage Requirements	Participating insurer must offer terrorism coverage in all its commercial P&C policies and may, within 21 days, opt-in to participate with respect to its personal lines. Terrorism coverage must not differ materially from its other P&C coverage. Policyholder must file claim with participating insurer, which processes the claim and submits it to the Secretary along with (1) verification of the claim and payments made to policyholder and (2) certification of compliance with the program.	None

Issue	12/13/01 cob Draft Senate Bill	House-Passed Bill
Loss Sharing Program	One-year program with one-year extension at the Secretary of the Treasury's (Secretary) discretion. Program administered by the Secretary. Per Company Deductible: Each participating primary P&C company has a deductible established as its market share of gross premiums multiplied by $10 billion. Once the company has paid insured losses equal to its deductible, it the Government pays 80% of additional losses incurred by that company and the company pays the remaining 20 percent. Once aggregate losses have reached $10 billion, the loss sharing formula converts to 90/10. If aggregate losses exceed $10 billion, the Secretary is responsible for determining each company's pro rata share of the government's loss-sharing payments.	One-year program administered by Secretary of the Treasury (Secretary) in which government provides "financial assistance" to commercial P&C insurance companies based on one of two "triggering events." (1) Industry-wide trigger: If there is an "industry-wide triggering event" (described below), each insurer receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of the insurer's net losses (net of reinsured losses) and $5 million. Individual insurer trigger: If there is an "individual insurer triggering event," each insurer eligible to receive financial assistance under the triggering determination receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of its insured losses and 10% of its net P&C premiums (net of reinsurance premiums) in force at the time of the insured losses. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • If the Secretary subsequently determines that an industry-wide trigger has occurred, 10% of premium deductible is refunded, and the deductible under the industry-wide trigger is applied. • Coverage under the (individual insurer?) trigger applies only to those commercial insurers who were providing commercial P&C coverage prior to 9/11.

Disclosure to policyholders	At time of offer, purchase, or renewal of each policy, insurance company must disclose to the policyholder the premium charged for losses covered by the program and the Federal share of compensation under the program. For in-force contracts, disclosure required within 90 days.	Sense of Congress that states should require disclosure of the price of any P&C insurance for acts of terrorism, including costs of terrorism related assessments or surcharges. If states do not enact disclosure guidelines, the Secretary of the Treasury and the NAIC should adopt guidelines requiring the disclosure.
Ability to sue terrorist or terrorist's country	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person, government, or other entity that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.
Insurance Industry Build-Up	Sense of Congress that insurance industry should build up its capacity to provide affordable coverage for terrorism risk.	No provision.
Tax Provision	No provision.	Secretary shall issue a study within 4 months on issues relating to permitting P&C companies to establish tax-deductible reserves against future acts of terrorism.
Participating Insurer's Reports	Every 6 months participating insurance companies must report to the NAIC the premium rates charged for insured losses, including an explanation of and justification for those rates. The NAIC must forward copies of those reports to the Secretary, the Commerce Secretary, the FTC, and GAO.	Each insurer may be required by the Secretary to submit to the Secretary or the NAIC a statement specifying the net premium amount of coverage written under each line of commercial P&C sold by the insurer during a specified period.

Sunset Provisions	The program sunsets on December 31, 2002. Secretary may extend to a second year. One-Year Extension: The Secretary may determine, based on the findings of a mandated report, that the program should be extended for one year, to Dec. 31, 2003. In that event, the loss-sharing is the same as in the first year.	The program sunsets on January 1, 2003. Secretary may extend the program by not more than 2 years. Program Extension: Aggregate industry obligation amount for assessments will be the lesser of (1) Difference between $10 billion and aggregate amount of assessments made in the prior 12 months or, (2) the amount of financial assistance made available.
Triggering Event	Coverage commences when an individual participating insurance company's insured losses exceed its deductible.	Secretary makes a "triggering determination" that commercial P&C losses from one or more acts of terrorism exceed (1) $1 billion industry-wide or (2) $100 million industry-wide and losses for any single insurer exceed 10% of the insurer's capital surplus and 10% of its commercial P&C net premiums.
Coverage Requirements	Participating insurer must offer terrorism coverage in all its commercial P&C policies and may, within 21 days, opt-in to participate with respect to its personal lines. Terrorism coverage must not differ materially from its other P&C coverage. Policyholder must file claim with participating insurer, which processes the claim and submits it to the Secretary along with (1) verification of the claim and payments made to policyholder and (2) certification of compliance with the program.	None

Issue	12/13/01 cob Draft Senate Bill	House-Passed Bill
Loss Sharing Program	One-year program with one-year extension at the Secretary of the Treasury's (Secretary) discretion. Program administered by the Secretary. Per Company Deductible: Each participating primary P&C company has a deductible established as its market share of gross premiums multiplied by $10 billion. Once the company has paid insured losses equal to its deductible, it the Government pays 80% of additional losses incurred by that company and the company pays the remaining 20 percent. Once aggregate losses have reached $10 billion, the loss sharing formula converts to 90/10. If aggregate losses exceed $10 billion, the Secretary is responsible for determining each company's pro rata share of the government's loss-sharing payments.	One-year program administered by Secretary of the Treasury (Secretary) in which government provides "financial assistance" to commercial P&C insurance companies based on one of two "triggering events." (1) Industry-wide trigger: If there is an "industry-wide triggering event" (described below), each insurer receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of the insurer's net losses (net of reinsured losses) and $5 million. Individual insurer trigger: If there is an "individual insurer triggering event," each insurer eligible to receive financial assistance under the triggering determination receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of its insured losses and 10% of its net P&C premiums (net of reinsurance premiums) in force at the time of the insured losses. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • If the Secretary subsequently determines that an industry-wide trigger has occurred, 10% of premium deductible is refunded, and the deductible under the industry-wide trigger is applied. • Coverage under the (individual insurer?) trigger applies only to those commercial insurers who were providing commercial P&C coverage prior to 9/11.

Legal Procedures (cont'd)	Provides U.S. right of subrogation for any payment made by U.S. through program. No statute of limitations provision No limited damages provision. Provisions apply only while program is effective. No settlement provision No judgment satisfaction provision. No protective order provision. No arbitration provision. No attorney fees provision.	Provides U.S. right of subrogation for claims U.S. pays. No statute of limitations provision. Damages limited to insured party. Provisions apply only with respect to triggering determinations and do not in any way limit actions against terrorists or their conspirators. No settlement provision. Makes terrorist assets seized or frozen by U.S. liable to satisfy judgments for acts of terrorism. President may waive this requirement. Authorizes U.S. or Secretary of the Treasury to seek protective orders for classified information. Preserves contractual arbitration rights. The Court will decide on reasonable attorneys fees so that the fees will not exceed 20 percent of total damages.

Disclosure to policyholders	At time of offer, purchase, or renewal of each policy, insurance company must disclose to the policyholder the premium charged for losses covered by the program and the Federal share of compensation under the program. For in-force contracts, disclosure required within 90 days.	Sense of Congress that states should require disclosure of the price of any P&C insurance for acts of terrorism, including costs of terrorism related assessments or surcharges. If states do not enact disclosure guidelines, the Secretary of the Treasury and the NAIC should adopt guidelines requiring the disclosure.
Ability to sue terrorist or terrorist's country	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person, government, or other entity that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.
Insurance Industry Build-Up	Sense of Congress that insurance industry should build up its capacity to provide affordable coverage for terrorism risk.	No provision.
Tax Provision	No provision.	Secretary shall issue a study within 4 months on issues relating to permitting P&C companies to establish tax-deductible reserves against future acts of terrorism.
Participating Insurer's Reports	Every 6 months participating insurance companies must report to the NAIC the premium rates charged for insured losses, including an explanation of and justification for those rates. The NAIC must forward copies of those reports to the Secretary, the Commerce Secretary, the FTC, and GAO.	Each insurer may be required by the Secretary to submit to the Secretary or the NAIC a statement specifying the net premium amount of coverage written under each line of commercial P&C sold by the insurer during a specified period.

Reports to Congress	Secretary must report to Congress within 9 months the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage. No report on railroad and trucking insurance Secretary must report to Congress promptly on reasons for any extension of the program. No report on pooling. . The Secretary, the Secretary of Commerce, and the FTC shall submit joint reports to Congress and GAO summarizing and evaluating the reports received every 6 months on premium rates (see row above). These reports are due after 9 months and then 12 months later. The GAO shall evaluate these reports for Congress.	Presidentially appointed commission must report to Congress on life insurance within 120 days. Secretary must report to Congress on railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism within 120 days. Reporting on extensions same as Senate bill. Secretary of Treasury, Federal Reserve Board, and GAO must report to Congress within 6 months of enactment on (1) the advisability of establishing a reinsurance pool for acts of terrorism to replace the Act's financial assistance program, and (2) the potential effects of the Internal Revenue Code amendments and any further changes to federal law that might be appropriate to encourage pooling. No report on premium rates.

Sunset Provisions	The program sunsets on December 31, 2002. Secretary may extend to a second year. One-Year Extension: The Secretary may determine, based on the findings of a mandated report, that the program should be extended for one year, to Dec. 31, 2003. In that event, the loss-sharing is the same as in the first year.	The program sunsets on January 1, 2003. Secretary may extend the program by not more than 2 years. Program Extension: Aggregate industry obligation amount for assessments will be the lesser of (1) Difference between $10 billion and aggregate amount of assessments made in the prior 12 months or, (2) the amount of financial assistance made available.
Triggering Event	Coverage commences when an individual participating insurance company's insured losses exceed its deductible.	Secretary makes a "triggering determination" that commercial P&C losses from one or more acts of terrorism exceed (1) $1 billion industry-wide or (2) $100 million industry-wide and losses for any single insurer exceed 10% of the insurer's capital surplus and 10% of its commercial P&C net premiums.
Coverage Requirements	Participating insurer must offer terrorism coverage in all its commercial P&C policies and may, within 21 days, opt-in to participate with respect to its personal lines. Terrorism coverage must not differ materially from its other P&C coverage. Policyholder must file claim with participating insurer, which processes the claim and submits it to the Secretary along with (1) verification of the claim and payments made to policyholder and (2) certification of compliance with the program.	None

Cap on Coverage	$100 billion annual losses, after which Congress decides the procedures for and source of any excess payments. Industry not liable over $100 billion.	Total amount of Federal financial assistance may not exceed an aggregate amount of $100 billion. Sense of Congress that acts of terrorism resulting in insured losses greater than $100 billion would necessitate further Congressional action.
Recoupment of Federal Payments	None	All Federal financial assistance must be repaid from assessments and surcharges imposed on all commercial P&C insurers and deposited into the general fund of the Treasury. Aggregate Assessments: If losses from a single terrorist event are less than $20 billion, financial assistance is repaid from a combination of an "industry obligation assessment" and, if necessary, one or more "financing assessments." <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Both types of assessments are imposed on all commercial P&C insurers based on the ratio of the firm's net premiums to the industry's gross premiums for commercial P&C coverage. • (1) Industry obligation assessment: Capped at $5 billion per year ($10 billion in Years 2 and 3 if extended). TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE COMPARISON

Loss Sharing Program	One-year program with one-year extension at the Secretary of the Treasury's (Secretary) discretion. Program administered by the Secretary. Per Company Deductible: Each participating primary P&C company has a deductible established as its market share of gross premiums multiplied by $10 billion. Once the company has paid insured losses equal to its deductible, it the Government pays 80% of additional losses incurred by that company and the company pays the remaining 20 percent. Once aggregate losses have reached $10 billion, the loss sharing formula converts to 90/10. If aggregate losses exceed $10 billion, the Secretary is responsible for determining each company's pro rata share of the government's loss-sharing payments.	One-year program administered by Secretary of the Treasury (Secretary) in which government provides "financial assistance" to commercial P&C insurance companies based on one of two "triggering events." (1) Industry-wide trigger: If there is an "industry-wide triggering event" (described below), each insurer receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of the insurer's net losses (net of reinsured losses) and $5 million. Individual insurer trigger: If there is an "individual insurer triggering event," each insurer eligible to receive financial assistance under the triggering determination receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of its insured losses and 10% of its net P&C premiums (net of reinsurance premiums) in force at the time of the insured losses. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • If the Secretary subsequently determines that an industry-wide trigger has occurred, 10% of premium deductible is refunded, and the deductible under the industry-wide trigger is applied. • Coverage under the (individual insurer?) trigger applies only to those commercial insurers who were providing commercial P&C coverage prior to 9/11.

Disclosure to policyholders	At time of offer, purchase, or renewal of each policy, insurance company must disclose to the policyholder the premium charged for losses covered by the program and the Federal share of compensation under the program. For in-force contracts, disclosure required within 90 days.	Sense of Congress that states should require disclosure of the price of any P&C insurance for acts of terrorism, including costs of terrorism related assessments or surcharges. If states do not enact disclosure guidelines, the Secretary of the Treasury and the NAIC should adopt guidelines requiring the disclosure.
Ability to sue terrorist or terrorist's country	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person, government, or other entity that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.
Insurance Industry Build-Up	Sense of Congress that insurance industry should build up its capacity to provide affordable coverage for terrorism risk.	No provision.
Tax Provision	No provision.	Secretary shall issue a study within 4 months on issues relating to permitting P&C companies to establish tax-deductible reserves against future acts of terrorism.
Participating Insurer's Reports	Every 6 months participating insurance companies must report to the NAIC the premium rates charged for insured losses, including an explanation of and justification for those rates. The NAIC must forward copies of those reports to the Secretary, the Commerce Secretary, the FTC, and GAO.	Each insurer may be required by the Secretary to submit to the Secretary or the NAIC a statement specifying the net premium amount of coverage written under each line of commercial P&C sold by the insurer during a specified period.

Sunset Provisions	The program sunsets on December 31, 2002. Secretary may extend to a second year. One-Year Extension: The Secretary may determine, based on the findings of a mandated report, that the program should be extended for one year, to Dec. 31, 2003. In that event, the loss-sharing is the same as in the first year.	The program sunsets on January 1, 2003. Secretary may extend the program by not more than 2 years. Program Extension: Aggregate industry obligation amount for assessments will be the lesser of (1) Difference between $10 billion and aggregate amount of assessments made in the prior 12 months or, (2) the amount of financial assistance made available.
Triggering Event	Coverage commences when an individual participating insurance company's insured losses exceed its deductible.	Secretary makes a "triggering determination" that commercial P&C losses from one or more acts of terrorism exceed (1) $1 billion industry-wide or (2) $100 million industry-wide and losses for any single insurer exceed 10% of the insurer's capital surplus and 10% of its commercial P&C net premiums.
Coverage Requirements	Participating insurer must offer terrorism coverage in all its commercial P&C policies and may, within 21 days, opt-in to participate with respect to its personal lines. Terrorism coverage must not differ materially from its other P&C coverage. Policyholder must file claim with participating insurer, which processes the claim and submits it to the Secretary along with (1) verification of the claim and payments made to policyholder and (2) certification of compliance with the program.	None

Issue	12/13/01 cob Draft Senate Bill	House-Passed Bill
Loss Sharing Program	One-year program with one-year extension at the Secretary of the Treasury's (Secretary) discretion. Program administered by the Secretary. Per Company Deductible: Each participating primary P&C company has a deductible established as its market share of gross premiums multiplied by $10 billion. Once the company has paid insured losses equal to its deductible, it the Government pays 80% of additional losses incurred by that company and the company pays the remaining 20 percent. Once aggregate losses have reached $10 billion, the loss sharing formula converts to 90/10. If aggregate losses exceed $10 billion, the Secretary is responsible for determining each company's pro rata share of the government's loss-sharing payments.	One-year program administered by Secretary of the Treasury (Secretary) in which government provides "financial assistance" to commercial P&C insurance companies based on one of two "triggering events." (1) Industry-wide trigger: If there is an "industry-wide triggering event" (described below), each insurer receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of the insurer's net losses (net of reinsured losses) and $5 million. Individual insurer trigger: If there is an "individual insurer triggering event," each insurer eligible to receive financial assistance under the triggering determination receives financial assistance equal to the difference between 90% of its insured losses and 10% of its net P&C premiums (net of reinsurance premiums) in force at the time of the insured losses. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • If the Secretary subsequently determines that an industry-wide trigger has occurred, 10% of premium deductible is refunded, and the deductible under the industry-wide trigger is applied. • Coverage under the (individual insurer?) trigger applies only to those commercial insurers who were providing commercial P&C coverage prior to 9/11.

Legal Procedures (cont'd)	Provides U.S. right of subrogation for any payment made by U.S. through program. No statute of limitations provision No limited damages provision. Provisions apply only while program is effective. No settlement provision No judgment satisfaction provision. No protective order provision. No arbitration provision. No attorney fees provision.	Provides U.S. right of subrogation for claims U.S. pays. No statute of limitations provision. Damages limited to insured party. Provisions apply only with respect to triggering determinations and do not in any way limit actions against terrorists or their conspirators. No settlement provision. Makes terrorist assets seized or frozen by U.S. liable to satisfy judgments for acts of terrorism. President may waive this requirement. Authorizes U.S. or Secretary of the Treasury to seek protective orders for classified information. Preserves contractual arbitration rights. The Court will decide on reasonable attorneys fees so that the fees will not exceed 20 percent of total damages.

Disclosure to policyholders	At time of offer, purchase, or renewal of each policy, insurance company must disclose to the policyholder the premium charged for losses covered by the program and the Federal share of compensation under the program. For in-force contracts, disclosure required within 90 days.	Sense of Congress that states should require disclosure of the price of any P&C insurance for acts of terrorism, including costs of terrorism related assessments or surcharges. If states do not enact disclosure guidelines, the Secretary of the Treasury and the NAIC should adopt guidelines requiring the disclosure.
Ability to sue terrorist or terrorist's country	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person, government, or other entity that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.	Act does not limit ability of any plaintiff to recover from any person that participated in or aided and abetted any act of terrorism.
Insurance Industry Build-Up	Sense of Congress that insurance industry should build up its capacity to provide affordable coverage for terrorism risk.	No provision.
Tax Provision	No provision.	Secretary shall issue a study within 4 months on issues relating to permitting P&C companies to establish tax-deductible reserves against future acts of terrorism.
Participating Insurer's Reports	Every 6 months participating insurance companies must report to the NAIC the premium rates charged for insured losses, including an explanation of and justification for those rates. The NAIC must forward copies of those reports to the Secretary, the Commerce Secretary, the FTC, and GAO.	Each insurer may be required by the Secretary to submit to the Secretary or the NAIC a statement specifying the net premium amount of coverage written under each line of commercial P&C sold by the insurer during a specified period.

Reports to Congress	Secretary must report to Congress within 9 months the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage. No report on railroad and trucking insurance Secretary must report to Congress promptly on reasons for any extension of the program. No report on pooling. . The Secretary, the Secretary of Commerce, and the FTC shall submit joint reports to Congress and GAO summarizing and evaluating the reports received every 6 months on premium rates (see row above). These reports are due after 9 months and then 12 months later. The GAO shall evaluate these reports for Congress.	Presidentially appointed commission must report to Congress on life insurance within 120 days. Secretary must report to Congress on railroad and trucking insurance for acts of terrorism within 120 days. Reporting on extensions same as Senate bill. Secretary of Treasury, Federal Reserve Board, and GAO must report to Congress within 6 months of enactment on (1) the advisability of establishing a reinsurance pool for acts of terrorism to replace the Act's financial assistance program, and (2) the potential effects of the Internal Revenue Code amendments and any further changes to federal law that might be appropriate to encourage pooling. No report on premium rates.

Sunset Provisions	The program sunsets on December 31, 2002. Secretary may extend to a second year. One-Year Extension: The Secretary may determine, based on the findings of a mandated report, that the program should be extended for one year, to Dec. 31, 2003. In that event, the loss-sharing is the same as in the first year.	The program sunsets on January 1, 2003. Secretary may extend the program by not more than 2 years. Program Extension: Aggregate industry obligation amount for assessments will be the lesser of (1) Difference between $10 billion and aggregate amount of assessments made in the prior 12 months or, (2) the amount of financial assistance made available.
Triggering Event	Coverage commences when an individual participating insurance company's insured losses exceed its deductible.	Secretary makes a "triggering determination" that commercial P&C losses from one or more acts of terrorism exceed (1) $1 billion industry-wide or (2) $100 million industry-wide and losses for any single insurer exceed 10% of the insurer's capital surplus and 10% of its commercial P&C net premiums.
Coverage Requirements	Participating insurer must offer terrorism coverage in all its commercial P&C policies and may, within 21 days, opt-in to participate with respect to its personal lines. Terrorism coverage must not differ materially from its other P&C coverage. Policyholder must file claim with participating insurer, which processes the claim and submits it to the Secretary along with (1) verification of the claim and payments made to policyholder and (2) certification of compliance with the program.	None

Cap on Coverage	$100 billion annual losses, after which Congress decides the procedures for and source of any excess payments. Industry not liable over $100 billion.	Total amount of Federal financial assistance may not exceed an aggregate amount of $100 billion. Sense of Congress that acts of terrorism resulting in insured losses greater than $100 billion would necessitate further Congressional action.
